ALLIES YIELD OLD BALDY TO REDS

Queen Mary Funeral To Be Held Tuesday

Churchill Pays Tribute To Old Matriarch

LONDON, March 25 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill termed Queen Mary a figure of almost legendary distinction in a broadcast tribute tonight as the Royal Household prepared for her funeral Tuesday.

"Queen Mary was loved and revered far and wide, as perhaps nobody has been since Queen Victoria," Churchill said in an address to the British Commonwealth which was heard also in the United States.

"Men and women of all ages, in all the lands owing allegiance to the crown, have sorrowing hearts tonight."

Funeral To Be Private

The Queen, who died last night at 85, moved easily through the changing scenes from the Victorian to the atomic eras, he said, and she lived to see the British crown "far more broadly and securely based on the people's love and the nation's will than in the sedate days of her youth."

A private funeral will be held for her Tuesday in St. George's Chapel of Windsor Castle, for centuries the final resting place of British kings and queens.

The regal old matriarch, who died last night just two months short of her 86th birthday, will be buried in the chapel beside the body of her husband, King George V. who died in 1936. Their son, King George VI, is among others who lie beneath the ancient stone floor.

Month's Mourning Decreed

Buckingham Palace announced the arrangements tonight.

It had already been made clear that Queen Mary will be granted her dying wish—the coronation of her beloved granddaughter, Queen Elizabeth II, will go on as scheduled June 2.

Queen Elizabeth decreed only a month's court mourning.

The body of the old Queen, whose indomitable spirit won the admiration of four generations of Britons, is to lie in state Sunday and Monday in Westminster Hall.

Tax Case Figure Denies Donating $1,000 To Demos

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP) — Vernard F. Bond of Fairfax County, Va., today described as a "dirty lie" the sworn testimony of a former Democratic party worker that Bond came to party headquarters about a tax case and made a $1,000 contribution to the party in 1948.

"I never contributed one five cents to that party," Bond told a reporter.

Joseph Sherman, a former Washington newspaperman and part-time Democratic party worker, testified there was such a contribution in a hearing Monday before a House ways and means subcommittee.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Kean (R-NJ), is investigating political influence in the tax service.

Sherman said Bond came to the offices of the Democratic National Committee and protested against his treatment by a revenue agent investigating Bond's tax returns. Sherman said he arranged for Bond to talk to T. Lamar Caudle, then an assistant attorney general, who assured Bond that he would be given a fair hearing.

Sherman said Bond was "terribly grateful" and later made a $1,000 contribution to the party. Subcommittee Counsel John E. Tobin told the Congressmen the tax case against Bond was dropped. He said the Justice Department arranged for an examination of Bond by a private physician and the decision was that Bond's health would not permit him to stand trial. Tobin said two Public Health Service physicians had found Bond could safely stand trial.

Agriculture Dept. Revamping Plan Submitted By Ike

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—President Eisenhower proposed today to give Secretary Benson blank check authority to reorganize the Agriculture Department and its far-flung field agencies. The purpose, he said, is to cut costs and simplify operations in farm aid programs.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) quickly forecast congressional approval. He told reporters the plan closely follows recommendations made by the Government Reorganization Commission led by former President Hoover.

Eisenhower's proposal was advanced in the form of a reorganization plan for the department, submitted to Congress by the White House. Such a plan goes into effect automatically in 60 days unless either the House or the Senate vetoes it. It could go into effect earlier by affirmative action of both houses.

Three Assistant Secretaries

The plan would give the department three assistant secretaries instead of the present one, plus an administrative assistant secretary to aid Benson. The big department now has 54,000 full time employes and the assistance of about 95,000 farmer committeemen who perform administrative tasks on a part-time basis.

Eisenhower's message to Congress said Benson had advised him that the new assistant secretaries and the administrative assistant would simply replace existing positions and would "not result in any net increase in personnel."

He said the secretary also had told him that "both the number of officers and the employes in the office of the secretary and the aggregate of their salaries will be less than those existing prior to Jan. 1, 1953."

Extent Of Shakeup Undisclosed

Just how far Benson would go in shaking up existing agencies was not immediately disclosed. Aides said he probably would await final congressional action on the proposal.

Specifically, the plan would transfer to the secretary of agriculture all functions and authority not now vested in him but delegated by law and prior administrative orders to such agencies in the Department as the Forest Service, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the Soil Conservation Service, and the Rural Electrification Administration.

Lodge Lashes Out At Soviet Terror Rule

Calls On Russia For Information About Americans In China

UNITED NATIONS, March 25 (INS) — The United States bluntly asked Russia in U.N. tonight to tell the free world how long the Kremlin reign of "tyranny and oppression" will be continued behind the Iron Curtain.

U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge also called on the Soviet Union for information on the fate in Red China of "100-odd" captive Americans including the three recently seized on a yacht off Hongkong. One of the three is Don Dixon, International News Service correspondent.

Five Americans Died

Lodge, complaining that five of 28 Americans known to be imprisoned in Red China already have died, drew attention to the imprisonment in Czechoslovakia of Associated Press Correspondent William Oatis and said to the Political Committee:

"These matters are of profound and tragic importance to the people of the United States. We would like answers to these questions."

In a slashing attack on Soviet terror rule behind the Iron Curtain, Lodge defended the Mutual Security Act and said it would remain in force until the Kremlin ceases its oppression. He said the U. S. is ready to meet Russia half-way for "honest negotiations" and stated:

"World Deserves Reply"

"I have tried to outline the skeleton of Soviet tyranny in order that we may best comprehend the forces which impell thousands of escapees to leave their homes and risk their lives in order to reach freedom beyond the Iron Curtain.

"We may well ask how long the men in the Kremlin propose to perpetuate this vast and systemitized oppression. We seek no hasty answer, for the question is momentous. But the world deserves a reply. Perhaps Mr. Vishinsky, when he returns tomorrow, can bring new word from the Kremlin."

Four Boys Lost When Boat Sinks

CHESAPEAKE BEACH, Md., March 25 (AP) — Fishermen and Coast Guard patrols searched fruitlessly today for four young men from Washington suburbs who have been missing since their 14-foot skiff capsized and sank in Chesapeake Bay late Tuesday afternoon.

Donald C. DeSilva, 19, of Riverdale, Md., was rescued after clinging almost an hour to a fishing net stake.

Missing and presumed drowned were Millard Atkinson, 18, William Chinn, 19, Jerry Rees, 17, all of Riverdale, and John Harris, 19, of Beltsville.

The five had borrowed a boat from a friend to take a spin in the bay. DeSilva said it leaked from the start but they were able to bail fast enough to keep ahead of the water. About a mile offshore, however, the leaking increased and the boat capsized.

Harris and Reese struck out for the shore but returned to the boat. They later lost their grips on it and sank. Another disappeared while trying to swim to a duck blind. The fourth lost his grip on the fishing net stake to which DeSilva clung.

Bohlen Showdown Tomorrow

Dulles Welcomes French Premier

French Premier And Eisenhower To Confer Today

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—Premier Rene Mayer of France and leading members of his government arrived in Washington today for a round of talks which are expected to produce a French request for increased military aid against the Communists in Indochina.

The French delegation, numbering more than 30, was met at the National Airport by Vice President Nixon, Secretary of State Dulles and other American dignitaries.

In an exchange of greetings, Nixon said the talks opening tomorrow will not only assist in solving mutual problems "but will serve the cause of peace throughout the world."

Mayer, replying, said the United States and France are fighting side by side in Asia to advance the cause of freedom. "We are confident we will, like you in Korea, reach victory in Indochina with the participation of the peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia," the Premier stated.

Mayer and his party made a brief stopover in New York before coming on to the capital in President Eisenhower's private plane.

The initial meeting with Eisenhower will be held tomorrow morning aboard the President's yacht, the Williamsburg. Eisenhower will be on the dock to greet the French delegation.

This meeting, it is expected, will launch a general review of Franco-American problems, with special emphasis on the Indochina fighting and prospects for the united European army.

Bill Would Add Star To Flag When Needed

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP) — Rep. Lane (D-Mass) today introduced a bill to provide for a rearrangement of the stars on the United States flag if and when there's a 49th state.

The bill, introduced at the request of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, specifies seven rows of seven stars each.

A bill to make Hawaii the 49th state has been passed by the House and awaits Senate action.

Three Men Killed In Plane Crash Near Baltimore

BALTIMORE, March 25 (AP)—An Air Force two-engine B-25 crashed near Baltimore's Friendship Airport ten miles south of here tonight and police said three men were killed.

The plane came in in a wide arc, shearing off the tops of trees for about 150 yards and then plunged to the ground near a girls' school. The driver of a moving automobile on a nearby road said a portion of the plane wreckage struck his car.

No other casualties were reported.

An Air Force officer said the plane was on a routine flight returning from Patrick Field, Florida, to Friendship Airport.

Big Cut In Draft Rate Predicted

WASHINGTON, March 25 (INS) — President Eisenhower conferred today with the nation's top military planners, while Defense Department manpower experts disclosed the draft rate may be cut nearly in half this year.

The Chief Executive reportedly discussed with the civilian and military leaders responsible for national security his strong desire to tighten the defense budget by stringent elimination of all waste, overlapping and inefficiency.

Meanwhile, Maj. Gen. E. C. Lynch, the Pentagon's manpower requirements chief, declared that even without drastic economy action he expects the draft rate to decline from the present 53,000 a month to between 30,000 and 35,000 by next Jan. 1.

Defense Secretary Wilson already has made it plain that he intends to swing a sharp economy ax, which the Pentagon said could mean an even lower draft rate than the figure for which Lynch is shooting.

Ex-LaPrensa Editor Dies

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 25 (AP)—Ezequiel Pedro Paz, former publisher who was felled by a paralytic stroke Sept. 30, 1943, died today without knowing the Peron government had seized his famed independent newspaper La Prensa. He was 82.

President Would Accept Control Freeze Powers

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration today told Congress it would "accept"—but did not recommend—a standby law authorizing the President to freeze prices and wages for 90 days in emergency.

It called for a five month extension of federal rent controls in the 1,400 cities and towns where they now exist, and a year-long extension of rent ceilings—until April 30, 1954—in housing-critical areas.

Decision Up To Congress

The administration spokesman, acting Defense Mobilizer Arthur S. Flemming, also urged a four-year extension beyond June 30 of stripped-down priority and allocation powers to protect the munitions build-up.

Testifying before the Senate Banking Committee, Flemming dumped squarely in the lap of Congress the decision on standby quick-freeze powers, aimed to give Congress time to write a detailed anti-inflation law.

Congress is the best judge, he said, of whether it could act swiftly enough—meaning within perhaps 10 days of a military crisis—to avert economic disaster.

Bill Would Be Acceptable

If Congress feels its machinery would be too slow "I am authorized to state that a bill containing a provision granting authority to the President to impose a freeze on prices and wages would be acceptable," Flemming said.

"We believe," he added, "that it would be unwise to attempt at this time to enact a detailed standby price and wage control law."

It is impossible to foretell, he explained, what situation may exist when a crisis day comes.

Reuther Is Re-Elected President Of UAW

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 25 (AP) — Walter P. Reuther, who first won the CIO United Auto Workers presidency as the upshot of a factional feud here in 1946, was re-elected unanimously today to his fifth straight term.

For the first time since his original victory he carried his three top aides back into office with him without even token opposition.

Taft Orders Temporary Cease-Fire

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—The Senate today postponed a vote on President Eisenhower's nomination of Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen as ambassador to Moscow amid signs of stiffening opposition by a small Republican - dominated group.

Senate Republican Leader Taft of Ohio made the decision to delay the showdown until Friday when it became clear the the debate would keep the Senate far later than its usual quitting time.

Taft called a temporary ceasefire shortly before 5 p.m. He had a 5:30 date to help his wife give a big tea party for President and Mrs. Eisenhower.

Leading off the administration's drive for confirmation, Taft told the Senate that Bohlen is "a completely good security risk" and that even Bohlen's bitterest critics had never accused him of Communist leanings.

Lehman "Indignant"

As the hard core of the opposition, Senators Bridges (R-NH) and McCarthy (R - Wis) hotly denounced Bohlen as a supporter of the old Truman-Acheson regime, while Sen. Lehman (D-NY) expressed his "indignation" at the attacks on Bohlen.

Lehman, in a speech closing debate for the day, deplored what he described as tactics which "fill men with fear and make them afraid of self-appointed, self-designated defenders of the security of the United States."

The New Yorker said Bohlen had been "pilloried on mere rumor," and he told the Senate:

"There has never been a blemish on his record. He has served his country with great ability and unswerving devotion."

Then, turning on McCarthy, Lehman accused the Wisconsin senator of making "indefensible charges against a great American, Averell Harriman."

"Outrage," Lehman Says

"It is an outrage," Lehman said. "He (McCarthy) virtually accused him (Harriman) of being sympathetic to the Communist cause."

Lehman's outburst apparently stemmed from McCarthy's assertion that Harriman, former ambassador to Moscow and later Director of Mutual Security in the Truman Administration, started Bohlen "along the road to fame and Yalta."

Bridges, the senior Republican in the Senate, attacked Bohlen as an "exponent of appeasement and containment" in dealing with Russia. He suggested that Secretary of State Dulles was sending Bohlen to Moscow to get rid of him as a policy-making counselor in the State Department.

McCarthy told the Senate that Dulles had made "a grave and inexcusable mistake . . . a very, very grievous mistke which we shall live to regret" in fostering Bohlen's appointment.

Burma Asks U. N. Brand Nationalist China Aggressor

RANGOON, Burma, March 25 (AP) — Burma in a surprise move today asked the United Nations to brand Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist China as an aggressor. The Rangoon government charged Chiang is maintaining guerrilla troops in the Northeast wilds of this country on the Red China frontier.

The core of the Nationalist Chinese in Burma is composed of soldiers driven out of adjoining Yunnan Province in the Red seizure of the China mainland more than three years ago.

5th Air Force Planes Pound Strategic Hill

Americans Abandon Key Peak After Two Counterattacks Fail

SEOUL, Thursday, March 25 (AP) — U. S. Seventh Division troops completely abandoned the strategic peak of Old Baldy on the main invasion route to Seoul early today after three days of bitter fighting.

Shortly after dawn, Fifth Air Force planes roared down on the Chinese-held hill in a terrific bombardment.

The air pounding still was under way late in the morning.

The battle for the strategic height, dominating the invasion route to Seoul along the Western Front, roared into its third day with American forces pinned down 125 yards from the summit. The Reds held two-thirds of Old Baldy.

The Chinese and American positions were so close U. S. soldiers drew fire "every time they popped their heads up," a division briefing officer said.

Reds Outfired 4 to 1

Heavy artillery cannonades thundered without stop. During the first 48 hours U. S. 105 and 155 millimeter guns poured out more than 62,000 rounds of shells at the Reds, outfiring the Communist artillery four to one. Mortar shells were fired in still greater quantities.

U. S. tanks maneuvered in the mud, blasting Communist reinforcements attempting to scale the slippery peak.

Allied war planes swarmed overhead. B26 light bombers dropped 36 tons of bombs on Red positions immediately behind Old Baldy.

By nightfall Wednesday, American infantrymen still held a network of trenches on a lower southeast knob of Old Blady, about 125 yards from the summit.

The Chinese held fast to separate trench networks covering two thirds of the peak—on the northwest and northeast.

U. S. Column Stopped

During the day one American column jabbed toward the Chinese trenches on the northeast but was stopped in its tracks.

Another column pushed up connecting trenches toward the northwest and "got close" to the top the briefing officer said. However, it was ordered back at dusk "when the going got too rough.

(In Washington the Defense Department announced that U. S. battle casualties in Korea now totaled 131,524, an increase of 280 including 79 killed in action since last week's announcement. The summary did not reflect the current heavy fighting on Old Baldy.)

Army Post School Segregation To End

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—The White House announced today that the one remaining case of race segregation in federally operated schools at Army posts will be wiped out by the start of the fall term. It is at Ft. Benning near Columbus, Ga.

The problem of state-operated schools at such posts is being taken up next.

An Army memorandum released through the White House told of the plan to integrate the Ft. Benning schools but said there are "complicating factors" in schools operated by state authorities on federal property at other posts.

Clerk Sought As Murder House Yields Four Bodies

LONDON, March 25 (AP)—Scotland Yard detectives tonight pried open, scraped and examined every inch of a grimy house of murder that has yielded the bodies of four scantily clothed women.

Three of the victims were young. All were poor and work-worn when the killer struck.

Post-mortem examinations disclosed that three, found walled up in a pantry yesterday, were strangled, presumably several months ago. Detectives today recovered the body of the fourth—a woman of undetermined age—from under the floorboards in the small front room. Presumably a strangler also killed her.

Throughout Britain, alerted police officers sought John Christie to see if he could help them in the investigation.

Christie, 55, was the last occupant of the apartment, one of several in a house which also was the scene of a double murder in 1949. He was described as a timid-appearing clerk, with a rather owlish expression who walks in an exaggerated military manner.

Christie's wife and his old dog, Bob, also are missing.

The house of murder faces on a dead-end street in sleazy Notting Hill—a neighborhood of mixed races, poverty, vice and petty crime.

Police made door-to-door inquiries at all the 20 houses on the street. The occupants said they knew almost nothing about the Christies. One neighbor told newsmen:

"Mr. and Mrs. Christie were very quiet people who kept very much to themselves. They were always polite and said 'good morning' but did not stop and speak with the neighbors."

Ike Has Friendly Greeting For M'Carthy At Reception

WASHINGTON, March 25 (INS) — President Eisenhower met Sen. McCarthy (R) Wis., face-to-face tonight with a friendly handshake for the chief critic of his appointment of Charles E. Bohlen as ambassador to Moscow.

Mr. Eisenhower and the leader of the Senate fight against Bohlen's nomination were brought together during a reception held for the President and the First Lady by Senate Majority Leader and Mrs. Taft in their fashionable Georgetown home.

The Wisconsin lawmaker, one of the 200 guests, had time only for a handshake and a "How do you do," as he moved along the lengthy receiving line.

Later, when asked what the President said, McCarthy replied facetiously:

"The President said, 'Keep up the good fight, Joe.' "

Several persons standing nearby laughed uproariously. One said, "I'll quote you, Joe, on that," and McCarthy joined in the general laughter.

Maryland House Group Proposes $1,942,417 Budget Slash

ANNAPOLIS, March 25 (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, with tacit approval of Gov. McKeldin, tonight proposed detailed cuts amounting to almost two million in Maryland's 1953-54 budget.

Revisions in the 195-million-dollar appropriations bill would total $2,163,932.

The budget itself would be sliced by $1,942,417, the sum of general fund reductions included in an overall blow that touched most state agencies and institutions.

The remaining $221,515 consisted of special funds, which will still be available for department spending but not for purposes originally suggested.

In advance of the committee's report to the House, McKeldin sent down another supplement to the budget which would apply savings to the state property tax.

Majority Leader Logan (D-Caroline) said the governor had been advised of the particulars of the reductions before putting out his message on the real estate tax. McKeldin apparently was satisfied with the way the committee had pruned his original spending program.

The governor had applauded the committee when the first announcement was made last weekend that a two-million-dollar axe had been swung.

The committee then said its economies would enable the state to tax property at approximately 5 2-3 cents of the $100 in 1954. The rate originally had been forecast at 11.29 cents, a nickel increase over this year.

Here are some of the major slashes proposed:

Public welfare, $372,072 off $8,743,589.

Health department, $284,800 off $11,354,282.

General emergency fund, $250,000 off $500,000.

Mental hygiene, $255,455 off $12,772,437.

The University of Maryland, $218,515 off $9,353,317 in state funds.

In addition, the committee recommended diversions of $194,375 in the Department of Motor Vehicles. The money would go primarily for roads maintenance instead of reviving next year the expense of two tags on a car and enlarging the licensing bureau.

Another special fund reduction could increase road funds by $24,500 would reduce the number of new state policemen from 40 to 20.

Mayer, replying, said the United States and France are fighting side by side in Asia to advance the cause of freedom. "We are confident we will, like you in Korea, reach victory in Indochina with the participation of the peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia," the Premier stated.

Mayer and his party made a brief stopover in New York before coming on to the capital in President Eisenhower's private plane.

The initial meeting with Eisenhower will be held tomorrow morning aboard the President's yacht, the Williamsburg. Eisenhower will be on the dock to greet the French delegation.

This meeting, it is expected, will launch a general review of Franco-American problems, with special emphasis on the Indochina fighting and prospects for the united European army.

Bill Would Add Star To Flag When Needed

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP) — Rep. Lane (D-Mass) today introduced a bill to provide for a rearrangement of the stars on the United States flag if and when there's a 49th state.

The bill, introduced at the request of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, specifies seven rows of seven stars each.

A bill to make Hawaii the 49th state has been passed by the House and awaits Senate action.

Three Men Killed In Plane Crash Near Baltimore

BALTIMORE, March 25 (AP)—An Air Force two-engine B-25 crashed near Baltimore's Friendship Airport ten miles south of here tonight and police said three men were killed.

The plane came in in a wide arc, shearing off the tops of trees for about 150 yards and then plunged to the ground near a girls' school. The driver of a moving automobile on a nearby road said a portion of the plane wreckage struck his car.

No other casualties were reported.

Big Cut In Draft Rate Predicted

WASHINGTON, March 25 (INS) — President Eisenhower conferred today with the nation's top military planners, while Defense Department manpower experts disclosed the draft rate may be cut nearly in half this year.

The Chief Executive reportedly discussed with the civilian and military leaders responsible for national security his strong desire to tighten the defense budget by stringent elimination of all waste, overlapping and inefficiency.

Meanwhile, Maj. Gen. E. C. Lynch, the Pentagon's manpower requirements chief, declared that even without drastic economy action he expects the draft rate to decline from the present 53,000 a month to between 30,000 and 35,000 by next Jan. 1.

Defense Secretary Wilson already has made it plain that he intends to swing a sharp economy ax, which the Pentagon said could mean an even lower draft rate than the figure for which Lynch is shooting.

Ex-LaPrensa Editor Dies

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 25 (AP)—Ezequiel Pedro Paz, former publisher who was felled by a paralytic stroke Sept. 30, 1943, died today without knowing the Peron government had seized his famed independent newspaper La Prensa. He was 82.

President Would Accept Control Freeze Powers

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration today told Congress it would "accept"—but did not recommend—a standby law authorizing the President to freeze prices and wages for 90 days in emergency.

It called for a five month extension of federal rent controls in the 1,400 cities and towns where they now exist, and a year-long extension of rent ceilings—until April 30, 1954—in housing-critical areas.

Decision Up To Congress

The administration spokesman, acting Defense Mobilizer Arthur S. Flemming, also urged a four-year extension beyond June 30 of stripped-down priority and allocation powers to protect the munitions build-up.

Testifying before the Senate Banking Committee, Flemming dumped squarely in the lap of Congress the decision on standby quick-freeze powers, aimed to give Congress time to write a detailed anti-inflation law.

Congress is the best judge, he said, of whether it could act swiftly enough—meaning within perhaps 10 days of a military crisis—to avert economic disaster.

Bill Would Be Acceptable

If Congress feels its machinery would be too slow "I am authorized to state that a bill containing a provision granting authority to the President to impose a freeze on prices and wages would be acceptable," Flemming said.

"We believe," he added, "that it would be unwise to attempt at this time to enact a detailed standby price and wage control law."

It is impossible to foretell, he explained, what situation may exist when a crisis day comes.

Reuther Is Re-Elected President Of UAW

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 25 (AP) — Walter P. Reuther, who first won the CIO United Auto Workers presidency as the upshot of a factional feud here in 1946, was re-elected unanimously today to his fifth straight term.

For the first time since his original victory he carried his three top aides back into office with him without even token opposition.

Taft Orders Temporary Cease-Fire

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—The Senate today postponed a vote on President Eisenhower's nomination of Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen as ambassador to Moscow amid signs of stiffening opposition by a small Republican - dominated group.

Senate Republican Leader Taft of Ohio made the decision to delay the showdown until Friday when it became clear the the debate would keep the Senate far later than its usual quitting time.

Taft called a temporary cease-fire shortly before 5 p.m. He had a 5:30 date to help his wife give a big tea party for President and Mrs. Eisenhower.

Leading off the administration's drive for confirmation, Taft told the Senate that Bohlen is "a completely good security risk" and that even Bohlen's bitterest critics had never accused him of Communist leanings.

Lehman "Indignant"

As the hard core of the opposition, Senators Bridges (R-NH) and McCarthy (R - Wis) hotly denounced Bohlen as a supporter of the old Truman-Acheson regime, while Sen. Lehman (D-NY) expressed his "indignation" at the attacks on Bohlen.

Lehman, in a speech closing debate for the day, deplored what he described as tactics which "fill men with fear and make them afraid of self-appointed, self-designated defenders of the security of the United States."

The New Yorker said Bohlen had been "pilloried on mere rumor," and he told the Senate:

"There has never been a blemish on his record. He has served his country with great ability and unswerving devotion."

Then, turning on McCarthy, Lehman accused the Wisconsin senator of making "indefensible charges against a great American, Averell Harriman."

"Outrage," Lehman Says

"It is an outrage," Lehman said. "He (McCarthy) virtually accused him (Harriman) of being sympathetic to the Communist cause."

Lehman's outburst apparently stemmed from McCarthy's assertion that Harriman, former ambassador to Moscow and later Director of Mutual Security in the Truman Administration, started Bohlen "along the road to fame and Yalta."

Bridges, the senior Republican in the Senate, attacked Bohlen as an "expoñent of appeasement and containment" in dealing with Russia. He suggested that Secretary of State Dulles was sending Bohlen to Moscow to get rid of him as a policy-making counselor in the State Department.

McCarthy told the Senate that Dulles had made "a grave and inexcusable mistake . . . a very, very grievous mistke which we shall live to regret" in fostering Bohlen's appointment.

Burma Asks U. N. Brand Nationalist China Aggressor

RANGOON, Burma, March 25 (AP) — Burma in a surprise move today asked the United Nations to brand Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist China as an aggressor. The Rangoon government charged Chiang is maintaining guerrilla troops in the Northeast wilds of this country on the Red China frontier.

The core of the Nationalist Chinese in Burma is composed of soldiers driven out of adjoining Yunnan Province in the Red seizure of the China mainland more than three years ago.

5th Air Force Planes Pound Strategic Hill

Americans Abandon Key Peak After Two Counterattacks Fail

SEOUL, Thursday, March 25 (AP) — U. S. Seventh Division troops completely abandoned the strategic peak of Old Baldy on the main invasion route to Seoul early today after three days of bitter fighting.

Shortly after dawn, Fifth Air Force planes roared down on the Chinese-held hill in a terrific bombardment.

The air pounding still was under way late in the morning.

The battle for the strategic height, dominating the invasion route to Seoul along the Western Front, roared into its third day with American forces pinned down 125 yards from the summit. The Reds held two-thirds of Old Baldy.

The Chinese and American positions were so close U. S. soldiers drew fire "every time they popped their heads up," a division briefing officer said.

Reds Outfired 4 to 1

Heavy artillery cannonades thundered without stop. During the first 48 hours U. S. 105 and 155 millimeter guns poured out more than 62,000 rounds of shells at the Reds, outfiring the Communist artillery four to one. Mortar shells were fired in still greater quantities.

U. S. tanks maneuvered in the mud, blasting Communist reinforcements attempting to scale the slippery peak.

Allied war planes swarmed overhead. B26 light bombers dropped 36 tons of bombs on Red positions immediately behind Old Baldy.

By nightfall Wednesday, American infantrymen still held a network of trenches on a lower southeast knob of Old Blady, about 125 yards from the summit.

The Chinese held fast to separate trench networks covering two thirds of the peak—on the northwest and northeast.

U. S. Column Stopped

During the day one American column jabbed toward the Chinese trenches on the northeast but was stopped in its tracks.

Another column pushed up connecting trenches toward the northwest and "got close" to the top the briefing officer said. However, it was ordered back at dusk "when the going got too rough.

(In Washington the Defense Department announced that U. S. battle casualties in Korea now totaled 131,524, an increase of 280 including 79 killed in action since last week's announcement. The summary did not reflect the current heavy fighting on Old Baldy.)

Army Post School Segregation To End

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—The White House announced today that the one remaining case of race segregation in federally operated schools at Army posts will be wiped out by the start of the fall term. It is at Ft. Benning near Columbus, Ga.

The problem of state-operated schools at such posts is being taken up next.

An Army memorandum released through the White House told of the plan to integrate the Ft. Benning schools but said there are "complicating factors" in schools operated by state authorities on federal property at other posts.

Clerk Sought As Murder House Yields Four Bodies

LONDON, March 25 (AP)—Scotland Yard detectives tonight pried open, scraped and examined every inch of a grimy house of murder that has yielded the bodies of four scantily clothed women.

Three of the victims were young. All were poor and work-worn when the killer struck.

Post-mortem examinations disclosed that three, found walled up in a pantry yesterday, were strangled, presumably several months ago. Detectives today recovered the body of the fourth—a woman of undetermined age—from under the floorboards in the small front room. Presumably a strangler also killed her.

Throughout Britain, alerted police officers sought John Christie to see if he could help them in the investigation.

Christie, 55, was the last occupant of the apartment, one of several in a house which also was the scene of a double murder in 1949. He was described as a timid-appearing clerk, with a rather owlish expression who walks in an exaggerated military manner.

Christie's wife and his old dog, Bob, also are missing.

The house of murder faces on a dead-end street in sleazy Notting Hill—a neighborhood of mixed races, poverty, vice and petty crime.

Police made door-to-door inquiries at all the 20 houses on the street. The occupants said they knew almost nothing about the Christies. One neighbor told newsmen:

"Mr. and Mrs. Christie were very quiet people who kept very much to themselves. They were always polite and said 'good morning' but did not stop and speak with the neighbors."

Ike Has Friendly Greeting For M'Carthy At Reception

WASHINGTON, March 25 (INS) — President Eisenhower met Sen. McCarthy (R) Wis., face-to-face tonight with a friendly handshake for the chief critic of his appointment of Charles E. Bohlen as ambassador to Moscow.

Mr. Eisenhower and the leader of the Senate fight against Bohlen's nomination were brought together during a reception held for the President and the First Lady by Senate Majority Leader and Mrs. Taft in their fashionable Georgetown home.

The Wisconsin lawmaker, one of the 200 guests, had time only for a handshake and a "How do you do," as he moved along the lengthy receiving line.

Later, when asked what the President said, McCarthy replied facetiously:

"The President said, 'Keep up the good fight, Joe.' "

Several persons standing nearby laughed uproariously. One said, "I'll quote you, Joe, on that," and McCarthy joined in the general laughter.

Maryland House Group Proposes $1,942,417 Budget Slash

ANNAPOLIS, March 25 (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, with tacit approval of Gov. McKeldin, tonight proposed detailed cuts amounting to almost two million in Maryland's 1953-54 budget.

Revisions in the 195-million-dollar appropriations bill would total $2,163,932.

The budget itself would be sliced by $1,942,417, the sum of general fund reductions included in an overall blow that touched most state agencies and institutions.

The remaining $221,515 consisted of special funds, which will still be available for department spending but not for purposes originally suggested.

In advance of the committee's report to the House, McKeldin sent down another supplement to the budget which would apply savings to the state property tax.

Majority Leader Logan (D-Caroline) said the governor had been advised of the particulars of the reductions before putting out his message on the real estate tax. McKeldin apparently was satisfied with the way the committee had pruned his original spending program.

The governor had applauded the committee when the first announcement was made last weekend that a two-million-dollar axe had been swung.

The committee then said its economies would enable the state to tax property at approximately 5 2-3 cents of the $100 in 1954. The rate originally had been forecast at 11.29 cents, a nickel increase over this year.

Here are some of the major slashes proposed:

Public welfare, $372,072 off $8,743,589.

Health department, $284,800 off $11,354,282.

General emergency fund, $250,000 off $500,000.

Mental hygiene, $255,455 off $12,772,437.

The University of Maryland, $218,515 off $9,353,317 in state funds.

In addition, the committee recommended diversions of $194,375 in the Department of Motor Vehicles. The money would go primarily for roads maintenance instead of reviving next year the expense of two tags on a car and enlarging the licensing bureau.

Another special fund reduction could increase road funds by $24,500 would reduce the number of new state policemen from 40 to 20.

Man Admits He Played Host At 'Drinking Party'

A 64-year-old South End man has admitted playing host at a teen-age drinking party at his home, City Police said yesterday.

The alleged host, Edward Williams, 225 East Elder Street, has posted $200 bond for a hearing Saturday in Police Court on a charge of furnishing intoxicants to seven minors.

Sadie M. Yeager, 1000 Virginia Avenue, and Jimmy Dyche, this city, each posted $300 bonds on charges of selling whisky on credit and without a license, and of furnishing intoxicants to minors.

Police said Williams admitted sending two of the juveniles to a restaurant operated by Mrs. Yeager last Friday to get beer. Dyche, an employe, reportedly gave them the beer. The establishment has a beer license.

Williams was quoted as saying that he placed five bottles of beer in the refrigerator, went into his living room to drink the sixth, and returned to find the others missing. Then, he said, he sent the youths back to the tavern for six more bottles.

The teen-agers said they bought the beer and two half-pint bottles of whisky at the tavern, charging their purchases to Williams' account.

Police became interested after a "very drunk" 15-year-old boy was picked up early Saturday on Third Street. The boy and his six companions admitted drinking beer and whisky at Williams' home while he told them stories of "olden times."

Md. Convocation Attracts 4,500

COLLEGE PARK, Md., March 25 (AP)—The largest crowd ever to attend a Spring Convocation at the University of Maryland heard a lecture on Maryland history by one of the state's leading editors and authors today.

The heritage left by the early settlers of Maryland is "the inalienable right of the common man to build himself to uncommon status," declared Neil H. Swanson, executive editor of the Baltimore Sunpapers.

About 4,500 crowded into Ritchie Coliseum for the ceremony. Only once before has there been a larger convocation audience on the campus—when Sen. Millard E. Tydings delivered an address on a similar theme to the Fall assembly in October of 1948.

Swanson made several references to the fact today's convocation came on Maryland Day, the 319th anniversary of the landing of the founders of the Maryland colony in St. Mary's County.

He advanced the idea there might never have been a United States had it not been for the part Marylanders played in colonial history.

Atom Scientist Dies Under Security Guard

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25 (AP)—The strange story of a trusted young atomic scientist, who died under close security guard lest he talk incoherently and reveal secret information, was disclosed today.

He was William C. Twitchell, 36, a native of Minnesota and project engineer in charge of the University of California radiation laboratory mechanical equipment.

Twitchell died at Letterman Army Hospital Monday of a malignant disease which had no connection with his work.

His presence at the hospital was a secret. His treatment at the hospital was itself unusual as he was a civilian without Army service.

A security guard was maintained for several days, it was learned, because Twitchell knew top secret information. The guard was present in case the scientist should talk in his semi-conscious state.

AMARILLO, Tex., March 25 (AP)—Gen. James Van Fleet arrived today to vacation on a ranch as guest of an ex-sergeant who drove his jeep in Korea.

McCarthy Tells Senate State Dept. Will Fire Bohlen's Brother-In-Law

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP) — Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) told the Senate today the State Department is about to fire Charles Thayer, brother-in-law of Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen, nominee as ambassador to Russia.

McCarthy said the department, under its new Republican management, also has fired Benjamin Buttenweiser whom he termed "the man in whose home Alger Hiss was harbored between his two trials involving treason and who was holding one of the top positions in the office of the high commissioner in Germany."

The senator said R. W. Scott McLeod, new State Department security officer, "caused the removal" of Buttenweiser and of Mrs. E. C. Carter "the $50 a day consultant whose husband headed the Communist controlled IPR (Institute of Pacific Relations, a private research group)."

McCarthy was fighting Senate approval of Bohlen for the Moscow post. He gave no explanation of why, he said, Thayer is to be fired.

He simply told the Senate:

"Another individual who has been ordered home and is, I understand, to be discharged is Charles Thayer, the former head of the 'Voice of America' whose activities as head of the 'Voice' are well known to the Senate."

Nor did he state the reasons for the reported dismissal of Buttenweiser and Mrs. Carter.

How Did Accident Get Its Name?—It Was An Accident

Ever since a Roslindale, Mass. writer asked the local Chamber of Commerce to find out how the town of Accident got its name, the organization has probed every information source for several weeks.

Finally the information was obtained by Anthony Saeli, manager, who said this is only one of a hundred such requests received by the Chamber every month.

Saeli obtained the "story" of how Accident got its name from Francis A. Kenney, manager of the local office of the state Department of Employment Security, whose wife, the former Miss Lena Georg, is from the oddly-named town.

Mrs. Kenney, a graduate of Accident High School, happened to have an old issue of "Ax Eye," an official publication of the school, which contained the information. Mrs. Kenney is also a member of the Garrett County Historic Society and is interested in the history of that area.

Saeli said the request came from Irving E. Rollins who is at present compiling a book, "Touring the U. S. A.," which will carry the story about Accident.

This is how Accident got its name:

"A grant of land was given to Mr. George Deakins by King George of England in payment of a debt. According to the grant, Mr. Deakins was to receive 600 acres of land anywhere in Western Maryland that he chose.

"At that time Western Maryland consisted of land which later was divided into the counties of Washington, Allegany and Garrett. Mr. Deakins sent out two corps of engineers to survey the best land of Western Maryland that contained 600 acres. After surveying several plots the engineers returned with their maps of the different plots they had surveyed.

"To their surprise they had surveyed a tract of land starting at the same tall oak tree and returning to the starting point. This was the only tract surveyed by both corps of engineers, so Mr. Deakins chose this and had it patented, "The Accident Tract" — hence the name of the town."

Ancient man was subject to the same diseases as modern man.

Youth Who Shot Rabbi On "Dare" Gets 10-20 Years

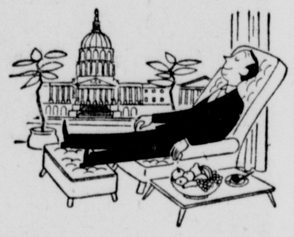

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP)—Donald Ferrick, 18, convicted three weeks ago of the "dare" shooting of a rabbi, was sentenced today to 10 to 20 years in prison—the maximum for first degree manslaughter.

The sentence came one day after he appeared on the witness stand and refused to testify against his pal, 18-year-old Edward Baldwin, who also is accused in the case.

Ferrick was convicted of shooting Rabbi Samuel London, 23, in a dark Brooklyn park one night last June with a .22 caliber rifle. The state contended he did it on a dare.

COLLEGE PARK, Md., March 25 (AP)—The largest crowd ever to attend a Spring Convocation at the University of Maryland heard a lecture on Maryland history by one of the state's leading editors and authors today.

The heritage left by the early settlers of Maryland is "the inalienable right of the common man to build himself to uncommon status," declared Neil H. Swanson, executive editor of the Baltimore Sunpapers.

About 4,500 crowded into Ritchie Coliseum for the ceremony. Only once before has there been a larger convocation audience on the campus—when Sen. Millard E. Tydings delivered an address on a similar theme to the Fall assembly in October of 1948.

Swanson made several references to the fact today's convocation came on Maryland Day, the 319th anniversary of the landing of the founders of the Maryland colony in St. Mary's County.

He advanced the idea there might never have been a United States had it not been for the part Marylanders played in colonial history.

Atom Scientist Dies Under Security Guard

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25 (AP)—The strange story of a trusted young atomic scientist, who died under close security guard lest he talk incoherently and reveal secret information, was disclosed today.

He was William C. Twitchell, 36, a native of Minnesota and project engineer in charge of the University of California radiation laboratory mechanical equipment.

Twitchell died at Letterman Army Hospital Monday of a malignant disease which had no connection with his work.

His presence at the hospital was a secret. His treatment at the hospital was itself unusual as he was a civilian without Army service.

A security guard was maintained for several days, it was learned, because Twitchell knew top secret information. The guard was present in case the scientist should talk in his semi-conscious state.

Van Fleet Is Guest Of Former Driver

AMARILLO, Tex., March 25 (AP)—Gen. James Van Fleet arrived today to vacation on a ranch as guest of an ex-sergeant who drove his jeep in Korea.

"Hi Nick," was the way the general greeted Nick Holt, his former driver and bodyguard in Korea. Holt is out of the Army now.

Van Fleet will be the guest of Holt and his father, banker Coy Holt, at the latter's ranch on the rolling plains near Gruver, a small town 100 miles north of Amarillo.

Mammoth Tusks Found

FLORENCE, Italy, March 25 (AP)—Two farmers plowed up part of the skeleton of a pre-historic mammoth with ivory tusks over seven feet long. Archaeologists said the tusks were the longest ever found in Italy.

"War" Bills Approved

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP) — The House today voted to extend the miscellaneous emergency powers enacted to facilitate prosecution of the Korean War.

McCarthy Tells Senate State Dept. Will Fire Bohlen's Brother-In-Law

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP) — Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) told the Senate today the State Department is about to fire Charles Thayer, brother-in-law of Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen, nominee as ambassador to Russia.

McCarthy said the department, under its new Republican management, also has fired Benjamin Buttenweiser whom he termed "the man in whose home Alger Hiss was harbored between his two trials involving treason and who was holding one of the top positions in the office of the high commissioner in Germany."

The senator said R. W. Scott McLeod, new State Department security officer, "caused the removal" of Buttenweiser and of Mrs. E. C. Carter "the $50 a day consultant whose husband headed the Communist controlled IPR (Institute of Pacific Relations, a private research group)."

McCarthy was fighting Senate approval of Bohlen for the Moscow post. He gave no explanation of why, he said, Thayer is to be fired.

He simply told the Senate:

"Another individual who has been ordered home and is, I understand, to be discharged is Charles Thayer, the former head of the 'Voice of America' whose activities as head of the 'Voice' are well known to the Senate."

Nor did he state the reasons for the reported dismissal of Buttenweiser and Mrs. Carter.

Hyndman Student Is Winner In Health Poster Contest

Danny Willison, a student at Hyndman-Londonderry (Pa.) School, has won top prize in the fourth annual health poster contest sponsored by the Bedford County Tuberculosis and Health Society.

Danny's poster topped a record field of 438 entries from seventh and eighth grade students in 26 Bedford County schools. It gives his school the Sammel trophy, which it may keep until next year's contest. For Danny, it meant one of the $5 first prizes given in each of the four contest classifications.

The schools were grouped as to size, with three prizes and an honorable mention provided in each class. Certificates of recognition were given all contestants.

Winners were:

Group I, first prize, Lynda Stabnau, Clearville School; second, Richard McCoy, Fishertown; third, Joyce Ann Miller, Woodbush; honorable mention, Dwight Winck, Woodbush.

Group II, first prize, Charlotte Bush, Woodbury Joint School; second, Jack Brantner, Breezewood; third, Melvin Roger Brantner, Breezewood; honorable mention, Frances Kauffman, Imler School.

Group III, first prize, Danny Willison, Hyndman-Londonderry; second, Nancy Werner, Chestnut Ridge; third, Lee Amick, Saxton Elementary; honorable mention, Carol Clapper, Stonerstown.

Group IV, first prize, Evelyn Fisher; second, Priscilla Johnson; third, Ronald Baker, all of Bedford High; honorable mention, Connie Gochnour, Everett High.

Winning posters will be displayed in the window of the Pennsylvania Electric Company in Bedford, April 1-13. Judges were Jess A. Calogero, Homer L. Obenouer and J. Murray Shollar, Altoona commercial artists.

How Did Accident Get Its Name?—It Was An Accident

Ever since a Roslindale, Mass. writer asked the local Chamber of Commerce to find out how the town of Accident got its name, the organization has probed every information source for several weeks.

Finally the information was obtained by Anthony Saeli, manager, who said this is only one of a hundred such requests received by the Chamber every month.

Saeli obtained the "story" of how Accident got its name from Francis A. Kenney, manager of the local office of the state Department of Employment Security, whose wife, the former Miss Lena Georg, is from the oddly-named town.

Mrs. Kenney, a graduate of Accident High School, happened to have an old issue of "Ax Eye," an official publication of the school, which contained the information. Mrs. Kenney is also a member of the Garrett County Historic Society and is interested in the history of that area.

Saeli said the request came from Irving E. Rollins who is at present compiling a book, "Touring the U. S. A.," which will carry the story about Accident.

This is how Accident got its name:

"A grant of land was given to Mr. George Deakins by King George of England in payment of a debt. According to the grant, Mr. Deakins was to receive 600 acres of land anywhere in Western Maryland that he chose.

"At that time Western Maryland consisted of land which later was divided into the counties of Washington, Allegany and Garrett. Mr. Deakins sent out two corps of engineers to survey the best land of Western Maryland that contained 600 acres. After surveying several plots the engineers returned with their maps of the different plots they had surveyed.

"To their surprise they had surveyed a tract of land starting at the same tall oak tree and returning to the starting point. This was the only tract surveyed by both corps of engineers, so Mr. Deakins chose this and had it patented, "The Accident Tract" — hence the name of the town."

Ancient man was subject to the same diseases as modern man.

Youth Who Shot Rabbi On "Dare" Gets 10-20 Years

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP)—Donald Ferrick, 18, convicted three weeks ago of the "dare" shooting of a rabbi, was sentenced today to 10 to 20 years in prison—the maximum for first degree manslaughter.

The sentence came one day after he appeared on the witness stand and refused to testify against his pal, 18-year-old Edward Baldwin, who also is accused in the case.

Ferrick was convicted of shooting Rabbi Samuel London, 23, in a dark Brooklyn park one night last June with a .22 caliber rifle. The state contended he did it on a dare.

Monty And Ike

The role of Field Marshal Montgomery, British deputy commander of North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in Europe, now visiting this country and Canada, symbolizes the shift in Anglo-American relationships in the post-World War II years. Marshal Montgomery now serves as the principal lieutenant of General Ridgway, supreme Allied commander for Western Europe. Not quite eight years ago, in early April 1945, Ridgway, then commanding the U. S. XVIII Airborne Corps, was temporarily assigned to Montgomery's 21st Army Group.

Montgomery became deputy NATO commander in March 1951 by appointment of General Eisenhower, then NATO supreme commander. The appointment occasioned considerable comment at the time; Montgomery had been much criticized for contentiousness in World War II.

Eisenhower himself—in "Crusade in Europe"—has called "fantastic" a proposition Montgomery advanced in early 1944 that "Monty" be given command of all Allied ground forces in France. But after the victory was won in Europe "Ike" wrote a letter warmly praising Montgomery:

"Your own high place among military leaders of your country is firmly fixed, and it has never been easy for me to disagree with what I knew to be your real convictions. But it will always be a great privilege to bear evidence to the fact that whenever decision was made, regardless of your personal opinion, your loyalty and efficiency in execution were to be counted upon with certainty." (This was written, Eisenhower later recorded, "with complete truth.")

Montgomery's military caution has been a subject of much postwar discussion. Ernest Hemingway, a World War II correspondent, makes the professional soldier's joke of calling a "Montgomery" a martini cocktail mixed in the proportion of 15 to 1. General Bradley in "A Soldier's Story" reports that he and the late General Patton once considered asking to be relieved of command over a row with Montgomery. But of Monty's caution, Bradley observes:

"In the fluid situation that was to obtain until the end of the war, Montgomery's luster was dimmed not by timidity as his critics allege, but by his apparent reluctance to squeeze the utmost advantage out of every gain or success. For Monty insisted upon a 'tidy' front even when tidiness forced him to slow down an advance."

On the same subject Eisenhower pointed out, "Those critics of Montgomery who assert that he sometimes failed to attain the maximum must at least admit that he never once sustained a major defeat. . . . And it is well to remember that caution and timidity are not synonymous, just as boldness and rashness are not!"

Montgomery wrote to General Eisenhower after victory had been won: "I owe much to your wise guidance and kindly forbearance. I know my own faults very well and I do not suppose I am an easy subordinate; I like to go my own way. But you have kept me on the rails in difficult and stormy times, and have taught me much. For all this I am very grateful."

Since the war Montgomery has differed publicly with Winston Churchill by saying America's entry was the only thing that saved Great Britain. And on January 8 last Montgomery declared that Britain should join the European Defense Community. The British Foreign Office disclaimed responsibility for the statement.

Expanding Russian Navy

The English, island-bred, respect sea power. So it is not surprising to find J. P. L. Thomas, first lord of the Admiralty, describing Russia's rising naval might to the House of Commons in very sober terms. As the civilian chief of the Royal Navy it is his duty to inform the House on what is happening in the naval world—and never to underestimate any threat to Britain, even though Britannia no longer rules the waves.

Thomas disclosed that a "very remarkable" increase in the speed of Soviet naval construction has brought the Russian navy in commission to a point where it is second only to the United States Navy. Britain has more warships than Russia but fewer in active service. So, said Thomas, it is "no use blinding ourselves to the fact that there is a very strongly armed and efficient Soviet navy with which to reckon."

The Russians are building submarines, destroyers and cruisers—especially cruisers, which they are turning out faster than all the other nations combined. They have at least 20 of these ships, more than 100 destroyers and more than 350 submarines. Thomas says that by far the greatest part of this strength is concentrated in the Baltic and in the northern area, but he is convinced that Russian capabilities are not limited to the defensive.

In fact, Thomas believes that with the help of its efficient air arm the Soviet navy could not only meet its defensive commitments in wartime but could lend powerful help to land and amphibious operations while waging an offensive campaign against Allied sea communications and ports. It could strike with surface craft, aircraft, mines, torpedoes, atomic bombs, and in time guided missiles.

This is looking ahead. But it is the business of the first lord of the Admiralty to look ahead. This evidence that the Soviet is determined to become a great naval power cannot be overlooked in Britain. Or in the United States.

Spring

This is spring. Store windows heralded its arrival several weeks ago with displays of gay gowns, coats and hats. The fair sex as usual refused to wait until the season of buds and blossoms made its official entry to don new attire. But the few who clung to winter raiment now have no alternative but to recognize that the calendar has marched on. Few among the gentler sex would risk their reputations as well-dressed individuals by wearing winter garments after March 21.

Dealers in seeds know that spring is here and home gardeners are busy preparing for the planting they hope will yield a bumper crop. The housewife also knows it is here as her thoughts turn, reticently perhaps, to coming days when that scraping, scrubbing job known as spring housecleaning must be tackled.

And girls whose thoughts are directed toward the month of brides and roses know that the season for collecting articles for a trousseau is at hand and that there is no time to lose.

Yes, spring is here. The calendar says so, stylemakers say so and all nature is preparing for the annual revivification of buds and flowers and plants.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Know Your Heredity

Now that most of us can expect to reach the biblical three score and ten, we should be able to obtain a more complete record of our hereditary tendencies. Some diseases such as cancer and diabetes "run in families" but they seldom appear until after age 50. Before the turn of the century only a small proportion of our population reach this decade and as a result their survivors were unable to state with certainty what conditions existed in their family trees.

Heredity is something that cannot be denied or changed. Some characteristics manifest themselves at birth, such as webbed fingers, extra toes, and rare types of neurological and mental disorders. Furthermore, we have dispelled most of the old wives' tales relative to the reason why children are born with certain defects. Thus a pregnant woman who sees a child with a harelip or is frightened by a rabbit as she walks down the road will not conceive a child with a harelip or cleft palate for this reason. We also know that like begets like and a woman with a long nose that has been corrected by plastic surgery can expect to have children whose nose resembles the original rather than the renovated model. Sheep tails have been cut for centuries yet little lambs continue to come into the world with long tails.

Not all diseases that "run in families" occur at birth. Infantile eczema, for example, generally comes on in the first year of life and then only when certain foods are consumed. In this instance it is allergy to cow's milk, wheat, or corn that is passed from one generation to another. There also is a hereditary aspect to rheumatic fever but it rarely appears before the age of five. Many authorities are of the opinion that we also inherit susceptibility to tuberculosis. If this were true, those destined to develop the malady are more likely to become victims when exposed. In these three disorders, environment plays as great a role as inheritance because the infant will not suffer from eczema unless he eats the sensitizing foods; and a child will not acquire rheumatic fever or tuberculosis unless exposed to the streptococcus or tubercle bacillus, respectively.

We inherit also the qualities that go into the development of high blood pressure and cancer. It is here that we should be able to make the most of our knowledge of heredity. Instead of being frightened by having a family history of such diseases we ought to take advantage of this forewarning and do everything within our power to delay the disturbance. Thus the man or woman whose forebears suffered from high blood pressure should acquaint himself with all the factors that increase tension and do what he can to eliminate them from his life. Such individuals never should get started in a harrassing business where the responsibilities are likely to be heavy. Those with diabetes in the family may be able to delay the onset for years by not becoming obese.

At present there is no way to avoid cancer. Persons with a family history of lung cancer may profit by avoiding cigarets and irritating gas and dust. For those whose parents had stomach malignancy a sensible diet may be of help. But beyond this, the members of a cancer family must rely upon early detection, which means paying strict attention to symptoms and having periodic examinations. There is a good possibility that in the future we will make better use of heredity.

TOMORROW: Emergency care of sick babies.

DENTAL CARIES

Mrs. D. writes: One of my children develops many more cavities in her teeth than do the other youngsters in the family. Have you any explanation for this?

REPLY

There appears to be an inherent susceptibility to dental caries and the rate varies from one child to another, even in the same family. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelopef or leaflet on dental caries.

POST-JAUNDICE EATING

L. Z. writes: If a person once has had jaundice must he be forever careful of what he eats?

REPLY

This is a moot question but most physicians recommend a normal, well balanced diet as soon as the liver returns to normal.

FROM INJURY

F. D. writes: What is traumatic neuritis?

REPLY

Irritation of the involved nerve through injury rather than infection.

PREMATURE BALDNESS

P. W. writes: Has ACTH been tried for premature baldness?

REPLY

I'm not certain, but it is likely as every other type of hormone has been tried to correct this condition. On the other hand, there is no reason to believe that ACTH will work even though it does increase the growth of facial hair in women who are given an overdose. But even in these instances, the effect is temporary because the drug is too potent to be taken forever.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Ike Worries About Budget And Taxes; Two Guests Are "At Home" In White House; Dulles Orders Personal Replies To State Department Mail

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower confessed to visiting congressmen the other day that he was having trouble cutting the budget.

"I guess it's a lot easier to balance the budget on the stump," blurted Ohio's brash Congressman Wayne Hays, referring to Eisenhower's campaign speeches on government economy.

The President's friendly grin suddenly froze.

"I never promised either to balance the budget or reduce taxes during the campaign," he said gravely. "I campaigned against waste in government, and I told my associates throughout the campaign that the issue was waste, not necessarily lower taxes."

Ike's Taxes

President Eisenhower, like everybody else last week, was complaining about high taxes. Only he was more private about it. He told an aide that the high taxes made it almost impossible for him to make both ends meet. Ike was especially unhappy because Congress now makes him pay taxes on his $50,000 expense money while President Truman got his expense money tax-free. Because of this change, Ike claimed he's paying an additional $39,000 a year in taxes. Despite all this, however, he's still against cutting taxes until the budget is balanced.

Incidentally, Harry Truman was able to save most all of his $50,000 tax-free expense money because he lived at Blair House, which is too small for big, expensive, White House receptions. When Truman left the White House, he had almost $200,000—most of it from his tax-free expense account.

FDR Jr. In White House

President Eisenhower was not surprised when two recent guests seemed very much at home in the White House. One was Democratic Congressman Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, whose father lived there longer than any other President in history. The other was GOP Congressman William Harrison of Wyoming, grandson of President William Henry Harrison.

Both, however, got a big thrill attending a "get-acquainted" luncheon with Ike and 18 House colleagues. When Ike modestly began asking young Roosevelt some questions about the White House interior, remarking that the New Yorker was a long-time occupant in his youth, Roosevelt hastened to explain:

"Actually, I wasn't here too much when father was President. I was away at school and then went into the Navy."

Another guest at the luncheon, Democratic Congressman Harley Staggers of West Virginia, couldn't resist getting in a friendly rib about the way Capitol Hill Republicans have been opposing some of Eisenhower's legislative proposals.

"Mr. President, we're all having a grand time at these luncheons you have been giving members of Congress," said Staggers, impishly. "I'm sure the luncheons are contributing to bipartisan understanding. If you keep it up, you'll probably get the support of your own party in Congress."

Ike started to reply, thought better of it, then broke into a hearty laugh.

State Department Mail

Secretary of State Dulles has issued a new order to his diplomats that has the State Department in a furor. The order is that all letters must be personally answered.

Since the State Department receives more than 10,000 letters a week in normal times, and up to around 100,000 letters when it's engaged in a controversy with McCarthy, this order means that State Department officials are doing nothing much but answer mail.

Sacks full of letters come in by the truckload and State Department officials now burn the midnight oil trying to dictate replies, whereas previously form letters were used to answer most of the mail.

Once before a secretary of State issued an order like this, and he didn't last long. He was Ed Stettinius, appointed Secretary of State in the last days of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Stettinius had just about everyone in the State Department answering letters, labored valiantly at this for months. Finally Truman replaced him.

Merry-Go-Round

Eisenhower's aides complain that ex-Sen. Harry Cain is taking up hours of their time in his frantic attempt to pressure them into giving him a job . . . Members of the Un-American Activities say privately that their forthcoming investigation of Hollywood will not produce any new sensations . . . Josephine Kearney of Gloversville, N. Y., was 97 years old on her last birthday, but she is still spry and full of advice for her son, GOP Congressman Pat Kearney. "Whatever success I have enjoyed," says Kearney, "I owe to my mother's counsel to go right ahead when I believe I am right, regardless of criticism." . . . Life in Washington would be a lot happier, says Congressman Jack Dempsey of New Mexico, if he could bring his dogs with him. Dempsey has five Norwegian Elkhounds at his home in Santa Fe . . . Senator Tobey's Waterfront Investigating Committee will crack down on the Coast Guard for lax security. The Coast Guard has issued credentials admitting nearly 600,000 people to restricted docks—including hundreds of gangsters and hoodlums—whom the committee considers security risks . . . Now that Veep Alben Barkley is a television commentator, he shows his new radio correspondent's card to friends, saying—"Look at me. I'm now a card-packin' commentator!"

The British Burden

The broad problem of war that we must face requires an analysis of the position of Great Britain, which is the principal American military base in Europe. Some British resent this fact; many Americans prefer to ignore it. It is this awkward geographical and military relationship which has laid Great Britain open to attack by Russian airpower, bombs and guided missiles.

No matter how much we may disagree with British policy, this one fact explains the British fears that American policy may lead to World War III, which the British may not be able to take. Two universal wars have destroyed the great British Empire and have deprived Britain of its prime position as leader among all nations. A third universal war could reduce Great Britain to a satellite of the victor, if any.

Great Britain's power was built upon its navy, which kept open the lanes of trade and commerce for all nations. Great Britain is now probably the third naval power, the United States being first and Soviet Russia, second. Even if Russian naval power is exaggerated, the peril is great.

The British are now engaged in a hot war in Malaya. That is an undramatic war that does not compete with Korea or French Indo-China in the news. It is sheer murder in those swamps. The Malayan war pins down about 25,000 British troops and both the British Pacific Fleet and the Far East Air Force.

The British maintain a considerable force in Hongkong to hold that island against the Chinese Communists. If Mao Tze-tung's hordes were ready to seize Hongkong, it would not be a difficult task. Hongkong is not easy to defend as the Japanese proved in the last war.

The British also hold a territory known as Kowloon, which is actually on the Chinese mainland. It is an almost impossible area to hold against millions of Chinese who live in Hongkong and Kowloon. Yet, they have managed to keep both, possibly by their temporizing policy, which has, to the Chinese Communists, the virtue of an open door to the non-Russian world.

The British are in Korea where by the end of 1952, they had suffered about 3,500 casualties. They have troops in Germany, in Austria, and in the Middle East.

The point of all this is that the British are convinced that they are doing about as much as their population and their reduced resources will permit. They desire that Americans understand that their problems are different from ours; that they no longer control colonies but are a member of a commonwealth of nations, the members of which are not bound by British decisions.

For instance, India, which is a member of the Commonwealth, has adopted a position of neutrality between the United States and Soviet Russia even in the matter of the Korean War. Every question of policy has to be referred to each of the Commonwealth nations for its own decisions. The British Empire, which in two wars drew troops from India, can no longer draw on any Commonwealth nation, each deciding what it will do in any situation.

Within Great Britain there is no unanimity of opinion as to the relations with the United States. The left wing Laborites, led by Aneurin Bevan, are definitely anti-American. They are opposed to capitalism, particularly the American type. The Churchill government's majority in Parliament is narrow and moves carefully, lest a change of government bring Bevan into power, which, from the American standpoint, could be catastrophic.

Add to Bevan is a sizable Communist contingent. As in the United States, Communist strength is not measurable in terms of party members, but in the strength of the feilow-travelers, particularly among the intellectuals who accept the doctrine of co-existence as correct. That is, tired of war, which cost Great Britain so much materially and even more in trained and educated manpower, these intellectuals prefer to accept peace with Russia in whatever form it may come. Thus, they often accept more hopefully than is realistically correct any suggestion from Russia that gives the impression that peace is immediately possible.

The tendency toward neutralism in British public opinion can no more be ignored by American statesman than by the British government. An overturn of government could produce a formal acceptance of neutralism at the wrong time. To avoid just that the Churchill and Eden government evades a showdown.

Matter Of Fact

Meeting With Malenkov?

WASHINGTON

A new approach to the Kremlin, to seek a Korean settlement and for other purposes, is being actively debated at the highest levels of the Eisenhower administration.

The debate started in the turmoil following the death of Stalin. The change of regime in Moscow caused an almost unprecedented stir here in Washington. Intelligence and other exports were dragged from their weekend pleasures. Ad hoc committees were appointed all over the place. The general view was that Stalin's death presented a great opportunity, because of the inevitable uncertainty and confusion in Moscow. But there was little agreement on how the opportunity ought to be exploited.

According to reliable report, C. D. Jackson, President Eisenhower's psychological warfare adviser, took the lead in proposing a major, formal new approach to the Kremlin at this time.

The idea soon took several forms, ranging all the way from a plan for a meeting of President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Malenkov and Prime Minister Churchill, with the possible addition of a French representative, to a project for a full-dress note to Moscow, declaring our own peaceful intentions and testing the intentions of the Kremlin. As can be seen, these earlier forms of the scheme for a new approach to the Kremlin had more than a tinge of psychological warfare.

Had Two Aims

The aim was to achieve results if possible, by an approach made in all sincerity. But the aim was also to demonstrate the insincerity of the Kremlin's renewed peace offensive, if the American approach should be rejected or should fail in the end.

The scheme is known to have awakened the lively interest of the President. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is also said to have given it a friendly reception in the first instance. But the State Department as a whole objected strongly to the manner, if not the matter, of the proposed new approach. The formality and the publicity—both needful from the standpoint of psychological warfare — were the aspects particularly condemned.

In the view of the State Department, formal and public negotiations with the Soviet Union almost never get results, whether conducted by note, or in the UN forum, or at special international conferences. If the desire is to achieve a Korean settlement or other solid gains, the department argues that the quietest possible diplomatic channels are the right channels to use.

Second, the department argues that any suggestion of Soviet-American talks at this time will be the death-knell of the European army and the new status of Germany. Secretary Dulles has made "substantial progress" with the European army, the prime test of Europe's good will. Even now, the French foreign minister, Georges Bidault, is stated to be intriguing with the followers of Gen. DeGaulle to block the European army. The French, particularly, will drag their feet indefinitely, if they have the excuse that the status of Germany may soon be directly discussed with the Soviet Union.

Would Recognize Malenkov

Third, the department also argues that any direct overture from Eisenhower to Malenkov will be a gift from heaven to the new Soviet prime minister, amounting, in effect, to the highest kind of recognition of Malenkov's standing as Stalin's heir.

While all these pros and cons are being elaborately weighed in Washington, there are numerous and very interesting signs that an American overture might be welcomed in Moscow. The famous "Hate-America" campaign was actually suspended, for the first time in months, for the 10 days after Stalin's death. It has now been renewed. Meanwhile, however, the theme of co-existence is being unusually strongly stressed, as instanced by the recent and astonishing Moscow reference to the success of the war-time alliance of this country, Britain and Russia.

Then too, the Soviet commander in Germany, Gen. Chuikov, positively expressed "regret" at the death of the crew of the British plane shot down in Germany. Meetings to avoid further incidents on the air borders have also been suggested. And Malenkov himself went out of his way, in his inaugural speech, to declare his willingness to talk peace with anybody, including this country.

In dealing with Russia, to be sure, most Westerners tend to be too much like poor Alice Ben Bolt, who "trembled with joy when given a smile and burst into tears at a frown." Yet it is also entirely logical for Malenkov and his colleagues in the Kremlin to want to ease world tensions for a while, and so to gain time to find their own feet.

The Kremlin may only be preparing another propaganda note of its own. But it may also be ready to pay a solid price, such as a Korean settlement, in order to gain a breathing spell. The possibility certainly deserves to be explored. In the present phase, sending Charles E. Bohlen to Moscow without further delay seems the most promising method of exploration.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — When Prime Minister Churchill announced the willingness of the government of Great Britain to accept the Soviet Union's suggestion that military representatives of both sides hold a conference to find a way to avoid clashes between airplanes at the border zones in occupied Germany, it could mean the beginning of a much wider discussion as to what are the territorial limits of a nation nowadays insofar as the air and the seas are concerned.

Traditionally international waters are everybody's beyond the three-mile limit, though in recent years there has been a tendency for domestic police purposes, such as smuggling, to impose a 12-mile limit. But with modern jet planes that fly 600 miles or more per hour, it is possible for planes to approach within 50 or 60 miles and within a matter of minutes to invade the territory of another nation, sometimes unwittingly and sometimes with the deliberate purpose of making photographs of fortifications, air fields, etc.

Contradicts Russian Charge

The other day Senator Flanders, Republican of Vermont, said he thought perhaps the U. S. Air Force bombers which tangled with Soviet jets near the coast of Siberia might not have been engaged in a weather reconnaissance mission but in some other useful work, and that he thought the purpose might have been more accurately stated. This raises the question of whether America is prepared to concede that her airplanes must stay away from a point as close as 25 miles from the Siberian coast, no matter what their mission.

The U. S. Air Force, on the other hand, contends that the air is everybody's jurisdiction and that no sovereignty was violated by American airplanes in the vicinity of Kamchatka. This contradicts the Russian charge that the American planes not only approached close to but actually flew over Russian territory.

There is no precedent which gives one nation the right to fire on foreign airplanes of any nationality when they come as close as 25 miles to its coast. For if that doctrine is to become the international law of the future, then it is more important to the United States than to the Soviet Union. Thus, foreign airplanes which come close to Alaska would be subject to being fired upon if they approach the territory of the United States, and the same principle would apply to foreign submarines. From time to time there have been reports that unknown submarines have come close to the American coasts or that they were sighted in waters close to American island possessions in the Pacific. If the new rule is that both the air and the sea are no longer international and that each nation judges for itself whether it will permit planes or submarines or other nations to traverse the air or the seas near to its bases of operation, then a new era in international discussion of territorial limits will have been begun.

The sensible thing is to lay the problem before an international conference such as was held at The Hague in 1907, when the first rules regarding maritime warfare were promulgated. There has always been a desire on the part of governments which are at peace with one another to explore possible areas of friction relating to the movement of ships during a period of war, and there is no reason why during a time of tension the same approach to an understanding should not be applied.

Check On Submarines

Hence, the conference suggested by the military commander of the Soviet Zone in Germany could lead to an agreement concerning the methods by which signals could be internatoinalized so as to prevent any planes from firing upon other planes without first giving the proper warnings. For, even with the best intentions, there will be cases where planes will stray from their accustomed routes of travel due to weather hazards or accidents of mechanical operation. At the moment, the British and American planes are staying 30 miles away from Soviet border zones in Germany.

So far as submarines are concerned, it is not too early to require that upon being signaled they should come to the surface for identification and that, if such repeated warnings go unheeded, there be an effort made to track down the submarine or otherwise prevent its further encroachment. For today there are radar and detection systems which enable navies to chart the location of submarines. Plainly, if there are no rules and the Soviet Union insists that no planes fly the air close to her territory except with her consent, the same line of reasoning might be applied to submarines. A state of international anarchy instead of peace might then ensue. The conference idea is a timely effort to prvent such a contingency.

Monty And Ike

The role of Field Marshal Montgomery, British deputy commander of North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in Europe, now visiting this country and Canada, symbolizes the shift in Anglo-American relationships in the post-World War II years. Marshal Montgomery now serves as the principal lieutenant of General Ridgway, supreme Allied commander for Western Europe. Not quite eight years ago, in early April 1945, Ridgway, then commanding the U. S. XVIII Airborne Corps, was temporarily assigned to Montgomery's 21st Army Group.

Montgomery became deputy NATO commander in March 1951 by appointment of General Eisenhower, then NATO supreme commander. The appointment occasioned considerable comment at the time; Montgomery had been much criticized for contentiousness in World War II.

Eisenhower himself—in "Crusade in Europe"—has called "fantastic" a proposition Montgomery advanced in early 1944 that "Monty" be given command of all Allied ground forces in France. But after the victory was won in Europe "Ike" wrote a letter warmly praising Montgomery:

"Your own high place among military leaders of your country is firmly fixed, and it has never been easy for me to disagree with what I knew to be your real convictions. But it will always be a great privilege to bear evidence to the fact that whenever decision was made, regardless of your personal opinion, your loyalty and efficiency in execution were to be counted upon with certainty." (This was written, Eisenhower later recorded, "with complete truth.")

Montgomery's military caution has been a subject of much postwar discussion. Ernest Hemingway, a World War II correspondent, makes the professional soldier's joke of calling a "Montgomery" a martini cocktail mixed in the proportion of 15 to 1. General Bradley in "A Soldier's Story" reports that he and the late General Patton once considered asking to be relieved of command over a row with Montgomery. But of Monty's caution, Bradley observes:

"In the fluid situation that was to obtain until the end of the war, Montgomery's luster was dimmed not by timidity as his critics allege, but by his apparent reluctance to squeeze the utmost advantage out of every gain or success. For Monty insisted upon a 'tidy' front even when tidiness forced him to slow down an advance."

On the same subject Eisenhower pointed out, "Those critics of Montgomery who assert that he sometimes failed to attain the maximum must at least admit that he never once sustained a major defeat. . . . And it is well to remember that caution and timidity are not synonymous, just as boldness and rashness are not!"

Montgomery wrote to General Eisenhower after victory had been won: "I owe much to your wise guidance and kindly forbearance. I know my own faults very well and I do not suppose I am an easy subordinate; I like to go my own way. But you have kept me on the rails in difficult and stormy times, and have taught me much. For all this I am very grateful."

Since the war Montgomery has differed publicly with Winston Churchill by saying America's entry was the only thing that saved Great Britain. And on January 8 last Montgomery declared that Britain should join the European Defense Community. The British Foreign Office disclaimed responsibility for the statement.

Expanding Russian Navy

The English, island-bred, respect sea power. So it is not surprising to find J. P. L. Thomas, first lord of the Admiralty, describing Russia's rising naval might to the House of Commons in very sober terms. As the civilian chief of the Royal Navy it is his duty to inform the House on what is happening in the naval world—and never to underestimate any threat to Britain, even though Britannia no longer rules the waves.

Thomas disclosed that a "very remarkable" increase in the speed of Soviet naval construction has brought the Russian navy in commission to a point where it is second only to the United States Navy. Britain has more warships than Russia but fewer in active service. So, said Thomas, it is "no use blinding ourselves to the fact that there is a very strongly armed and efficient Soviet navy with which to reckon."

The Russians are building submarines, destroyers and cruisers—especially cruisers, which they are turning out faster than all the other nations combined. They have at least 20 of these ships, more than 100 destroyers and more than 350 submarines. Thomas says that by far the greatest part of this strength is concentrated in the Baltic and in the northern area, but he is convinced that Russian capabilities are not limited to the defensive.

In fact, Thomas believes that with the help of its efficient air arm the Soviet navy could not only meet its defensive commitments in wartime but could lend powerful help to land and amphibious operations while waging an offensive campaign against Allied sea communications and ports. It could strike with surface craft, aircraft, mines, torpedoes, atomic bombs, and in time guided missiles.

This is looking ahead. But it is the business of the first lord of the Admiralty to look ahead. This evidence that the Soviet is determined to become a great naval power cannot be overlooked in Britain. Or in the United States.

Spring

This is spring. Store windows heralded its arrival several weeks ago with displays of gay gowns, coats and hats. The fair sex as usual refused to wait until the season of buds and blossoms made its official entry to don new attire. But the few who clung to winter raiment now have no alternative but to recognize that the calendar has marched on. Few among the gentler sex would risk their reputations as well-dressed individuals by wearing winter garments after March 21.

Dealers in seeds know that spring is here and home gardeners are busy preparing for the planting they hope will yield a bumper crop. The housewife also knows it is here as her thoughts turn, reticently perhaps, to coming days when that scraping, scrubbing job known as spring housecleaning must be tackled.

And girls whose thoughts are directed toward the month of brides and roses know that the season for collecting articles for a trousseau is at hand and that there is no time to lose.

Yes, spring is here. The calendar says so, stylemakers say so and all nature is preparing for the annual revivification of buds and flowers and plants.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Know Your Heredity

Now that most of us can expect to reach the biblical three score and ten, we should be able to obtain a more complete record of our hereditary tendencies. Some diseases such as cancer and diabetes "run in families" but they seldom appear until after age 50. Before the turn of the century only a small proportion of our population reach this decade and as a result their survivors were unable to state with certainty what conditions existed in their family trees.

Heredity is something that cannot be denied or changed. Some characteristics manifest themselves at birth, such as webbed fingers, extra toes, and rare types of neurological and mental disorders. Furthermore, we have dispelled most of the old wives' tales relative to the reason why children are born with certain defects. Thus a pregnant woman who sees a child with a harelip or is frightened by a rabbit as she walks down the road will not conceive a child with a harelip or cleft palate for this reason. We also know that like begets like and a woman with a long nose that has been corrected by plastic surgery can expect to have children whose nose resembles the original rather than the renovated model. Sheep tails have been cut for centuries yet little lambs continue to come into the world with long tails.

Not all diseases that "run in families" occur at birth. Infantile eczema, for example, generally comes on in the first year of life and then only when certain foods are consumed. In this instance it is allergy to cow's milk, wheat, or corn that is passed from one generation to another. There also is a hereditary aspect to rheumatic fever but it rarely appears before the age of five. Many authorities are of the opinion that we also inherit susceptibility to tuberculosis. If this were true, those destined to develop the malady are more likely to become victims when exposed. In these three disorders, environment plays as great a role as inheritance because the infant will not suffer from eczema unless he eats the sensitizing foods; and a child will not acquire rheumatic fever or tuberculosis unless exposed to the streptococcus or tubercle bacillus, respectively.

We inherit also the qualities that go into the development of high blood pressure and cancer. It is here that we should be able to make the most of our knowledge of heredity. Instead of being frightened by having a family history of such diseases we ought to take advantage of this forewarning and do everything within our power to delay the disturbance. Thus the man or woman whose forebears suffered from high blood pressure should acquaint himself with all the factors that increase tension and do what he can to eliminate them from his life. Such individuals never should get started in a harrassing business where the responsibilities are likely to be heavy. Those with diabetes in the family may be able to delay the onset for years by not becoming obese.

At present there is no way to avoid cancer. Persons with a family history of lung cancer may profit by avoiding cigarets and irritating gas and dust. For those whose parents had stomach malignancy a sensible diet may be of help. But beyond this, the members of a cancer family must rely upon early detection, which means paying strict attention to symptoms and having periodic examinations. There is a good possibility that in the future we will make better use of heredity.

TOMORROW: Emergency care of sick babies.

DENTAL CARIES

Mrs. D. writes: One of my children develops many more cavities in her teeth than do the other youngsters in the family. Have you any explanation for this?

REPLY

There appears to be an inherent susceptibility to dental caries and the rate varies from one child to another, even in the same family. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelopef or leaflet on dental caries.

POST-JAUNDICE EATING

L. Z. writes: If a person once has had jaundice must he be forever careful of what he eats?

REPLY

This is a moot question but most physicians recommend a normal, well balanced diet as soon as the liver returns to normal.

FROM INJURY

F. D. writes: What is traumatic neuritis?

REPLY

Irritation of the involved nerve through injury rather than infection.

PREMATURE BALDNESS

P. W. writes: Has ACTH been tried for premature baldness?

REPLY

I'm not certain, but it is likely as every other type of hormone has been tried to correct this condition. On the other hand, there is no reason to believe that ACTH will work even though it does increase the growth of facial hair in women who are given an overdose. But even in these instances, the effect is temporary because the drug is too potent to be taken forever.

Ike Worries About Budget And Taxes; Two Guests Are "At Home" In White House; Dulles Orders Personal Replies To State Department Mail

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower confessed to visiting congressmen the other day that he was having trouble cutting the budget.

"I guess it's a lot easier to balance the budget on the stump," blurted Ohio's brash Congressman Wayne Hays, referring to Eisenhower's campaign speeches on government economy.

The President's friendly grin suddenly froze.

"I never promised either to balance the budget or reduce taxes during the campaign," he said gravely. "I campaigned against waste in government, and I told my associates throughout the campaign that the issue was waste, not necessarily lower taxes."

Ike's Taxes

President Eisenhower, like everybody else last week, was complaining about high taxes. Only he was more private about it. He told an aide that the high taxes made it almost impossible for him to make both ends meet. Ike was especially unhappy because Congress now makes him pay taxes on his $50,000 expense money while President Truman got his expense money tax-free. Because of this change, Ike claimed he's paying an additional $39,000 a year in taxes. Despite all this, however, he's still against cutting taxes until the budget is balanced.

Incidentally, Harry Truman was able to save most all of his $50,000 tax-free expense money because he lived at Blair House, which is too small for big, expensive, White House receptions. When Truman left the White House, he had almost $200,000—most of it from his tax-free expense account.

FDR Jr. In White House

President Eisenhower was not surprised when two recent guests seemed very much at home in the White House. One was Democratic Congressman Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, whose father lived there longer than any other President in history. The other was GOP Congressman William Harrison of Wyoming, grandson of President William Henry Harrison.

Both, however, got a big thrill attending a "get-acquainted" luncheon with Ike and 18 House colleagues. When Ike modestly began asking young Roosevelt some questions about the White House interior, remarking that the New Yorker was a long-time occupant in his youth, Roosevelt hastened to explain:

"Actually, I wasn't here too much when father was President. I was away at school and then went into the Navy."

Another guest at the luncheon, Democratic Congressman Harley Staggers of West Virginia, couldn't resist getting in a friendly rib about the way Capitol Hill Republicans have been opposing some of Eisenhower's legislative proposals.

"Mr. President, we're all having a grand time at these luncheons you have been giving members of Congress," said Staggers, impishly. "I'm sure the luncheons are contributing to bipartisan understanding. If you keep it up, you'll probably get the support of your own party in Congress."

Ike started to reply, thought better of it, then broke into a hearty laugh.

State Department Mail

Secretary of State Dulles has issued a new order to his diplomats that has the State Department in a furor. The order is that all letters must be personally answered.

Once before a secretary of State issued an order like this, and he didn't last long. He was Ed Stettinius, appointed Secretary of State in the last days of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Stettinius had just about everyone in the State Department answering letters, labored valiantly at this for months. Finally Truman replaced him.

The British Burden

The broad problem of war that we must face requires an analysis of the position of Great Britain, which is the principal American military base in Europe. Some British resent this fact; many Americans prefer to ignore it. It is this awkward geographical and military relationship which has laid Great Britain open to attack by Russian airpower, bombs and guided missiles.

No matter how much we may disagree with British policy, this one fact explains the British fears that American policy may lead to World War III, which the British may not be able to take. Great Britain's power was built upon its navy, which kept open the lanes of trade and commerce for all nations. Great Britain is now probably the third naval power, the United States being first and Soviet Russia, second. Even if Russian naval power is exaggerated, the peril is great.

The British are now engaged in a hot war in Malaya. That is an undramatic war that does not compete with Korea or French Indo-China in the news. It is sheer murder in those swamps. The Malayan war pins down about 25,000 British troops and both the British Pacific Fleet and the Far East Air Force.

The British maintain a considerable force in Hongkong to hold that island against the Chinese Communists. If Mao Tze-tung's hordes were ready to seize Hongkong, it would not be a difficult task. Hongkong is not easy to defend as the Japanese proved in the last war.

The British also hold a territory known as Kowloon, which is actually on the Chinese mainland. It is an almost impossible area to hold against millions of Chinese who live in Hongkong and Kowloon. Yet, they have managed to keep both, possibly by their temporizing policy, which has, to the Chinese Communists, the virtue of an open door to the non-Russian world.

The British are in Korea where by the end of 1952, they had suffered about 3,500 casualties. They have troops in Germany, in Austria, and in the Middle East.

The point of all this is that the British are convinced that they are doing about as much as their population and their reduced resources will permit. They desire that Americans understand that their problems are different from ours; that they no longer control colonies but are a member of a commonwealth of nations, the members of which are not bound by British decisions.

For instance, India, which is a member of the Commonwealth, has adopted a position of neutrality between the United States and Soviet Russia even in the matter of the Korean War. Every question of policy has to be referred to each of the Commonwealth nations for its own decisions. The British Empire, which in two wars drew troops from India, can no longer draw on any Commonwealth nation, each deciding what it will do in any situation.

Within Great Britain there is no unanimity of opinion as to the relations with the United States. The left wing Laborites, led by Aneurin Bevan, are definitely anti-American. They are opposed to capitalism, particularly the American type. The Churchill government's majority in Parliament is narrow and moves carefully, lest a change of government bring Bevan into power, which, from the American standpoint, could be catastrophic.

Add to Bevan is a sizable Communist contingent. As in the United States, Communist strength is not measurable in terms of party members, but in the strength of the fellow-travelers, particularly among the intellectuals who accept the doctrine of co-existence as correct. That is, tired of war, which cost Great Britain so much materially and even more in trained and educated manpower, these intellectuals prefer to accept peace with Russia in whatever form it may come. Thus, they often accept more hopefully than is realistically correct any suggestion from Russia that gives the impression that peace is immediately possible.

The tendency toward neutralism in British public opinion can no more be ignored by American statesman than by the British government. An overturn of government could produce a formal acceptance of neutralism at the wrong time. To avoid just that the Churchill and Eden government evades a showdown.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

Meeting With Malenkov?

WASHINGTON

A new approach to the Kremlin, to seek a Korean settlement and for other purposes, is being actively debated at the highest levels of the Eisenhower administration.

The debate started in the turmoil following the death of Stalin. The change of regime in Moscow caused an almost unprecedented stir here in Washington. Intelligence and other exports were dragged from their weekend pleasures. Ad hoc committees were appointed all over the place. The general view was that Stalin's death presented a great opportunity, because of the inevitable uncertainty and confusion in Moscow. But there was little agreement on how the opportunity ought to be exploited.

According to reliable report, C. D. Jackson, President Eisenhower's psychological warfare adviser, took the lead in proposing a major, formal new approach to the Kremlin at this time.

The idea soon took several forms, ranging all the way from a plan for a meeting of President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Malenkov and Prime Minister Churchill, with the possible addition of a French representative, to a project for a full-dress note to Moscow, declaring our own peaceful intentions and testing the intentions of the Kremlin. As can be seen, these earlier forms of the scheme for a new approach to the Kremlin had more than a tinge of psychological warfare.

Had Two Aims

The aim was to achieve results if possible, by an approach made in all sincerity. But the aim was also to demonstrate the insincerity of the Kremlin's renewed peace offensive, if the American approach should be rejected or should fail in the end.

The scheme is known to have awakened the lively interest of the President. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is also said to have given it a friendly reception in the first instance. But the State Department as a whole objected strongly to the manner, if not the matter, of the proposed new approach. The formality and the publicity—both needful from the standpoint of psychological warfare — were the aspects particularly condemned.

In the view of the State Department, formal and public negotiations with the Soviet Union almost never get results, whether conducted by note, or in the UN forum, or at special international conferences. If the desire is to achieve a Korean settlement or other solid gains, the department argues that the quietest possible diplomatic channels are the right channels to use.

Second, the department argues that any suggestion of Soviet-American talks at this time will be the death-knell of the European army and the new status of Germany. Secretary Dulles has made "substantial progress" with the European army, the prime test of Europe's good will. Even now, the French foreign minister, Georges Bidault, is stated to be intriguing with the followers of Gen. DeGaulle to block the European army. The French, particularly, will drag their feet indefinitely, if they have the excuse that the status of Germany may soon be directly discussed with the Soviet Union.

Would Recognize Malenkov

Third, the department also argues that any direct overture from Eisenhower to Malenkov will be a gift from heaven to the new Soviet prime minister, amounting, in effect, to the highest kind of recognition of Malenkov's standing as Stalin's heir.

While all these pros and cons are being elaborately weighed in Washington, there are numerous and very interesting signs that an American overture might be welcomed in Moscow. The famous "Hate-America" campaign was actually suspended, for the first time in months, for the 10 days after Stalin's death. It has now been renewed. Meanwhile, however, the theme of co-existence is being unusually strongly stressed, as instanced by the recent and astonishing Moscow reference to the success of the war-time alliance of this country, Britain and Russia.

Then too, the Soviet commander in Germany, Gen. Chuikov, positively expressed "regret" at the death of the crew of the British plane shot down in Germany. Meetings to avoid further incidents on the air borders have also been suggested. And Malenkov himself went out of his way, in his inaugural speech, to declare his willingness to talk peace with anybody, including this country.

In dealing with Russia, to be sure, most Westerners tend to be too much like poor Alice Ben Bolt, who "trembled with joy when given a smile and burst into tears at a frown." Yet it is also entirely logical for Malenkov and his colleagues in the Kremlin to want to ease world tensions for a while, and so to gain time to find their own feet.

The Kremlin may only be preparing another propaganda note of its own. But it may also be ready to pay a solid price, such as a Korean settlement, in order to gain a breathing spell. The possibility certainly deserves to be explored. In the present phase, sending Charles E. Bohlen to Moscow without further delay seems the most promising method of exploration.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — When Prime Minister Churchill announced the willingness of the government of Great Britain to accept the Soviet Union's suggestion that military representatives of both sides hold a conference to find a way to avoid clashes between airplanes at the border zones in occupied Germany, it could mean the beginning of a much wider discussion as to what are the territorial limits of a nation nowadays insofar as the air and the seas are concerned.

Traditionally international waters are everybody's beyond the three-mile limit, though in recent years there has been a tendency for domestic police purposes, such as smuggling, to impose a 12-mile limit. But with modern jet planes that fly 600 miles or more per hour, it is possible for planes to approach within 50 or 60 miles and within a matter of minutes to invade the territory of another nation, sometimes unwittingly and sometimes with the deliberate purpose of making photographs of fortifications, air fields, etc.

Contradicts Russian Charge

The other day Senator Flanders, Republican of Vermont, said he thought perhaps the U. S. Air Force bombers which tangled with Soviet jets near the coast of Siberia might not have been engaged in a weather reconnaissance mission but in some other useful work, and that he thought the purpose might have been more accurately stated. This raises the question of whether America is prepared to concede that her airplanes must stay away from a point as close as 25 miles from the Siberian coast, no matter what their mission.

The U. S. Air Force, on the other hand, contends that the air is everybody's jurisdiction and that no sovereignty was violated by American airplanes in the vicinity of Kamchatka. This contradicts the Russian charge that the American planes not only approached close to but actually flew over Russian territory.

There is no precedent which gives one nation the right to fire on foreign airplanes of any nationality when they come as close as 25 miles to its coast. For if that doctrine is to become the international law of the future, then it is more important to the United States than to the Soviet Union. Thus, foreign airplanes which come close to Alaska would be subject to being fired upon if they approach the territory of the United States, and the same principle would apply to foreign submarines. From time to time there have been reports that unknown submarines have come close to the American coasts or that they were sighted in waters close to American island possessions in the Pacific. If the new rule is that both the air and the sea are no longer international and that each nation judges for itself whether it will permit planes or submarines or other nations to traverse the air or the seas near to its bases of operation, then a new era in international discussion of territorial limits will have been begun.

The sensible thing is to lay the problem before an international conference such as was held at The Hague in 1907, when the first rules regarding maritime warfare were promulgated. There has always been a desire on the part of governments which are at peace with one another to explore possible areas of friction relating to the movement of ships during a period of war, and there is no reason why during a time of tension the same approach to an understanding should not be applied.

Check On Submarines

Hence, the conference suggested by the military commander of the Soviet Zone in Germany could lead to an agreement concerning the methods by which signals could be internatoinalized so as to prevent any planes from firing upon other planes without first giving the proper warnings. For, even with the best intentions, there will be cases where planes will stray from their accustomed routes of travel due to weather hazards or accidents of mechanical operation. At the moment, the British and American planes are staying 30 miles away from Soviet border zones in Germany.

So far as submarines are concerned, it is not too early to require that upon being signaled they should come to the surface for identification and that, if such repeated warnings go unheeded, there be an effort made to track down the submarine or otherwise prevent its further encroachment. For today there are radar and detection systems which enable navies to chart the location of submarines. Plainly, if there are no rules and the Soviet Union insists that no planes fly the air close to her territory except with her consent, the same line of reasoning might be applied to submarines. A state of international anarchy instead of peace might then ensue. The conference idea is a timely effort to prvent such a contingency.

Our Judiciary Committee in the House of Representatives has approved a bill giving President Eisenhower certain "emergency" powers.

Some members, including myself, felt a certain reluctance in approving legislation such as this. The powers given the President are necessary because of the Korean War. If it were not for existenee of a declared emergency, many of them would be unconstitutional.

It is to be hoped that this is the last extension of Presidential emergency powers, that the war will soon be won and ended. I should like to get rid of this "government by emergency" as soon as possible.

While in Brunswick to visit the Lions Club meeting last week, I had a good opportunity to inspect the town's post office building. As reported to me earlier, the building was in very bad condition, and I shall do everything possible to help secure a new one.

Establishment of a joint, Senate-House committee to make a thorough study of the public transportation and the companies engaged in public transit in Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland is good news to both citizens and congressmen in the area. Public officials, the companies concerned and residents should and will do all they can to co-operate with the committee.

Much time is being spent by all Republican members of Congress answering questions and helping individuals who are seeking employment in the federal service. The key to the problem is "patience." Recently, Mr. Wes Roberts, chairman of the Republican National Committee, attended a meeting of all the new members of Congress and reminded us that the biggest personnel job in the world is involved.

When the New Deal came to power in 1933, Mr. Roberts said, there were only 500,000 jobs in the federal government, most of them, of course, under Civil Service. But today there are 2,500,000, making the task of new placement five times as big.

I am looking forward to another visit to Frederick on April 8, to address a meeting of the Rotary Club. And I hope many of you in Western Maryland will take advantage of the spring weather and forthcoming school vacations to come to Washington and visit the Capitol.

EXTRA TRICK IS COSTLY

FREQUENTLY a fine card player will fail, in a duplicate tournament, to make a contract which he would be virtually certain to handle successfully if he had been engaged in rubber bridge. The reason is that, upon sizing up the situation, he estimates that other players in the same contract would seek to make an extra trick or tricks, especially if the chances favor success in the endeavor. But if it doesn't work, then besides failing to get the extra trick, he even doesn't take the number for which he had bid.

Where a pair was committed to not opening with a four-card major suit, South decided to use 2-Clubs instead of 2-No Trumps to launch the action on this deal. It resulted in North instead of South being the declarer. He was Raymond P. Duggan, one of the best of the new crop of duplicate players around New York, and he profited from the unorthodox opening bid by his wife. East opened the heart 5. The Q won and the spade J was sent through to the Q. When back in, he led another spade, driving out the A, and as a consequence was able to get two tricks in that suit, or ten all told, to have a big top score on the deal.

Most other pairs opened with 2-No Trumps by South, who became declarer in a No Trump game. Peculiarly not one of them made it. West led the club Q, on which South held up. Then the club J went to the K, East discarding the spade 2. All of these declarers went to dummy with a red suit card to lead the spade J, which the Q won. The club return eliminated South's last stopper. The other red suit was a dummy re-entry to lead a second spade in the hope that East had the A. When West won that trick, he cashed two more clubs to beat the contract, entirely because South was striving for an extra trick.

Probably all of those Souths would have made that game in rubber bridge. After winning the second club, they could cash three tricks each in the red suits and the other club top, then throw West in with a club from dummy. West could score two clubs then and the spade A, but would have to give South the game trick with the spade K.

Cumberland Country Club To Have Easter Hunt, Dinner

The first Easter Hunt for the children is being inaugurated by the Cumberland Country Club this year.

Plans are to have the affair on the lawn, separating the children into two groups. Children from one year of age through six year of age will have their hunt in one section, while children from seven years of age through 12 years will be in another section.

In case of rain the hunt will be inside the club house. Each child may bring one guest.

There will be three prizes for each group. They are for the child finding the most eggs, the child finding the "golden egg;" and the child finding the "silver egg."

The hunt is to start at 2 p. m. Easter Sunday.

There also will be refreshments for the children after the hunt.

A buffet dinner is being served for all club members at 5:30 p. m.

Reservations are to be made for both the hunt and the dinner. They should be made at the club by April 3.

Allegany Vocal Groups Sing Friday

The 25th annual spring concert of the vocal groups of Allegany High School is being presented tomorrow evening in the school auditorium, It will begin at 8:15 o'clock. No admission will be charged, Miss Dorothy Willison, director, said last night it "is our Easter gift to the community."

The first half of the program will portray the Easter story, from Palm Sunday, through the Last Supper and the Crucifixion, to the triumphant resurrection of Jesus Christ. A churchly effect has been achieved by the use of an alter, choir robes and stained glass windows.

Secular selections will be sung by the groups for the second part. Miss Willison and Morris O'Neill are directing.

Opening with "The Plams," the first part includes "The Holy City" and "Agnus Dei," by the school choir; "O Bread of Life," by the Musettes; "Were You There?" by the choir; "All in the April Evening," the Octer; and "Easter Morning," the choir.

Following the intermission, "All in the Golden Afternoon," and "Those Hours with You" will be sung with Carolyn Deck, soloist, and "Crawdad Song," by the Choral Club; "I Got Shoes," "A Rockin' All Night," "Tell Me Why," by the Boys Quarter; "Beautiful Dreamer," "Some Enchanted Evening," by the Musettes; "Go, Song of Mine," and "Donkey Serenade," by the Octet; "The Cry of the Wild Goose," "At Parting," and "Younger than Springtime," by the Glee Club; and close with "Ride the Chariot," by the choir.

$67,083 Paid In Feb. For County Welfare

Garrett Expenditures Amount To $24,710

Allegany County expended $67,083.60 for its public welfare program last month according to a financial and statistical report by the State Department of Public Welfare.

Garrett County's expenditures during February amounted to $24,710.58.

Last month Allegany County spent $25,740.61 to assist 658 old age persons with each receiving an average grant of $39.12. Garrett County gave each of 261 old aged persons an average of $37.49 totaling $9,784.51.

There were 779 dependent children in 289 families assisted in February costing Allegany County a total of $24,839.91. Each family received an average of $85.95. In Garrett County 365 dependent children in 127 families were assisted with $10,543.21. Each family received an average of $83.02

There were 22 needy blind persons assisted in Allegany County with each receiving an average grant of $44.17 totaling $971.79. Four Garrett County needy blind persons were assisted with each receiving an average of $59 totaling $236.

A total of $7,110.56 was spent in Allegany County for aid to 171 permanently and totally disabled individuals with each receiving an average of $41.58. Eighty disabled persons in Garrett County were assisted with each receiving an average of $36.85 totaling $2,947.78.

An average of $44.17 was given to each of 128 cases from the general public assistance funds in Allegany County totaling $5,653.83. Garrett County assisted 22 cases from the general public assistance funds with each case receiving an average payment of $34.46 totaling $758.08.

A total of $2,766.90 was spent in Allegany County last month for the foster care of 67 children with each child receiving an average payment of $41.30. Garrett County expended $441 for the foster care of 11 children with each child granted an average payment of $40.09.

able size to Cumberland, the median pay for policemen equals $3,327 compared to $3,234 for Cumberland policemen.

"2. Out of 213 cities of comparable size to Cumberland, the median pay for firemen equals $3,323; for Cumberland firemen, $3,234.

Tax Hike Necessary

"(d) The Finance Commissioner says the only way he can see to get the money needed if the five-day week bill passes is to increase the tax rate. We now have the highest tax rate in the state. Hagerstown has a county and city tax rate of $2.00, Baltimore $2.80, Cumberland $3.10. Added to this is a 6¼ cents state tax rate. (The citizens of Cumberland will also share in any increased tax rate for School Bonds.)"

(e) Other expenditures, pledged, planned and anticipated will further advance the city's tax rate when the July budget is prepared, Mrs. Roeder said, adding that a new fire truck already ordered will add about 2½ cents. Changes the Mayor is considering in remodeling the council chamber and other parts of the City Hall will add another cent, she pointed out, while still another half cent is needed to make improvements and repairs to the City Hall Annex.

Mrs. Roeder also pointed out:

Present trends indicate it will cost the city $10,000 annually to operate pumps and siphons in the flood control system, that it appears more flood control bonds must be sold almost immediately to finance bridges and other installations of the flood job for which the city is obligated, this adding around five cents.

Other Increases Seen

The $350,000 Frederick Street bond issue will add another four cents, Mrs. Roeder said, and still another two cents will be added if the proposed $150,000 industrial belt bill goes through.

The $88,000 surplus the city started the year with appears to have been exhausted, said Mrs. Roeder, and when this fiscal year ends, the city auditor indicates the surplus will be less than one-third of that amount, indicating a tax increase of 13 cents to replace it.

Altogether, these items show the city's tax rate, already $1.28, will increase about 27 cents in the operating account and 11 cents for debt service, Mrs. Roeder predicted, adding that this means the city's tax rate next year will be $1.66 instead of the present $1.28 if the Mayor and Council continues to spend in the manner indicated and if orders such as these two are passed.

School Board Wants Bids On Two Buses

The Allegany County Board of Education will receive bids until 10 a.m. Thursday, April 9, for two new buses to be used at the opening of the 1953-54 school year in the Cresaptown area.

Detailed specifications may be obtained from Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of transportation after Monday.

the House Delegates would have made it illegal to sell or give these guns to anyone in the two counties.

Fails To Concur

The House of Delegates failed yestrday to concur in a Senate Amendment that would have given the Allegany County register of wills a pay raise to $6,000 annually.

As passed in the House of Delegates originally the bill applied only to the register of wills in Caroline County. Senate amendments also included Allegany and Washington Counties. The Senate passed the amended bill Tuesday.

Delegates sent the measure back to the Senate after failing to concur to the Senate amendment adding Allegany and Washington Counties. The delegates said they did not have time at this late date to study the amendments. A conference may be arranged later.

Loyalty Bill

Enacted into law Tuesday by the Senate was House Bill 178, introduced by Delegate Lester B. Reed of Mt. Savage, calling for the discharge of any state officer or employe who refuses to answer questions on grounds of self incrimination. The bill now awaits Governor Theodore R. McKeldin's signature.

Garrett Hospital Bill

Expansion of the relatively new Garrett County Memorial Hospital would be made possible by a bill introduced into the State Senate Tuesday at Annapolis.

The measure, sponsored by Senator Neil C. Fraley of Garrett County, would authorize the Garrett County Commissioners to borrow $200,000 for the construction of an addition to the institution.

Sunday Sports Bill

The Garrett County delegation has also introduced two measures providing for Sunday activities in that county.

House Bill 760 would legalize golf, baseball, and stock car racing between 1 and 6 p. m. on Sundays in Garrett County unless they would interfere with a special church service in the vicinity.

House Bill 759 would legalize stock car racing in Garrett County subject to a $75 license fee.

Oakland Bill

Another bill affecting Garrett County is Senate Bill 451 introduced by Senator Fraley that would authorize the mayor and town council of Oakland to borrow for general purposes of the town and relating generally to provisions applicable for such borrowing.

Stock Market Takes Drop With Motors Focal Point

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP) — A major effort to rally failed today in the Stock Market and prices were down all around at the close.

The focal point of the selling was the motor division with Chrysler the special target.

Selling came into Chrysler after the company announced price cuts of $100 on each of its models. At the close it was down 2⅞ at 84⅝.

Down along with the motors were railroads, steels, aircrafts and a long list of individual issues.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 30 cents and stood at $115.00 at the close. The industrial component of the average was off 50 cents, railroads were off 40 cents, and utilities managed to hold unchanged.

Many well placed issues resisted the pressure. Gulf Oil was up ⅛ at 49⅜. It reported record high revenue in 1952 with profits equal to $6.01 a share as against $5.94 the previous year.

Southern Railway, with good earnings, managed to hold to a gain of 1⅛ at 90⅝ after getting as high as 92.

Willys-Overland suffered in the general fall with the common off ⅜ at 14⅞ and the preferred down 2¼ at 96¾. Kaiser-Frazer on the American gained ⅛ at 5⅝. The companies yesterday disclosed merger details.

Sunray Oil, which has a share in the Persian Gulf development with Pacific Western, was the day's most active issue up ⅛ at 21¼.

It was followed by Alleghany Corp. unchanged at 5⅛, Willys-Overland, Loew's unchanged at 14, and Pacific Western Oil unchanged at 36⅜.

Allegany County expended $67,083.60 for its public welfare program last month according to a financial and statistical report by the State Department of Public Welfare.

Garrett County's expenditures during February amounted to $24,710.58.

Last month Allegany County spent $25,740.61 to assist 658 old age persons with each receiving an average grant of $39.12. Garrett County gave each of 261 old aged persons an average of $37.49 totaling $9,784.51.

There were 779 dependent children in 289 families assisted in February costing Allegany County a total of $24,839.91. Each family received an average of $85.95. In Garrett County 365 dependent children in 127 families were assisted with $10,543.21. Each family received an average of $83.02

There were 22 needy blind persons assisted in Allegany County with each receiving an average grant of $44.17 totaling $971.79. Four Garrett County needy blind persons were assisted with each receiving an average of $59 totaling $236.

A total of $7,110.56 was spent in Allegany County for aid to 171 permanently and totally disabled individuals with each receiving an average of $41.58. Eighty disabled persons in Garrett County were assisted with each receiving an average of $36.85 totaling $2,947.78.

able size to Cumberland, the median pay for policemen equals $3,327 compared to $3,234 for Cumberland policemen.

"2. Out of 213 cities of comparable size to Cumberland, the median pay for firemen equals $3,323; for Cumberland firemen, $3,234.

Tax Hike Necessary

"(d) The Finance Commissioner says the only way he can see to get the money needed if the five-day week bill passes is to increase the tax rate. We now have the highest tax rate in the state. Hagerstown has a county and city tax rate of $2.00, Baltimore $2.80, Cumberland $3.10. Added to this is a 6¼ cents state tax rate. (The citizens of Cumberland will also share in any increased tax rate for School Bonds.)"

(e) Other expenditures, pledged, planned and anticipated will further advance the city's tax rate when the July budget is prepared, Mrs. Roeder said, adding that a new fire truck already ordered will add about 2½ cents. Changes the Mayor is considering in remodeling the council chamber and other parts of the City Hall will add another cent, she pointed out, while still another half cent is needed to make improvements and repairs to the City Hall Annex.

Mrs. Roeder also pointed out:

Present trends indicate it will cost the city $10,000 annually to operate pumps and siphons in the flood control system, that it appears more flood control bonds must be sold almost immediately to finance bridges and other installations of the flood job for which the city is obligated, this adding around five cents.

Other Increases Seen

The $350,000 Frederick Street bond issue will add another four cents, Mrs. Roeder said, and still another two cents will be added if the proposed $150,000 industrial belt bill goes through.

The $88,000 surplus the city started the year with appears to have been exhausted, said Mrs. Roeder, and when this fiscal year ends, the city auditor indicates the surplus will be less than one-third of that amount, indicating a tax increase of 13 cents to replace it.

Altogether, these items show the city's tax rate, already $1.28, will increase about 27 cents in the operating account and 11 cents for debt service, Mrs. Roeder predicted, adding that this means the city's tax rate next year will be $1.66 instead of the present $1.28 if the Mayor and Council continues to spend in the manner indicated and if orders such as these two are passed.

School Board Wants Bids On Two Buses

The Allegany County Board of Education will receive bids until 10 a.m. Thursday, April 9, for two new buses to be used at the opening of the 1953-54 school year in the Cresaptown area.

Detailed specifications may be obtained from Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of transportation after Monday.

the House Delegates would have made it illegal to sell or give these guns to anyone in the two counties.

Fails To Concur

The House of Delegates failed yestrday to concur in a Senate Amendment that would have given the Allegany County register of wills a pay raise to $6,000 annually.

As passed in the House of Delegates originally the bill applied only to the register of wills in Caroline County. Senate amendments also included Allegany and Washington Counties. The Senate passed the amended bill Tuesday.

Delegates sent the measure back to the Senate after failing to concur to the Senate amendment adding Allegany and Washington Counties. The delegates said they did not have time at this late date to study the amendments. A conference may be arranged later.

Loyalty Bill

Enacted into law Tuesday by the Senate was House Bill 178, introduced by Delegate Lester B. Reed of Mt. Savage, calling for the discharge of any state officer or employe who refuses to answer questions on grounds of self incrimination. The bill now awaits Governor Theodore R. McKeldin's signature.

Garrett Hospital Bill

Expansion of the relatively new Garrett County Memorial Hospital would be made possible by a bill introduced into the State Senate Tuesday at Annapolis.

The measure, sponsored by Senator Neil C. Fraley of Garrett County, would authorize the Garrett County Commissioners to borrow $200,000 for the construction of an addition to the institution.

Sunday Sports Bill

The Garrett County delegation has also introduced two measures providing for Sunday activities in that county.

House Bill 760 would legalize golf, baseball, and stock car racing between 1 and 6 p. m. on Sundays in Garrett County unless they would interfere with a special church service in the vicinity.

House Bill 759 would legalize stock car racing in Garrett County subject to a $75 license fee.

Oakland Bill

Another bill affecting Garrett County is Senate Bill 451 introduced by Senator Fraley that would authorize the mayor and town council of Oakland to borrow for general purposes of the town and relating generally to provisions applicable for such borrowing.

Stock Market Takes Drop With Motors Focal Point

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP) — A major effort to rally failed today in the Stock Market and prices were down all around at the close.

The focal point of the selling was the motor division with Chrysler the special target.

Selling came into Chrysler after the company announced price cuts of $100 on each of its models. At the close it was down 2⅞ at 84⅝.

Down along with the motors were railroads, steels, aircrafts and a long list of individual issues.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 30 cents and stood at $115.00 at the close. The industrial component of the average was off 50 cents, railroads were off 40 cents, and utilities managed to hold unchanged.

Many well placed issues resisted the pressure. Gulf Oil was up ⅛ at 49⅜. It reported record high revenue in 1952 with profits equal to $6.01 a share as against $5.94 the previous year.

Southern Railway, with good earnings, managed to hold to a gain of 1⅛ at 90⅝ after getting as high as 92.

Willys-Overland suffered in the general fall with the common off ⅜ at 14⅞ and the preferred down 2¼ at 96¾. Kaiser-Frazer on the American gained ⅛ at 5⅝. The companies yesterday disclosed merger details.

Sunray Oil, which has a share in the Persian Gulf development with Pacific Western, was the day's most active issue up ⅛ at 21¼.

City Industrial "Memento" Set For Va. Exhibit

A memento of Cumberland, prepared by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, will be displayed in the American Industrial Exhibit in Norfolk, Va., April 6 through 12, to be known in Norfolk as Freedom Week.

The City of Norfolk, throughout the week, will join with the Navy in observance of the establishment in Norfolk of the Supreme Allied Command, Atlantic (SACLANT) of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The exhibit will be a highlight of the observance.

Cumberland is one of a number of representative American cities invited to submit a memento of the community. At the conclusion of the observance, its memento, along with those of other cities, will be permanently displayed in the Norfolk Museum of Arts and Sciences.

Cumberland's entry consists of two "permanized" plastic panels. The upper panel is a lay-out of photos and printed matter stressing Cumberland's diversified industry and its potential for further industrial development.

A story head says "Cumberland Sends Its Products to the Whole World." An aerial view is captioned "Area Has Good Industry Sites." A view of the downtown business section is captioned "Hub of Large Retail Market." A second group of photos shows typical industrial scenes.

The lower panel contains an alphabetical list of 68 Cumberland industries, from airtronics to woodworking, with the name and address of each industry.

This list, the Chamber points out, will be of great interest to manufacturers' representatives and to purchasing agents of NATO, who will attend the exhibit in Norfolk.

Alcohi Speech Contest Is Won By Houck

Douglas Houck, senior, speaking on "The World We Want," won first place in the Allegany High School speech contest held in senior high assembly yesterday morning.

The English Department, under the direction of Miss Virginia Dixon, sponsored the competition as an outgrowth of the speech unit studied in the senior high classes.

The judges accorded second honors to Herbert Gaither, junior, who spoke on "Stalin." In the finals also were three senior girls, Janet Bloom, whose subject was "Education: Key to a Better Democracy," Nancy Long, "Education: Key to a Better Democracy," and Shirley Messman, "What America Means to Me."

Gold and silver medals were presented to the first and second winners by Raymond O. McCullough, principal. The contestants were rated on a percentage basis for content, delivery and language.

Judges were Lewyn C. Davis, supervisor of junior high schools in Allegany County; Mrs. John Lower, housewife, and Thomas N. Berry, attorney.

Engine, 21 Cars Are Derailed

A B&O steam locomotive and 21 cars enroute from Winchester to Brunswick left the tracks and were scattered along the railroad's right-of-way about a quarter-mile south of the Jordan Springs overpass at Stephenson, Va., Tuesday.

Crewmen escaped injury, but loss in equipment and merchandise ran into the thousands of dollars. A broken rail was blamed for the accident.

Freight officials said the train was pulling a load of 5,285 tons and was comprised of 59 loaded cars, nine empties and two engines with coal tenders.

The wheel of a car near the front of the train apparently hit a broken rail and left the track, derailing the second engine and breaking the train apart. The front engine stayed on the rails and continued ahead undamaged.

A spokesman said the round-trip train included cars of building stone, sawed timber, logs and tank cars of vinegar. All crewmen were from Brunswick.

One of the derailed cars hit a telegraph pole along the track, disrupting the railroad company's communications between Winchester and Brunswick.

City Industrial "Memento" Set For Va. Exhibit

A memento of Cumberland, prepared by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, will be displayed in the American Industrial Exhibit in Norfolk, Va., April 6 through 12, to be known in Norfolk as Freedom Week.

The City of Norfolk, throughout the week, will join with the Navy in observance of the establishment in Norfolk of the Supreme Allied Command, Atlantic (SACLANT) of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The exhibit will be a highlight of the observance.

Cumberland is one of a number of representative American cities invited to submit a memento of the community. At the conclusion of the observance, its memento, along with those of other cities, will be permanently displayed in the Norfolk Museum of Arts and Sciences.

Cumberland's entry consists of two "permanized" plastic panels. The upper panel is a lay-out of photos and printed matter stressing Cumberland's diversified industry and its potential for further industrial development.

A story head says "Cumberland Sends Its Products to the Whole World." An aerial view is captioned "Area Has Good Industry Sites." A view of the downtown business section is captioned "Hub of Large Retail Market." A second group of photos shows typical industrial scenes.

The lower panel contains an alphabetical list of 68 Cumberland industries, from airtronics to woodworking, with the name and address of each industry.

This list, the Chamber points out, will be of great interest to manufacturers' representatives and to purchasing agents of NATO, who will attend the exhibit in Norfolk.

Alcohi Speech Contest Is Won By Houck

Douglas Houck, senior, speaking on "The World We Want," won first place in the Allegany High School speech contest held in senior high assembly yesterday morning.

The English Department, under the direction of Miss Virginia Dixon, sponsored the competition as an outgrowth of the speech unit studied in the senior high classes.

The judges accorded second honors to Herbert Gaither, junior, who spoke on "Stalin." In the finals also were three senior girls, Janet Bloom, whose subject was "Education: Key to a Better Democracy," Nancy Long, "Education: Key to a Better Democracy," and Shirley Messman, "What America Means to Me."

Gold and silver medals were presented to the first and second winners by Raymond O. McCullough, principal. The contestants were rated on a percentage basis for content, delivery and language.

Judges were Lewyn C. Davis, supervisor of junior high schools in Allegany County; Mrs. John Lower, housewife, and Thomas N. Berry, attorney.

Rec Department Forms Afternoon Art Class

The Recreation Department is sponsoring an art instruction class each Friday from 2 to 4 p. m. at the Art Center, 117 Baltimore Street.

Robert E. Pence, recreation director, said Mrs. Max Bastian is instructor and the class is part of the department's policy to develop a well-rounded program including cultural events.

The class is open to any one and a small fee of 25 cents for each lesson, payable only when present, is charged.

The new program is designed to take care of those unable to attend art classes sponsored by the Adult Education Group at Fort Hill High School in the evenings, Pence said.

Engine, 21 Cars Are Derailed

A B&O steam locomotive and 21 cars enroute from Winchester to Brunswick left the tracks and were scattered along the railroad's right-of-way about a quarter-mile south of the Jordan Springs overpass at Stephenson, Va., Tuesday.

Crewmen escaped injury, but loss in equipment and merchandise ran into the thousands of dollars. A broken rail was blamed for the accident.

Freight officials said the train was pulling a load of 5,285 tons and was comprised of 59 loaded cars, nine empties and two engines with coal tenders.

The wheel of a car near the front of the train apparently hit a broken rail and left the track, derailing the second engine and breaking the train apart. The front engine stayed on the rails and continued ahead undamaged.

A spokesman said the round-trip train included cars of building stone, sawed timber, logs and tank cars of vinegar. All crewmen were from Brunswick.

One of the derailed cars hit a telegraph pole along the track, disrupting the railroad company's communications between Winchester and Brunswick.

GI Who Pleaded For Ammo Slain

NORFOLK, Va., March 25 (AP)—A soldier whose last letter home contained a plea for "smuggled" ammunition with the appeal, "Don't let me down," has been killed in action in Korea, his parents were notified yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hutton of nearby Princess Anne said they were notified yesterday of the death during the Little Gibraltar action March 17 of their son, Sgt. First Class William Floyd Hutton Jr., 20.

In an air mail letter home shortly before his death, Sgt. Hutton asked for "some .38 special ammunition," his parents said. They quoted more of the letter as saying:

"When you send me my socks, I want you to smuggle me some .38 special ammo. I know you aren't supposed to do it. But you can get it through. I really need it. Don't let me down. It will get there because it is being done every day."

Mrs. Hutton said today she did not send the ammunition. She said it worried her, though, because she was afraid she'd let her son down.

Pair Convicted Of Cream Theft

BALTIMORE, March 25 (AP) — A trucker and a dairy supervisory employe were convicted in Criminal Court here yesterday of stealing nearly 6,000 gallons of cream worth more than $17,000 from the Green Spring Dairy.

Arthur H. Taylor, 40-year-old trucker from Delta, Pa., pleaded guilty to the charge, and was convicted along with Park Leslie Gardner of Joppa, Md., Green Spring employe, who pleaded innocent.

Taylor testified that he delivered milk daily to the dairy and once each week took from the loading platform two to six ten-gallon cans of cream placed there by Gardner.

He said he sold the cream to dairies in Dover, Pa., and split the proceeds with Gardner.

Gardner denied any part in the theft and said his only contact with Taylor was to sell him occasional amounts of waste milk products. Prosecutor James F. Price said the cream thefts occurred between October of 1951 and last June.

Judge James K. Cullen deferred sentencing.

My New York
by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—One of the phenomena that are indigenous (this is up-lifted culture day) to big cities and especially to Manhattan is the midnight disc jockey. This is a man who sits for three or four hours, or until just before dawn, in one saloon or other and plays phonograph records and converses with guests.

The backgrounds of men like these are varied and, sometimes, dismaying; they seem to be unemployed actors, frustrated soapbox orators who became homeless when Columbus Circle was streamlined for traffic, unsuccessful comics, displaced actresses and so on. The common denominators are a penchant for gabbing and at least a small streak of exhibitionism.

Most of New York these days seems to be listening to one particular deejay (and that's about as revolting a new word as I have seen.) His name is Henry Morgan and he is a radio comedian of sorts from away back whose chief claim to popular fame heretofore is that he was the first wireless performer of any stature to insult his sponsors. He was hooting at sponsors, I am told, long before the man named Godfrey was doing likewise, and Godfrey has never approached the bitter, sardonic reverie that Morgan wraps himself in when he is cutting the commercials to ribbons.

I mention Morgan today because I have been listening to him for the last couple of weeks after returning home from wandering disconsolately among the city saloons —and I suspect that I have uncovered a genuine blown-in-the-bottle sadist. There are, of course, millions of sadists in the world today but very few of them flaunt their peculriarity so publicly as Morgan.

Morgan broadcasts nightly from a place called Hutton's in west midtown and he is distinguishable immediately from the run of deejays (ugh) because he is intelligent, sometimes funny and nearly always entertaining—in a macabre way. He is reasonably relaxed, interrupts his gabbing about once an hour to play a record and rarely blows his top. Visibly, that is. He just fumes silently.

His evident sadism came mildly to my attention in 1948 when his wife divorced him and said he once had pounded on the door of the bathroom, where she was, and had yelled in a heavy accent, "Poor lady! Your husband, he just has been killed in a terrible auto accident." It's funny to be sure, but gruesome, too. Then, just a while ago I tuned in on him and listened to him put Phyllis Hill, the actress, on a white-hot griddle.

Miss Hill is wed to Jose Ferrer and their marriage has been reported on the rocks many times, in the gossip columns. Rosemary Clooney, a singer, has been the Other Woman cited most of the time. So—when Phyllis turned up as Morgan's guest, he promptly began to question her at long length about Jose and Rosemary and their own marriage and so on. Miss Hill has been trying desperately—and succeeding—not to talk about her confused marriage in print. Blandly, old Morgan fixed that up in five minutes. I realize he did it for shock value—it makes people gasp—but I also suspect he did it because in his detached way he likes to watch people squirm.

Subsequent listenings confirmed my opinion; one night I heard him rake Taylor Caldwell, the writer, over the coals in a genteel way. Miss Caldwell, it is true, was kind of trite and stuffy, making her an easy mark for Morgan—but in his world-weary, your-don't-say way, he got, I am sure, a vicarious charge of some kind or other by cutting her up. He was a little kinder with an actor named Ralph Meeker, from "Picnic," whom he poked at continually until he got Meeker to take off his shirt and disclose the muscled torso that figures prominently in Meeker's play.

Now somewhere around 40, Morgan can say this to himself: his life hasn't been dull. Reportedly his enterprising sarcasm has lost him countless sponsors, such as the time he said of a dancing spot that advertised as only 45 minutes from Times Square, "Yes—45 minutes if you're starting from Times Square on a triple overdrive motorcycle."

Of himself, Morgan has said "I guess I knock a lot of things other people like. That's always got me into trouble." The thing that concerns me, though, is how he gets to sleep after having used his verbal scalpel to lay open some raw and gaping wounds on the poor, dopey guests who come before him.

Well—maybe all he wants to do is get people to listen to him. He's succeeded. I still do, personally. However, remember, I'm a man who invariably heads for the cobra cage when I visit the zoo.

Reporting The Committee

We'll explain that so simply a moran can chin it.

First three are legislative, judicial and executive. Now you can sweeten it with the investigative.

Congress is investigating everything that creeps, crawls or crosstown transfers.

If you're not on a committee in Congress you are baby-sitting for the ghost at the feast.

Right now Congress is investigating claim that our Korean artillery touched off fireworks for visiting congressmen. You do this with mirrors.

If a train is late in Grand Central Station they investigate. If it's on time in Long Island Station they investigate.

Moth balls used to be made of camphor and were sometimes called camphor balls. Nowadays they are made of naphthalene or some other petroleum product.

Will your new hat be as flattering as it should be? Yes—If you follow the tips outlined here today!

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

Current hat fashions are especially lovely to look at in your hand. Georgeous bits of fluff created for soft effects, luscious materials in subtle colors with especially feminine touches, they are the epitome of come-hither prettiness.

But on the head, a hat is something else—only as pretty as it looks on you! What makes a hat flattering? First of all, its color must complement and compli-your complexion. And second, its lines must emphasize your best facial conformation and minimize less attractive characteristics.

Hat Flattery

The colors now offered are as wide as the spectrum. Inspired by the coronation are flame, vivid purple, golden yellow and vibrant blue. Fashion also recommends hot pink, lettuce green, pinky beige, shiny white and black, navy accented with dashing hues and the palest, milky pastels. Seek out the shade that picks up your underlying skin tone and amplifies it. Therein lies the surest color flattery.

Selecting a becoming line is easier than in many a year because shapes are soft, undulating and asymmetrical — hat features that are always easy on feminine features.

Just be sure that the brow line or brim curve repeats a good line of your face and counteracts the face line you like least. Whether the style is a cap, sailor, watteau, plateau, bonnet or cloche you can accomplish this coup if you search.

One Example

As an example, a face with a too-pointed chin but with nicely molded cheek bones will present itself in its best aspects in a sailors with a slightly undulating brim. The unwanted chin angle fades into the background but the lovely bony contour is accented .

Let your hat choice also display your clothes sense; this it will do if it fulfills the mood of your costume.

With a simplified costume silhouette, you provide the dramatic dash when a bit of frou-frou bedecks your head. You will find it subtly provided in bodies fashioned of lace, net, organdy, taffeta or sheer straw and in trims of velvet ribbon, "hothouse" flowers, swathes of chiffon, rhinestone dustings or maline facings.

With flattery and fashion combined, your new hat is sure to win you not only attention but the most admiring and envious kind!

My New York
by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—One of the phenomena that are indigenous (this is up-lifted culture day) to big cities and especially to Manhattan is the midnight disc jockey. This is a man who sits for three or four hours, or until just before dawn, in one saloon or other and plays phonograph records and converses with guests.

The backgrounds of men like these are varied and, sometimes, dismaying; they seem to be unemployed actors, frustrated soapbox orators who became homeless when Columbus Circle was streamlined for traffic, unsuccessful comics, displaced actresses and so on. The common denominators are a penchant for gabbing and at least a small streak of exhibitionism.

Most of New York these days seems to be listening to one particular deejay (and that's about as revolting a new word as I have seen.) His name is Henry Morgan and he is a radio comedian of sorts from away back whose chief claim to popular fame heretofore is that he was the first wireless performer of any stature to insult his sponsors. Administration Opens Up 1,400 Postmaster Jobs

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP) — The administration today opened up more than 1,400 choice postmaster appointments for brand new examinations, by junking eligibility exams for these places held during the past few months.

Republicans eager for federal patronage after 20 years out of power have been complaining that present lists of persons eligible for postmaster appointments are heavily weighted with Democrats.

A joint announcement by Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield and Civil Service Chairman Phillip Young said the aim of today's move was to "establish higher standards of eligibility."

This, they asserted, would be done by including business experience "or comparable training" as a qualification and requiring a higher passing point in the civil service examinatiions.

Postmasters get appointments by taking competitive examinations, the top three in each such examination being certified to the White House as eligible for nomination. The President makes the selection from among the three.

The proposed new and stiffer exams have been completed and the top men certified for presidential consideration for 829 jobs. In 573 other postoffices, the tests are in progress but certifications have not been made. The examinations have been scheduled for 140 other cities and 142 others are awaiting the fixing of dates.

Current postmaster vacancies include the nation's No. 1 and No. 2 offices — New York and Chicago—but examinations have not been held for those places.

Indians On 'Warpath' Again, Saying Whites Rooked Them

By JERRY KLEIN
Central Press Correspondent

MONTPERIER, Vt.—From all over the country there is word of new "Indian uprisings." The Indians are on the warpath over the wrongs done their people by the white men who seized tribal hunting grounds.

In Vermont, for example, Iroquois Indians are demanding $1,200,000 for more than two million acres grabbed from their fathers just after the Revolutionary war. Today this land comprises Vermont's five northwestern counties, including the cities of Montpelier, Rutland, Burlington and Barre.

The Vermont Iroquois have been asking payment for 154 years, but the state legislature has always turned them away. Finally, however, the legislature has appointed a commissioner to investigate the claim.

The Indians' lawyer, Roland Stevens, says the Iroquois never legally ceded their lands, and he hopes to win some $600 for each of about 2,000 descendants of the original land-owners.

To help the Iroquois win their case, citizens have formed an organization with a funny name but a serious purpose—the "Give Vermont Back To The Indians Committee."

Representatives of the GVBIC recently visited the reservation on which the Indians live. They found them "poverty-stricken" and decided to use part of the contributions received by the committee "to provide for schools, plumbing, and better living conditions."

A committee trustee, William Nickerson, said that at first the Indians were suspicious of the committee. However, then they spied the committee's buttons which read: "Give Vermont Back to the Indians."

These little green-and-white buttons are given to all who contribute to the organization. Nickerson says some of the Indians wanted to donate a few cents themselves.

Vermont isn't the first state to hear rumblings of discontent from the Iroquois Indians lately. Across the border in neighboring New York recently, the Iroquois expressed sharp dissatisfaction with the amount of calico cloth given them under a 1794 treaty of peace with the United States.

Under this treaty, the Indians are given $4,500 worth of calico a year "forever" in payment for lands taken from them after the Revolutionary war. However, the Iroquois claimed that because of high prices, $4,500 worth of calico doesn't go nearly so far as it used to.

Chief William Rockwell, whose Indian name is Lone Bear, says the government should either reduce prices or increase the amount of cloth given to his people.

In Connecticut, Indian representative John Hamilton of Hartford asked the state legislature to pay his tribe for land taken by the early settlers. He warned that unless Connectucut makes the payments specified in the old treaties of peace, the Mohegan Indians will sue the state.

Hamilton said the Mohegans still have not released their claims to three large tracts of land in Northern Connecticut. This disputed acreage includes such cities as Norwich and New London.

Twice recently, the United States has honored these old claims. The Indian Claims Commissions ruled not long ago that the government owes the Kaw Indians $2,493,688 for lands taken from them in Kansas and Nebraska.

The commission found the Kaws had been deprived of 6,559,040 acres under a treaty signed in 1846. The Indians were given a few thousand acres elsewhere in return, but the commission ruled that this payment was "so grossly inadequate as to constitute an unconsionable consideration."

A Utah court ordered payment of $31,938,673 to the Ute Indians for land taken from them by treaty in the 1880's. The first installment on this debt already has been paid in the form of $1,000 checks made out to members of the Ute tribe.

Motorist Injured When Train Hits Car

FREDERICK, March 25 (AP) — Harry Butler, 72, of Linwood, Carroll County, was injured today when his car and a Western Maryland passenger train collided at a Linwood grade crossing.

A Union Bridge Volunteer Fire Company ambulance brought Butler to Frederick Memorial Hospital. Doctors said he suffered shock, contusions of the left hip, shoulder and chest, and head lacerations.

This was not the end of the story, however.

As the ambulance left the hospital for the return trip to Union Bridge, it backfired and burst into flames.

The Frederick Fire Department had to put out the blaze which damaged the ambulance too severely to drive.

Administration Opens Up 1,400 Postmaster Jobs

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP) — The administration today opened up more than 1,400 choice postmaster appointments for brand new examinations, by junking eligibility exams for these places held during the past few months.

Republicans eager for federal patronage after 20 years out of power have been complaining that present lists of persons eligible for postmaster appointments are heavily weighted with Democrats.

A joint announcement by Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield and Civil Service Chairman Phillip Young said the aim of today's move was to "establish higher standards of eligibility."

This, they asserted, would be done by including business experience "or comparable training" as a qualification and requiring a higher passing point in the civil service examinatiions.

Postmasters get appointments by taking competitive examinations, the top three in each such examination being certified to the White House as eligible for nomination. The President makes the selection from among the three.

The proposed new and stiffer exams have been completed and the top men certified for presidential consideration for 829 jobs. In 573 other postoffices, the tests are in progress but certifications have not been made. The examinations have been scheduled for 140 other cities and 142 others are awaiting the fixing of dates.

Current postmaster vacancies include the nation's No. 1 and No. 2 offices — New York and Chicago—but examinations have not been held for those places.

Indians On 'Warpath' Again, Saying Whites Rooked Them

By JERRY KLEIN
Central Press Correspondent

MONTPERIER, Vt.—From all over the country there is word of new "Indian uprisings." The Indians are on the warpath over the wrongs done their people by the white men who seized tribal hunting grounds.

In Vermont, for example, Iroquois Indians are demanding $1,200,000 for more than two million acres grabbed from their fathers just after the Revolutionary war. Today this land comprises Vermont's five northwestern counties, including the cities of Montpelier, Rutland, Burlington and Barre.

The Vermont Iroquois have been asking payment for 154 years, but the state legislature has always turned them away. Finally, however, the legislature has appointed a commissioner to investigate the claim.

The Indians' lawyer, Roland Stevens, says the Iroquois never legally ceded their lands, and he hopes to win some $600 for each of about 2,000 descendants of the original land-owners.

To help the Iroquois win their case, citizens have formed an organization with a funny name but a serious purpose—the "Give Vermont Back To The Indians Committee."

Representatives of the GVBIC recently visited the reservation on which the Indians live. They found them "poverty-stricken" and decided to use part of the contributions received by the committee "to provide for schools, plumbing, and better living conditions."

A committee trustee, William Nickerson, said that at first the Indians were suspicious of the committee. However, then they spied the committee's buttons which read: "Give Vermont Back to the Indians."

These little green-and-white buttons are given to all who contribute to the organization. Nickerson says some of the Indians wanted to donate a few cents themselves.

Mount Savage Admitted To Bi-State Baseball Conference

School Nines Open 72-Game Slate Apr. 13

Circuit Starts 15th Year With Nine Teams; Play 3 Days A Week

Mt. Savage High School was unanimously admitted to the Bi-State Baseball Conference at a meeting of the organization last night at Allegany High School. Walter L. "Bill" Bowers, president of the schoolboy circuit, presided at the session.

Mt. Savage thus became the ninth school to join the conference and the teams will play a 72-game schedule this year, opening Monday, April 13.

Original plans were to open later in the season, Bowers explained last night, but when Savage asked admittance to the circuit and the vote was approved, the league opening was moved up several days.

The coming 1953 campaign will be the 15th for the high school loop which began in 1939 when Keyser captured the first flag.

Charter members of the 1939 season still with the league are LaSalle, Fort Hill, Allegany, Beall of Frostburg and Hyndman. Other members of the circuit are Bruce High of Westernport, Flintstone, Central of Lonaconing and Mt. Savage. Keyser no longer belongs to the league.

Allegany County teams have captured the league title every year except 1939 and 1949 when Hyndman won the diadem. Beall High's Mountaineers are defending champions, having copped the title the past three seasons.

Attending last night's session and voting for approval of the schedule drawn up by Brother Joseph of LaSalle were John Thomas, Mt. Savage; Orville Jackson, Flintstone; Eddie Finzel, Beall; Augie Eichhorn, Bruce; Brother Joseph, LaSalle; Bobby Cavanaugh, Fort Hill; Lloyd Keller and Ed McVicker, Hyndman; John Meyers, Central; and James Hosack, subbing for Hubert Radcliffe, Allegany.

Worsham Qualifies For Tourney Of Champs

LAS VEGAS, Nev., March 25 (INS) — Another golfer was added today to the list of qualifiers for the $35,000 Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas, making the total 18.

Latest addition to the field is Lew Worsham, former National PGA titlist, who qualified by winning the Jacksonville Open last weekend.

Girls To Meet

Central Lunch girls softball team will meet at the DOKK hall, North Mechanic Street, tonight at 8 o'clock, the team's management announced last night. All members are urgently requested to attend the conference.

As You Were

(This is the 106th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

Whenever baseball as played in the George's Creek region in the "good old days" is discussed this man is frequently mentioned. He was regarded as the most colorful leader in the long history of the national pastime in Allegany county. In fact, he was Frostburg's "Mr. Baseball."

Born in Consol Village, near Frostburg, he began his baseball career about 75 years ago as a catcher in the days when games were played on Hoffman Hill. At that time the catcher wore no glove and he toiled back of the plate barehanded. "Razzle" Hoffman was recognized as Frostburg's first curve ball pitcher in those days.

This gentleman handled the managerial reins of Frostburg baseball teams longer than any other person. He was the John J. McGraw type of leader — a "fighting manager" if there ever was one. One of his chief rivals was James F. "Jimmy" McGuire, player-manager of the Lonaconing Giants and there usually was plenty of excitement when these two diamond "master minds" matched wits. He also managed the Midland Mighties for several seasons.

When oil was discovered in Pennsylvania he acquired a well in the Keystone State but that investment proved a failure when workmen blew the bottom out of it while experimenting with nitro-glycerin and he returned to Frostburg.

This noted baseball leader was the owner of the St. Cloud Hotel, which he purchased from Cornelius Lynch, his step-father, and that hostelry became recognized as the mecca for the sporting fraternity. In his younger days he worked as a clerk for the Consol Coal Company and at the time of his death he was an investigator for the Maryland Industrial Accident Commission. He was active in Democratic politics and his wife, who was Dora Koegel of Cumberland, was a prominent civic worker in the Mountain City.

He stepped down as manager of the Frostburg Demons team at the close of the 1914 season when he was 58. The following year J. Glenn Beall, present United States Senator, and Frank Spates took over the direction of the team. Spates piloted the club in 1915 and Pat Brophy was the leader in 1916. Among the players on the last team skippered by the man pictured here were Catcher Edward J. Ryan, now a well known Cumberland attorney; Frank Colley, pitcher, and now sports editor of the Hagerstown Herald; Johnny East, Johnny Salb, Charley Dye, Pat Brophy, "Shug" Doyle, "Crabby" Williams, Mike Hoban, Enoch Logsdon, Bill Riggins, Bill Jenkins, Charley Price, Preston and Dando.

Do you know the name of this man?

WOW Wins Two

Woodmen of the World scored a 2-1 victory over Fisher-Robinette last night in a men's national shuffleboard league match. Bill Gibson had 31 points for the victors while Robinette scored 26 for the losers.

Gene Shields, student manager of the TCU football team last year, plays No. 1 on the Frog golf team.

Advance To Finals In YMCA Cage Tourney

Stoop's Restaurant, Lou Bell's Five and Columbia Cash Grocery scored victories last night in semi-final games in the Central YMCA Gold Medal basketball tournament.

Stoop's captured the Junior Division final berth with a thrilling 65-58 decision over Casselman Motors, coming from behind in the last quarter to grab the victory.

The battle was close all the way with the score tied 16-all in the first quarter and Casselman's leading 30-28 and 44-41 at the close of the next two periods. Bob Kirk paced the victorious Stoop's quintet with 20 points and Billy Davis racked up 17.

Casselman's Charles Ringer tallied 21 markers for high honors and Mark Fruehan had 17 for the losers.

In the 115-Pound opening game last night Lou Bell's Five turned back Windsor Barber Shop, 46-30 as Ronnie Turner garnered 15 points. Neil Smith had 16 tallies for the losers.

Advancing to the finals in the 135-Pound division Columbia Cash Grocery edged Wojy's Denny's, 57-55, when Jimmy Long dumped in a one-hander with six seconds to play to break a 55-all deadlock.

Long and Teammate John Raupach shared scoring honors for Columbia with 13 points apiece. Sisk had 20 points and Ken Carder 16 to pace the losers.

Men's Shuffleboard Race Ends Tonight

Six matches are scheduled tonight as the Allegany County Men's Shuffleboard League lowers the curtain on its regular 1952-53 schedule.

Cumberland's Amvet's, (56-19) leading by a full game, meet the Frostburg K. of C. in the Mountain City.

Purple Heart, tied with the Cumberland V.F.W. for the runner-up position at 55-20, tests the Golden Nugget at Frostburg. The local Vets host the Frostburg American Legion.

All Stadium Inn of Frostburg needs to clinch fourth place and a spot in the playoffs is one win on three games with the Mt. Savage VFW on the latter's board.

Stadium Inn must lose all three games and Alhambra must sweep three from the Hi-Dee Club for a fourth place tie. Stadium Inn's record is 52-23 while Alhambra has won 49 and lost 26.

In another match tonight, the Goodfellowship Club is at Hann's Tavern.

Colts, Browns Swap 15 Players In NFL Trade

Both Squads Helped Team Coaches Say

CLEVELAND, March 25 (AP)—The Cleveland Browns today swapped 10 players to the Baltimore Colts for five in a trade each coach felt would be a "big help" to his National Football League club.

The Browns obtained only one player they are sure of having next season — Defensive Tackle Don Colo, six-foot-five, 260-pounder who played last season for the Dallas Texans, whose franchise has been moved to Baltimore.

The other new Browns are Tackle Mike McCormack and Guard Herschel Forrester, former Dallas players now in military service which will last beyond the coming season; Halfback John Petitbon, who went from Notre Dame to Dallas and is expecting a military call; and Center Tom Catlin of Oklahoma, whose status with the armed forces won't be clarified until after his graduation.

Of the 10 players sent to Baltimore, only four ever wore Browns' uniforms. Just two of those were used much last season — Safety Man Bert Rechichar, Tennessee halfback who was the Browns' No. 1 college draft choice a year ago, and Guard Ed Sharkey, obtained from Dallas last spring and a veteran of four pro football seasons. Halfbacks Carl Taseff and Don Schula, who returned late last season from military service, played for Cleveland in 1951 after college football at John Carroll here.

The Colts got Harry Agganis, Boston College passing ace currently under contract to the Boston Red Sox American League baseball club. The quarterback reportedly got $40,000 for signing a baseball contract which the Red Sox said forbids him to play pro football.

The remaining five players dealt to the Colts by the Browns were Guard Elmer Willhoite, University of Southern California; Art Spinney, Boston College end getting out of the armed forces; Gern Nagler, Santa Clara end; and Tackles Owen Scheetz, Penn State co-captain, and Dick Batten, College of the Pacific.

Academic Group Seeks Ban On Oklahoma A&M, Bradley

Athletic Malpractices Cited As Reasons

CHICAGO, March 25 (AP)—Oklahoma A & M, king-pin of the Missouri Valley Conference, and independent Bradley today were threatened with expulsion from the nation's strongest academic accrediting association mostly for alleged athletic malpractices.

The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools received a recommendation from its Commission on Colleges and Universities that the two schools be disaccredited.

Aggies Are Cage Power

Oklahoma A & M, where Coach Hank Iba's basketball teams have been perennial powers, was charged with subsidizing athletes and otherwise ignoring the North Central's strict athletic code. The commission recommended Oklahoma A & M be dropped from the list of accredited institutions effective July 1, 1953.

Bradley, located at Peoria, Ill., was said to be conducting an unsatisfactory athletic program and having educational weaknesses. It was recommended Bradley be placed on probation for the 1953-54 school year.

The recommendations will go to the association's Executive Committee for ratification and then be submitted to a general session of the association's annual meeting Friday.

The association is a 19-state group of 368 colleges and universities. Its academic approval is vital for prestige in the educational world and loss of accreditation would seriously handicap students or faculty members seeking to transfer to accredited schools.

The action was the first crackdown by the NCA since the group last summer announced a program of strict reforms drafted by the association's Committee on Athletics.

Quit Missouri Valley

The charge against Oklahoma A & M, located at Stillwater, Okla., alleged that the school emphasized athletics "as a means for securing public support," that it lacked faculty control of athletic policy and that athletes were subsidized.

It was another buffet for Bradley who had several players involved in the far-flung basketball scandals. The judge in the game-rigging trial in New York verbally lashed Bradley for what he termed loose athletic practices.

Bradley last year quit the Missouri Valley Conference. The North Central accusation said Bradley was "moving vigorously" towards correcting its athletic program, but had yet to place it on a satisfactory basis.

J. A. Edge, the lawyer, filed the dismissal motion at Lexington and Judge H. Church Ford set April 15 for a hearing. Edge did not give a reason for his latest action.

YESTERDAY he stalled!
TODAY he didn't!

Esso Extra Gasoline made the difference

The reason is that Esso Extra Gasoline... and only Esso Extra now contains an added ingredient... a built-in anti-freeze to prevent one of the commonest kinds of stalling. This kind of stalling is caused by "carburetor icing." It can happen to nearly all cars in damp, cool weather (30° to 55°), and can't be cured by a mechanic. Esso Extra is especially good in cars with automatic transmissions where restarting after stalling is more troublesome.

In addition to this protection, you get Esso Extra's famous combination of qualities... quick starting, fast warm-up, high anti-knock, power, and long mileage... everything you need for Happy Motoring from the instant you touch the starter. Is it any wonder more motorists use Esso Extra than any other premium gasoline in the area served by Esso Dealers?

Mt. Savage High School was unanimously admitted to the Bi-State Baseball Conference at a meeting of the organization last night at Allegany High School. Walter L. "Bill" Bowers, president of the schoolboy circuit, presided at the session.

Mt. Savage thus became the ninth school to join the conference and the teams will play a 72-game schedule this year, opening Monday, April 13.

Original plans were to open later in the season, Bowers explained last night, but when Savage asked admittance to the circuit and the vote was approved, the league opening was moved up several days.

Girls To Meet

Central Lunch girls softball team will meet at the DOKK hall, North Mechanic Street, tonight at 8 o'clock, the team's management announced last night. All members are urgently requested to attend the conference.

As You Were

(This is the 106th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

Whenever baseball as played in the George's Creek region in the "good old days" is discussed this man is frequently mentioned. He was regarded as the most colorful leader in the long history of the national pastime in Allegany county. In fact, he was Frostburg's "Mr. Baseball."

Born in Consol Village, near Frostburg, he began his baseball career about 75 years ago as a catcher in the days when games were played on Hoffman Hill. At that time the catcher wore no glove and he toiled back of the plate barehanded. "Razzle" Hoffman was recognized as Frostburg's first curve ball pitcher in those days.

This gentleman handled the managerial reins of Frostburg baseball teams longer than any other person. He was the John J. McGraw type of leader — a "fighting manager" if there ever was one. One of his chief rivals was James F. "Jimmy" McGuire, player-manager of the Lonaconing Giants and there usually was plenty of excitement when these two diamond "master minds" matched wits. He also managed the Midland Mighties for several seasons.

When oil was discovered in Pennsylvania he acquired a well in the Keystone State but that investment proved a failure when workmen blew the bottom out of it while experimenting with nitro-glycerin and he returned to Frostburg.

This noted baseball leader was the owner of the St. Cloud Hotel, which he purchased from Cornelius Lynch, his step-father, and that hostelry became recognized as the mecca for the sporting fraternity. In his younger days he worked as a clerk for the Consol Coal Company and at the time of his death he was an investigator for the Maryland Industrial Accident Commission. He was active in Democratic politics and his wife, who was Dora Koegel of Cumberland, was a prominent civic worker in the Mountain City.

He stepped down as manager of the Frostburg Demons team at the close of the 1914 season when he was 58. The following year J. Glenn Beall, present United States Senator, and Frank Spates took over the direction of the team. Spates piloted the club in 1915 and Pat Brophy was the leader in 1916. Among the players on the last team skippered by the man pictured here were Catcher Edward J. Ryan, now a well known Cumberland attorney; Frank Colley, pitcher, and now sports editor of the Hagerstown Herald; Johnny East, Johnny Salb, Charley Dye, Pat Brophy, "Shug" Doyle, "Crabby" Williams, Mike Hoban, Enoch Logsdon, Bill Riggins, Bill Jenkins, Charley Price, Preston and Dando.

Do you know the name of this man?

WOW Wins Two

Woodmen of the World scored a 2-1 victory over Fisher-Robinette last night in a men's national shuffleboard league match. Bill Gibson had 31 points for the victors while Robinette scored 26 for the losers.

Gene Shields, student manager of the TCU football team last year, plays No. 1 on the Frog golf team.

Advance To Finals In YMCA Cage Tourney

Stoop's Restaurant, Lou Bell's Five and Columbia Cash Grocery scored victories last night in semi-final games in the Central YMCA Gold Medal basketball tournament.

Stoop's captured the Junior Division final berth with a thrilling 65-58 decision over Casselman Motors, coming from behind in the last quarter to grab the victory.

The battle was close all the way with the score tied 16-all in the first quarter and Casselman's leading 30-28 and 44-41 at the close of the next two periods. Bob Kirk paced the victorious Stoop's quintet with 20 points and Billy Davis racked up 17.

Casselman's Charles Ringer tallied 21 markers for high honors and Mark Fruehan had 17 for the losers.

In the 115-Pound opening game last night Lou Bell's Five turned back Windsor Barber Shop, 46-30 as Ronnie Turner garnered 15 points. Neil Smith had 16 tallies for the losers.

Advancing to the finals in the 135-Pound division Columbia Cash Grocery edged Wojy's Denny's, 57-55, when Jimmy Long dumped in a one-hander with six seconds to play to break a 55-all deadlock.

Long and Teammate John Raupach shared scoring honors for Columbia with 13 points apiece. Sisk had 20 points and Ken Carder 16 to pace the losers.

Oklahoma A & M, where Coach Hank Iba's basketball teams have been perennial powers, was charged with subsidizing athletes and otherwise ignoring the North Central's strict athletic code. The commission recommended Oklahoma A & M be dropped from the list of accredited institutions effective July 1, 1953.

Bradley, located at Peoria, Ill., was said to be conducting an unsatisfactory athletic program and having educational weaknesses. It was recommended Bradley be placed on probation for the 1953-54 school year.

The recommendations will go to the association's Executive Committee for ratification and then be submitted to a general session of the association's annual meeting Friday.

The association is a 19-state group of 368 colleges and universities. Its academic approval is vital for prestige in the educational world and loss of accreditation would seriously handicap students or faculty members seeking to transfer to accredited schools.

The action was the first crackdown by the NCA since the group last summer announced a program of strict reforms drafted by the association's Committee on Athletics.

Quit Missouri Valley

The charge against Oklahoma A & M, located at Stillwater, Okla., alleged that the school emphasized athletics "as a means for securing public support," that it lacked faculty control of athletic policy and that athletes were subsidized.

It was another buffet for Bradley who had several players involved in the far-flung basketball scandals. The judge in the game-rigging trial in New York verbally lashed Bradley for what he termed loose athletic practices.

Bradley last year quit the Missouri Valley Conference. The North Central accusation said Bradley was "moving vigorously" towards correcting its athletic program, but had yet to place it on a satisfactory basis.

YESTERDAY he stalled!

TODAY he didn't!

Esso Extra Gasoline made the difference

The reason is that Esso Extra Gasoline... and only Esso Extra now contains an added ingredient... a built-in anti-freeze to prevent one of the commonest kinds of stalling. This kind of stalling is caused by "carburetor icing." It can happen to nearly all cars in damp, cool weather (30° to 55°), and can't be cured by a mechanic. Esso Extra is especially good in cars with automatic transmissions where restarting after stalling is more troublesome.

In addition to this protection, you get Esso Extra's famous combination of qualities... quick starting, fast warm-up, high anti-knock, power, and long mileage... everything you need for Happy Motoring from the instant you touch the starter. Is it any wonder more motorists use Esso Extra than any other premium gasoline in the area served by Esso Dealers?

Early Mist Favored In Grand National

LONDON, March 25 (AP) — Early Mist, eight-year-old to be ridden by one of England's top jockeys, remained a slight favorite today for next Saturday's running of the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree.

The jumper is 100-9 shot in a field expected to number 36 or 37. He will carry 156 pounds and will be ridden by Bryan Marshall, regarded as one of this country's sharpest saddlesmiths.

Little Dome is listed right behind the favorite at 100-8. The final call-over of odds is scheduled tomorrow.

White Sox Shooting For The A.L. Flag; Richards Says Club Is Greatly Improved

Infielder Chico Carrasquel

Pitcher Mike Forneiles

First Sacker Ferris Fain

By S. D. ROCKWELL
Central Press Correspondent

PASADENA, Cal. — You ask Manager Paul Richards how he thinks his Chicago White Sox shape up this year and in a few thousand well chosen words he tells you they might fool a lot of people and win the pennant.

"We are shooting for the top," he says, "and we have a good chance of making it. The club is greatly improved over last season."

Then he goes on to say that the White Sox have:

1—Better pitching with the addition of three more potential starters—Tommy Byrne, Bob Keegan and Mike Fornieles;

2—Greater defense and more consistent punch with the acquisition of Ferris Fain, first baseman whom they obtained from the Philadelphia Athletics in exchange for Eddie Robinson;

3—The old Chico Carrasquel, wizard shortstop of 1951 who flopped badly last season and now is ready for another successful campaign.

SKEPTICS point out that even if Carrasquel returns to his former form and even if Fain hits the way he did for Philadelphia (he has won the American league batting title two years in a row) the Sox still haven't much pitching depth and they haven't enough power.

"I don't know where people get the idea we do not have pitching," Richards says. "Look at the record. For two years now our staff has been second in earned runs. It's true we haven't had any 20-game winners, but we have gone a long way with what we have."

REGARDING the question of power:

"We are tailoring our ball club to fit our park," Richards says. "Comiskey park is one of the largest in the country and it's a haven for line drive hitters like Fain. We traded Gus Zernial and we traded Eddie Robinson because in Chicago they were simply hitting long outs."

For power away from home, in such places as Boston, Detroit and Cleveland where a home run can break up a ball game, the Sox are depending on Vern Stephens and Sam Mele. Orestos Minoso and Sherman Lollar have been known to hit the ball out of the park, too.

VERN STEPHENS was sent by the Red Sox to Chicago in the belief that his legs have given out, but the squat infielder has had no trouble this spring. Richards is counting on him to play a lot of third base and he has the slick-fielding rookie in reserve, Rocky Krsnich.

With Fain at first, Nellie Fox at second, Carrasquel at short and either Stephens or the 24-year-old Krsnich at third, the Sox figure they have the best infield in the league. Fain, the Fearless one, is a definite improvement over the slow-moving Robinson at first base.

Richards also thinks his club is stronger behind the plate with Bob (Red) Wilson to spell Lollar. Wilson, a 200-pound six-footer from Madison, Wis., caught 155 games at Seattle last year and batted .297. He is making a serious bid to take the first string job from Lollar.

The leading candidates for the three outfield posts are Mele, Minoso, Jim Rivera and Bill Wilson, a rookie fresh out of the Army for whom Richards has high hopes. Paul envisions a future DiMaggio whenever he sees Wilson lope after a fly ball or swing the bat.

"He is one of the finest prospects I've ever seen," Richards says. "He might be a great help to us this year."

Before being whisked away to the Army in 1950, the six-foot-three, 195-pound hight-handed hitting Wilson just about tore the Southern Association part. He batted .311 for Memphis, hit 36 home runs, drove in 125 runs, clouted 40 doubles and totaled 334 bases.

Richards also has a hunch that this will be Mele's year. Sam, passed on from Boston to Washington before the Sox got him last summer, began training in January and he now weighs 180, the lightest he has been since he entered the major league six years ago.

Minoso, , whose average dropped from .326 in 1951, his freshman year, to .281 last season, feels that he will hit the .300 mark again. He spent the winter playing ball in Cuba, his homeland, and hopes to get off to a fast start.

RICHARDS' chief matter of concern at the moment is his star left-hander, Billy Pierce. The youngster, winner of 15 games last season, developed a sore shoulder in September and it felt no better when he reported to spring training. The soreness is slowly leaving, he reports.

"It's not anything serious," Richards says. "I'm sure he'll be well enough to pitch opening day."

On the other hand, Saul Rogovin, the ace righthander, claims he feels better this spring than ever before. Saul had a sore arm last spring and he was still troubled when the season got underway, but he has been throwing every day this spring and really cutting loose without pain.

Richards is counting on Pierce, Rogovin and the 35-year-old Joe Dobson as his Big Three, with Lou Kretlow, Byrne, Keegan and Fornieles as his other starters. He is also figuring on Harry Dorish and Luis Aloma for relief work. They starred in that capacity last year.

General Manager Frank Lane purchased the 31-year-old Keegan from Syracuse, where he won 20 games last year; he bought Byrne from the St. Louis Browns, for whom he won seven, and he obtained Fornieles from Washington, sending Southpaw Chuck Stobbs to them in exchange. Mike won two games in the closing weeks of the season at Washington, including a one-hitter in his first major league start.

"I'm not worried about my pitching at all," Richards says. "I expect Pierce to do as well or better than he did and I look for much improvement in Rogovin and Kretlow in particular. We might come up with the best staff in the league and if we do, we'll win the pennant"

Weighing the White Sox—

The Chisox are definitely first division, with better pitching and better defense. They might be termed as the "possible" club to win the pennant.

Early Mist Favored In Grand National

LONDON, March 25 (AP) — Early Mist, eight-year-old to be ridden by one of England's top jockeys, remained a slight favorite today for next Saturday's running of the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree.

The jumper is 100-9 shot in a field expected to number 36 or 37. He will carry 156 pounds and will be ridden by Bryan Marshall, regarded as one of this country's sharpest saddlesmiths.

Little Dome is listed right behind the favorite at 100-8. The final call-over of odds is scheduled tomorrow.

White Sox Shooting For The A.L. Flag; Richards Says Club Is Greatly Improved

Pitcher Mike Forneiles

First Sacker Ferris Fain

Central Press Correspondent

PASADENA, Cal. — You ask Manager Paul Richards how he thinks his Chicago White Sox shape up this year and in a few thousand well chosen words he tells you they might fool a lot of people and win the pennant.

"We are shooting for the top," he says, "and we have a good chance of making it. The club is greatly improved over last season."

Then he goes on to say that the White Sox have:

1—Better pitching with the addition of three more potential starters—Tommy Byrne, Bob Keegan and Mike Fornieles;

2—Greater defense and more consistent punch with the acquisition of Ferris Fain, first baseman whom they obtained from the Philadelphia Athletics in exchange for Eddie Robinson;

3—The old Chico Carrasquel, wizard shortstop of 1951 who flopped badly last season and now is ready for another successful campaign.

SKEPTICS point out that even if Carrasquel returns to his former form and even if Fain hits the way he did for Philadelphia (he has won the American league batting title two years in a row) the Sox still haven't much pitching depth and they haven't enough power.

"I don't know where people get the idea we do not have pitching," Richards says. "Look at the record. For two years now our staff has been second in earned runs. It's true we haven't had any 20-game winners, but we have gone a long way with what we have."

REGARDING the question of power:

"We are tailoring our ball club to fit our park," Richards says. "Comiskey park is one of the largest in the country and it's a haven for line drive hitters like Fain. We traded Gus Zernial and we traded Eddie Robinson because in Chicago they were simply hitting long outs."

For power away from home, in such places as Boston, Detroit and Cleveland where a home run can break up a ball game, the Sox are depending on Vern Stephens and Sam Mele. Orestos Minoso and Sherman Lollar have been known to hit the ball out of the park, too.

VERN STEPHENS was sent by the Red Sox to Chicago in the belief that his legs have given out, but the squat infielder has had no trouble this spring. Richards is counting on him to play a lot of third base and he has the slick-fielding rookie in reserve, Rocky Krsnich.

With Fain at first, Nellie Fox at second, Carrasquel at short and either Stephens or the 24-year-old Krsnich at third, the Sox figure they have the best infield in the league. Fain, the Fearless one, is a definite improvement over the slow-moving Robinson at first base.

Richards also thinks his club is stronger behind the plate with Bob (Red) Wilson to spell Lollar. Wilson, a 200-pound six-footer from Madison, Wis., caught 155 games at Seattle last year and batted .297. He is making a serious bid to take the first string job from Lollar.

The leading candidates for the three outfield posts are Mele, Minoso, Jim Rivera and Bill Wilson, a rookie fresh out of the Army for whom Richards has high hopes. Paul envisions a future DiMaggio whenever he sees Wilson lope after a fly ball or swing the bat.

"He is one of the finest prospects I've ever seen," Richards says. "He might be a great help to us this year."

Before being whisked away to the Army in 1950, the six-foot-three, 195-pound hight-handed hitting Wilson just about tore the Southern Association part. He batted .311 for Memphis, hit 36 home runs, drove in 125 runs, clouted 40 doubles and totaled 334 bases.

Richards also has a hunch that this will be Mele's year. Sam, passed on from Boston to Washington before the Sox got him last summer, began training in January and he now weighs 180, the lightest he has been since he entered the major league six years ago.

Minoso, , whose average dropped from .326 in 1951, his freshman year, to .281 last season, feels that he will hit the .300 mark again. He spent the winter playing ball in Cuba, his homeland, and hopes to get off to a fast start.

RICHARDS' chief matter of concern at the moment is his star left-hander, Billy Pierce. The youngster, winner of 15 games last season, developed a sore shoulder in September and it felt no better when he reported to spring training. The soreness is slowly leaving, he reports.

"It's not anything serious," Richards says. "I'm sure he'll be well enough to pitch opening day."

On the other hand, Saul Rogovin, the ace righthander, claims he feels better this spring than ever before. Saul had a sore arm last spring and he was still troubled when the season got underway, but he has been throwing every day this spring and really cutting loose without pain.

Richards is counting on Pierce, Rogovin and the 35-year-old Joe Dobson as his Big Three, with Lou Kretlow, Byrne, Keegan and Fornieles as his other starters. He is also figuring on Harry Dorish and Luis Aloma for relief work. They starred in that capacity last year.

General Manager Frank Lane purchased the 31-year-old Keegan from Syracuse, where he won 20 games last year; he bought Byrne from the St. Louis Browns, for whom he won seven, and he obtained Fornieles from Washington, sending Southpaw Chuck Stobbs to them in exchange. Mike won two games in the closing weeks of the season at Washington, including a one-hitter in his first major league start.

"I'm not worried about my pitching at all," Richards says. "I expect Pierce to do as well or better than he did and I look for much improvement in Rogovin and Kretlow in particular. We might come up with the best staff in the league and if we do, we'll win the pennant"

Weighing the White Sox—

The Chisox are definitely first division, with better pitching and better defense. They might be termed as the "possible" club to win the pennant.

Keyser Granted Right To Change Its Water Rates

20 Per Cent Of Users Will Be Affected

KEYSER — The West Virginia Public Service Commission has notified the city that it may readjust its water rates to equalize charges for all customers.

The PSC's decision was asked by the city at a hearing last November 3 after some of the city's water customers complained of inequalities in the rate structure.

About 80 per cent of water users in Keyser will not be affected by the scheduled reshuffling of the rate structure. About 10 per cent will pay slightly higher bills, and the other 10 per cent will get small reductions in their rates.

Under the new setup, a minimum fee of $1.70 per quarter will be substituted for the meter charges on meters of less than ⅝ of an inch.

Water users in the city will pay 50 cents per thousand gallons for the first 5,000 gallons used each quarter, 20 cents per thousand for the next 15,000 gallons, 15 cents per thousand for the next 15,000, and six cents per thousand for anything above 165,000 gallons.

Rates will be slightly higher outside the corporate limits.

McDowell To Write History Of Mineral County Schools

KEYSER — The Mineral County Board of Education has assigned Luke McDowell, a former superintendent of schools, to write a history of the county schools.

McDowell, who has done historical research for the county for many years, has sent letters to local and area churches, fraternities, service and patriotic societies and other groups in his quest for facts for his school history.

He is particularly interested in old files, newspapers and organization records.

In his more than two-months work on the project, McDowell has gone a long way in piecing together the history of the county's schools. Among his facts are the names of teachers who have been active from 1879 to the present.

His information thus far has come from old records of the education board, records in the county superintendent's office, in acts of the West Virginia Legislature, institute minute books, round table programs and several local and state histories of education.

Judge Rules City Not Responsible For Accident

KEYSER — Judge Ernest A. See ruled yesterday that the City of Keyser is not liable for damages to a truck owned by Norman Trenton, Keyser, that dropped into a sewer that burst during a hard rainstorm here last July. The suit came to Mineral County Circuit Court on an appeal from the court of Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle.

Trenton claimed damages for $129.58, charging negligence on the part of the city, and Miss Bazzle rendered a judgment against the city.

The accident occurred when the truck dropped into a sewer on property owned by John I. Rogers at the west end of Mozelle Street.

Judge See ruled that the truck was on private property at the time of the accident and that the city could not be held liable through negligence for the broken sewer.

Keyser Granted Right To Change Its Water Rates

20 Per Cent Of Users Will Be Affected

KEYSER — The West Virginia Public Service Commission has notified the city that it may readjust its water rates to equalize charges for all customers.

The PSC's decision was asked by the city at a hearing last November 3 after some of the city's water customers complained of inequalities in the rate structure.

About 80 per cent of water users in Keyser will not be affected by the scheduled reshuffling of the rate structure. About 10 per cent will pay slightly higher bills, and the other 10 per cent will get small reductions in their rates.

Under the new setup, a minimum fee of $1.70 per quarter will be substituted for the meter charges on meters of less than ⅝ of an inch.

Water users in the city will pay 50 cents per thousand gallons for the first 5,000 gallons used each quarter, 20 cents per thousand for the next 15,000 gallons, 15 cents per thousand for the next 15,000, and six cents per thousand for anything above 165,000 gallons.

Rates will be slightly higher outside the corporate limits.

McDowell To Write History Of Mineral County Schools

KEYSER — The Mineral County Board of Education has assigned Luke McDowell, a former superintendent of schools, to write a history of the county schools.

McDowell, who has done historical research for the county for many years, has sent letters to local and area churches, fraternities, service and patriotic societies and other groups in his quest for facts for his school history.

He is particularly interested in old files, newspapers and organization records.

In his more than two-months work on the project, McDowell has gone a long way in piecing together the history of the county's schools. Among his facts are the names of teachers who have been active from 1879 to the present.

His information thus far has come from old records of the education board, records in the county superintendent's office, in acts of the West Virginia Legislature, institute minute books, round table programs and several local and state histories of education.

STAG LINES for men

by Bert Bacharach

Paris Bulletin

PARIS

I've been in Rome and here in the French capital since last week's piece and will cover London before next week's. It's all part of an eight-day trip to the three cities, as a prelude to lots of travel tips that you'll be getting in this space from now on Millennium Note: In my early writing days I made a jocular prediction that some day a business man would be able to work a full day in New York and then tend to affairs in Europe the following day. It seemed mighty remote at the time. But I worked all day Thursday in New York, had lunch in Paris on Friday and dinner in Rome the same night —by means of a smooth flight on a Pan-American airliner.

Ameche—ready for the Ritz

People: Vittorio Gassman, spouse of Shelley Winters, in Rome's swankiest nightclub wearing a yellow turtleneck sweater and no jacket! . . . Orson Welles, in an outfit that looks like a waiter's ensemble, is definitely among the worst-dressed men in Italy! A fellow named Farouk runs him a close second.

In the Shops: Italian ties were always wonderful—but too short. Now, due to the tourist influence, they're making them up to fifty-four inches long. But they refuse to make them any narrower! . . . Smart shops, again due to the tourist influence, are showing the squared-off handkerchiefs in their windows—and they term it an American fashion. . . . One store is doing a good business with U. S visitors on a striped butler's coat—to wear as a sport jacket with slacks! (But I have my doubts that it will look as good back home!)

Traveler's Wash: For the benefit of this spring's tourists, we repeat some recommendations on how to wash your Dacron or Orlon shirts. First let them soak in tepid or warm soapy water (1, left). Scrub the collar and cuffs with a hand brush (2); rinse in fresh water (3); and put them over hangers with the top buttoned (4). Do not wring out, just hang them wet—and they'll dry neat and smooth within a couple of hours.

Odd Notes: When answering the phone in Italy, you say "Pronto"—which means that you're ready! . . . As official business hours in Rome run until 8 p. m. daily, you're practically alone if you dine out prior to 10 p. m. . . . There's an all-night place in Rome which features hamburgers, hot dogs, frosteds and the like. A touch of home.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 25 (INS)—With contracts harder to get these days than a key to Ft. Knox, no wonder Keefe Brasselle is literally jumping with joy over his new deal with Jack Warner.

Keefe gets two pictures a year, plus outside rights. This is Keefe's reward for what the boss feels is the good job he does as Eddie Cantor in "The Eddie Cantor Story." Keefe is so good, the most exacting critic in the world sent him a telegram reading, "I think you're great playing me."

I received a telegram from Keefe saying, "You and I have the greatest agent (Wynn Rocamora) in the world. He not only got me the Warner deal but I have two other big outside pictures coming up."

As Clark Gable spins through the countryside of France, Italy and Spain this summer in his new Jaguar he may contemplate the road ahead as good in more ways than one.

The "King" has just one picture to make on his old MGM contract and when the new deal comes up it will be for just one picture a year. He will be given "outside" rights which means he can make films for other companies where and when he pleases.

This should be just fine with Clark. The last time I saw him he told me, "I don't want to work so hard in the future."

After so many months of illness and discouragement, it's just wonderful the way Ann Sothern has come back with such success. She is so good on TV, and excellent in "The Blue Gardenia."

Now again comes another picture for Annie. She and Anne Baxter, who was also very good in Alex Gottlieb's "Blue Gardenia," will be co-starred in "Two Wedding Rings," again for Gottlieb.

The story of "Two Wedding Rings," by Mike Elliott, concerns the problems of two young women whose husbands are in Korea.

Little Deborah Dozier, accompanied by her nurse, is due to arrive in Hollywood any day now. She stopped to visit her Grandmother Dozier in the middle west.

She'll spend six months with her mother, Joan Fontaine. This was made possible by William Dozier, her father, who signed a petition in Santa Monica Superior Court, through his attorney, Jacques Leslie, saying that an amicable agreement had been reached and that the child would divide her time between her parents.

I am very glad this has happened, it's so much better for little Debbie. Apparently both Joan and Bill are eager to end past misunderstandings for the sake of their child.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Who do you think was a happy twosome at Jules Poydell's Copacabana in New York a few nights ago? Rita Hayworth and Dick Haymes holding hands and very happy.

Gig Young, who was such an angel to his wife, Sophie Rosenstein, before her death, was with Mala Powers at Chasen's. A very nice pair.

When I met Lucille Ball at the Paul Small party I thought she looked a little different. That's because her pink hair is now light blonde. She and Desi Arnaz promised to bring the new baby over to call on me.

Bob Cobb received a very nice letter from Mrs. Eisenhower thanking him for the souvenir menu of the Brown Derby used in the Eddie Cantor-Colgate TV show, on which Harry Ruby's song, "Mamie," was sung.

Sorry I had to go to bed and rest and couldn't go to Joan Crawford's wonderful dinner for Earl Blackwell, and to celebrate her own birthday. It was a small party in the private dining room at Romanoff's with Jane Wyman, Freddie Karger, Dinah Shore, George Montgomery, and Fieldsie and Walter Lang among the guests.

Arthur Krim, president of United Artists, and Geraldine Brooks have been glimpsed in New York together several times this past week. This may or may not mean anything.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Jumping beans come from a shrub which grows in swamps in Mexico and the southern United States.

STAG LINES for men

by Bert Bacharach

Paris Bulletin

PARIS

I've been in Rome and here in the French capital since last week's piece and will cover London before next week's. It's all part of an eight-day trip to the three cities, as a prelude to lots of travel tips that you'll be getting in this space from now on

Millennium Note: In my early writing days I made a jocular prediction that some day a business man would be able to work a full day in New York and then tend to affairs in Europe the following day. It seemed mighty remote at the time. But I worked all day Thursday in New York, had lunch in Paris on Friday and dinner in Rome the same night —by means of a smooth flight on a Pan-American airliner

People: Vittorio Gassman, spouse of Shelley Winters, in Rome's swankiest nightclub wearing a yellow turtleneck sweater and no jacket! . . . Orson Welles, in an outfit that looks like a waiter's ensemble, is definitely among the worst-dressed men in Italy! A fellow named Farouk runs him a close second.

In the Shops: Italian ties were always wonderful—but too short. Now, due to the tourist influence, they're making them up to fifty-four inches long. But they refuse to make them any narrower! . . . Smart shops, again due to the tourist influence, are showing the squared-off handkerchiefs in their windows—and they term it an American fashion. . . . One store is doing a good business with U. S. visitors on a striped butler's coat—to wear as a sport jacket with slacks! (But I have my doubts that it will look as good back home!)

Traveler's Wash: For the benefit of this spring's tourists, we repeat some recommendations on how to wash your Dacron or Orlon shirts. First let them soak in tepid or warm soapy water (1, left). Scrub the collar and cuffs with a hand brush (2); rinse in fresh water (3); and put them over hangers with the top buttoned (4). Do not wring out, just hang them wet—and they'll dry neat and smooth within a couple of hours.

Odd Notes: When answering the phone in Italy, you say "Pronto"—which means that you're ready! . . . As official business hours in Rome run until 8 p. m. daily, you're practically alone if you dine out prior to 10 p. m. . . . There's an all-night place in Rome which features hamburgers, hot dogs, frosteds and the like. A touch of home.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 25 (INS)—With contracts harder to get these days than a key to Ft. Knox, no wonder Keefe Brasselle is literally jumping with joy over his new deal with Jack Warner.

Keefe gets two pictures a year, plus outside rights. This is Keefe's reward for what the boss feels is the good job he does as Eddie Cantor in "The Eddie Cantor Story." Keefe is so good, the most exacting critic in the world sent him a telegram reading, "I think you're great playing me."

I received a telegram from Keefe saying, "You and I have the greatest agent (Wynn Rocamora) in the world. He not only got me the Warner deal but I have two other big outside pictures coming up."

As Clark Gable spins through the countryside of France, Italy and Spain this summer in his new Jaguar he may contemplate the road ahead as good in more ways than one.

The "King" has just one picture to make on his old MGM contract and when the new deal comes up it will be for just one picture a year. He will be given "outside" rights which means he can make films for other companies where and when he pleases.

This should be just fine with Clark. The last time I saw him he told me, "I don't want to work so hard in the future."

After so many months of illness and discouragement, it's just wonderful the way Ann Sothern has come back with such success. She is so good on TV, and excellent in "The Blue Gardenia."

Now again comes another picture for Annie. She and Anne Baxter, who was also very good in Alex Gottlieb's "Blue Gardenia," will be co-starred in "Two Wedding Rings," again for Gottlieb.

The story of "Two Wedding Rings," by Mike Elliott, concerns the problems of two young women whose husbands are in Korea.

Little Deborah Dozier, accompanied by her nurse, is due to arrive in Hollywood any day now. She stopped to visit her Grandmother Dozier in the middle west.

She'll spend six months with her mother, Joan Fontaine. This was made possible by William Dozier, her father, who signed a petition in Santa Monica Superior Court, through his attorney, Jacques Leslie, saying that an amicable agreement had been reached and that the child would divide her time between her parents.

I am very glad this has happened, it's so much better for little Debbie. Apparently both Joan and Bill are eager to end past misunderstandings for the sake of their child.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Who do you think was a happy twosome at Jules Poydell's Copacabana in New York a few nights ago? Rita Hayworth and Dick Haymes holding hands and very happy.

Bette Davis will recuperate in Maine, with Gary Merrill and the children.

Gig Young, who was such an angel to his wife, Sophie Rosenstein, before her death, was with Mala Powers at Chasen's. A very nice pair.

When I met Lucille Ball at the Paul Small party I thought she looked a little different. That's because her pink hair is now light blonde. She and Desi Arnaz promised to bring the new baby over to call on me.

Bob Cobb received a very nice letter from Mrs. Eisenhower thanking him for the souvenir menu of the Brown Derby used in the Eddie Cantor-Colgate TV show, on which Harry Ruby's song, "Mamie," was sung.

Sorry I had to go to bed and rest and couldn't go to Joan Crawford's wonderful dinner for Earl Blackwell, and to celebrate her own birthday. It was a small party in the private dining room at Romanoff's with Jane Wyman, Freddie Karger, Dinah Shore, George Montgomery, and Fieldsie and Walter Lang among the guests.

Arthur Krim, president of United Artists, and Geraldine Brooks have been glimpsed in New York together several times this past week. This may or may not mean anything.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Jumping beans come from a shrub which grows in swamps in Mexico and the southern United States.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Prohibition and the Broadway column produced the slap-happy cult known as cafe society. The expansion of the commercial aviation age has begotten still another culture, probably as preposterous but certainly less harmful.

It has no name as yet, but you will recognize its true believers. They are people fresh off any plane that has flown more than 200 yards. They can speak only of what happened to them before embarking. What is happening at the point of destination is a pale thing. So are the conversations of those into whose company they have flown.

Example, at a New York party: Host—"By Geoffrey, we need a more vigorous foreign policy. If they asked me, I'd tell them what to do: Hit them with A-bombs, not uius maxims..."

Guest (fresh off plane)—"Speaking of Maxim's, I had lunch there yesterday and right at the next table was this fellow Max Blouet, he runs the George V, or Joe Schenck, as I call it. Imagine, only yesterday I was in Paris, France."

He then waits for somebody to mutter "small world," or "gosh!" but can supply either himself if the silence gets too thick.

From the above one might gain the hasty impression that members of this new set are boors. Not at all. The guest who could not swallow back down the mounting urge to mention that an ocean stood between him and his listeners only 24 hours before will leave the new society in a day or two and become quite normal.

That's the amazing thing about this new culture. You're a true devotee only for a day, and rarely more than two or three, after completing a trip by air. You will never hear a man member say, "Had a stimulating talk with Farouk a week ago last Thursday. . ." He could not utter such words, even though there might be someone in the room capable of being impressed. He could not utter those words because they would be jagged cinders in his throat compared to the liquid gold of having previously said, immediately after arrival in the U. S., "I was saying to Farouk at tea yesterday in Cannes. . ."

Membership, you see, is a transient thing. If you cannot speak of the freshest possible trip, then what you have to say is so much dross, and to say it would mean loss of face in front of a returned traveler who is able to use "yesterday" or even "today" in his sentences.

"Funny thing happened to me today in St. Louis," I heard a man say last night in Beverley Hills. "They sell bottled whisky at the airport there, you know," he continued.

"I was coming through from Montevideo — signed a nice deal there yesterday, late—and wanted to pick up a bottle of Scotch for the rest of the trip, but the girl says 'Scotch? We don't have no Scotch?" Reminded me of the war when. . ."

But, of course, he could not continue. He was interrupted by a girl-member of the lodge who caressed her orchid lei and said, "Ronnie insisted that I wear these tonight, when I left him this afternoon in Honolulu."

The jet age will alter the codes of conduct. Today a man can get away with it, nine times out of ten, when he says, "Day before yesterday in Karachi. . ." Or sometimes he can even risk, "a few days ago, while having half a pint at her majesty's royal artillery mess, Khartoum. . ." But the jet will make such talk downright offensive.

Club-members will be popping in from Bermuda for after-dinner coffee, or a nightcap. A hunter regaling Bohemian Club members in San Francisco about the polar bear he shot the previous day, off Point Barrow, may be interrupted by a bleak query, "But what did you shoot, today?"

The jet age will alter the codes of conduct. Today a man can get away with it, nine times out of ten, when he says, "Day before yesterday in Karachi. . ." Or sometimes he can even risk, "a few days ago, while having half a pint at her majesty's royal artillery mess, Khartoum. . ." But the jet will make such talk downright offensive.

Club-members will be popping in from Bermuda for after-dinner coffee, or a nightcap. A hunter regaling Bohemian Club members in San Francisco about the polar bear he shot the previous day, off Point Barrow, may be interrupted by a bleak query, "But what did you shoot today?"

House Approves Counties Share In Liquor Tax

50 Cents Per Gallon Would Be Returned

ANNAPOLIS, March 25 (AP)—The House of Delegates today rammed through a bill for all the counties to share in the taxes on liquor.

Only Baltimore City and County now collect any liquor taxes in addition to the state and federal governments. It was these special privileges which prompted 16 delegates to propose that all counties get a cut.

Endorsed By Tawes

The proposal was endorsed by Millard Tawes, comptroller, in a letter distributed to the legislators.

Tawes said "any apparent loss created through the adjustment" would be outweighed by greater losses if taxation on local levels were allowed to continue.

The bill sent to the Senate provides the state raise its liquor tax from $1.25 to $1.50 a gallon. The state then would return 50 cents for each gallon sold in a county and Baltimore. The city and Baltimore County now are taxing 50 cents a gallon so they would not lose any revenue.

The Senate already has enacted to continue Baltimore City's taxing privilege for another two years. The new uniform system would go into effect next July 1.

Garrett Excluded

Garrett and Caroline Counties would not receive any of the liquor tax returns because whisky is not sold there. However, Tawes said the bill provides for their participation "whenever legislation to authorize such sale is enacted."

On the basis of last year sales, returns to the counties will range from about $6,000 in Queen Anne's to $165,000 in Baltimore. The city collected $915,000 from the 50 cents a gallon tax in 1952.

Seven counties exempted themselves from a bill to permit half the property owners to block issuance of tavern licenses in their vicinity. Allegany, Garrett, Howard, Charles, Harford, St. Mary's and Prince George's were excluded when the bill advanced to final reading in the House.

Licenses could not be granted to new locations if 50 per cent of the real estate owners within 300 feet in metropolitan areas and within half a mile in rural areas protested.

The delegates also approved private construction of a bridge over Sinepuxent Bay from the Eastern Shore mainland to Assateague Island in Worcester County.

Parkway Bill Endorsed

The C&O Canal Parkway measure, Senate Bill 211, moved past another hurle yesterday afternoon when it recived a favorable report from the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Delegates. Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr. of Westernport, a committe member, said the vote was 28 for the bill and only two against it.

Barber Bill Passes

House Bill 360, introduced by Delegate Fred B. Driscoll of Cumberland and Delegate William C. O'Malley of Baltimore, was passed by the House yesterday. It would increase the daily pay of Board of Barber Examiners from $5 to $10 for attending meetings and would require 1,000 hours of instruction at an approved school before a man can be licensed as a barber.

Rent Control Bill

State Senator Robert B. Kimble said yesterday that he is going to amend a rent control bill which has passed the House of Delegates so that it will include Allegany County.

The House measure approved rent controls, if they want them, in Baltimore, Hagerstown and Baltimore County. It has been sent to the Senate. The County Delegation was widely split last week on whether to put Cumberland and Allegany County into the bill by amendment and as a result no action was taken.

However, Senator Kimble believes that local governments in Allegany County should be given the chance to decide whether or not they want rent controls.

BB Bill Amended

An amendment banning use of air guns in Allegany and Prince George's County by yougsters 16 years old and under was tacked on the anti-BB gun bill by Senator Kimble.

Army Maneuvers In Elkins Area Cancelled Again

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP) — Sen. Neely (D-WVa) said today he had reliable information that plans for large scale army maneuvers in the Elkins, W. Va., area this summer have been cancelled.

Neely reported he understood troop units scheduled to participate had other training assignments.

More than 20,000 servicemen had been expected to take part in the West Virginia maneuvers.

An indication the exercises are to be held came during the recent session of the West Virginia Legislature, which was asked to exempt state taxes on cigarettes, beer and other items which would have been sold in Army post exchanges.

Local Company Is Low Bidder For Road Work

To Rebuild Section Of Swanton Highway

The Cumberland Construction Company was low bidder for work of resurfacing a section of the Bloomington-Swanton road, Route 135, it was reported yesterday.

The State Roads Commission opened bids Tuesday at the SRC offices in Baltimore. The local firm was low bidder with a figure of $429,581.45.

There were four other companies that bid on the work including T. Edgie Russell Company, Frederick, with a bid of $431,980; E. D. Plummer and Sons, Chambersburg, Pa., with a bid of $442,585.25; Richard F. Kline, Frederick, $465,657.35, and S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company, this city, with a figure of $472,622.20.

Work will include grading, drainage and resurfacing of about three and a half miles of the road between Bloomington and Swanton.

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the State Roads Commission, said the section of highway will be entirely rebuilt with some minor relocations. The Cumberland Construction Company will work on about one-third of the 10-mile road.

Chaires added the SRC plans to rebuild the whole road, and the remaining sections will be contracted for construction after this section has been resurfaced.

Farmers To Get Tile For Ditches

Some 52 Allegany County farmers who plan to install tile drainage ditches this year through the Agricultural Conservation Program were notified yesterday by Albert O'Neal, chairman of the County PMA Committee that clay tile may be obtained by purchase order.

In a form letter to the cooperating farmers, O'Neal reminded them that clay tile may be obtained on purchase orders just like they have been purchasing lime and fertilizer. The farmer will pay half of the cost of the clay tile and the Federal government, through the Agricultural Conservation Program, will pay the other half.

After a soil conservationist has visited a farm and with the farmer has determined the need and specifications for the ditch, the farmer may come to the County PMA office, 37 Washington Street, for a purchase order for the clay tile. A price list from local dealers will be available at the PMA office for the convenience of the farmers.

FOE, Exchange Club To Aid With Easter Seal Campaign

Members of Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and the Cumberland Exchange Club will conduct an Easter lily sale this Saturday in connection with the current county Easter Seal sale drive.

At the same time, the Lonaconing Lions Club and the Rotary Club will conduct a lily sale in the Lonaconing area. Proceeds from the sale will go to the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

In Frostburg, the Saturday Easter lily Sale will be conducted by members of the Loyal Order Of Moose.

William R. Carscaden, chairman of the Easter Seal drive, urged residents to cooperate with the drive which seeks to boost county Easter Seal sales. Thus far the Easter Seal Campaign has reached $2,481.45 with 2,068 letters being returned. Carscaden said this indicates that 10,000 letters sent out with Easter Seals in the county have not yet been answered.

Carscaden added he hopes to exceed last year's drive which collected $6,700 for the aid of underprivileged children of Allegany County.

He pointed out that the purchase of Easter Seals last year helped to provide 1,476 examinations by doctors who are specialists in their field, 1,303 visits in the field and 2,437 visits in the office, in addition to 3,134 treatments given by speech therapists and 1,586 treatments given by physical therapists. Funds from annual Easter Seals also provide countless other services rendered by the League staff.

It May Be Spring But Garrett Has Snow Anyway

Baffled Garrett Countians, knowing spring is here, saw snow falling again last night.

State Police said the light, wet snow followed heavy rains in mountainous sections of Garrett and western Allegany counties, but was melting as fast as it fell.

Roads were wet, but no more slippery than in sections where only rain fell.

Last night's fall was the first this spring.

Regester Gives City Plans For Fixing Clearwell

Would Abandon Damaged Section

Plans for alterations to the damaged clearwell at the city filtration plant were presented to the city this week by Robert T. Regester, Baltimore.

Regester, who is consulting engineer for the city on water and sewage problems, prepared the plans for final alterations needed at the plant after part of the bottom of the clearwell dropped out early this month.

Emergency repairs were made to the area immediately to keep the $237,000 filter unit under construction nearby from slipping toward the clearwell area, which had been undermined by a long-standing leak from the reservoir, built some 40 years ago to store filtered water.

The plans submitted to Water Commissioner William J. Edwards include the installation of steel piling and a concrete wall to strengthen the existing clearwell structure which is to be retained.

The two 36-inch water lines leading to the city will be connected to a gate chamber at the clearwell so water can be supplied to one or both lines from that point, allowing more flexible operation of the water system.

The plan calls for the elimination of the damaged part of the clearwell, since repairs would be too expensive and it is not needed for the efficient operation of the plant.

Contractors are completing the final stages of the filter project, which will add 6,000,000 gallon a day to the filtering capacity.

Held up for lack of materials, workers are busy now installing pipe and fittings to the new filter units. When the pipe work is completed, only the installation of filter materials and painting will remain, officials said.

Council Splits, 3-2, Over 5-Day Week Proposal

Long, Mrs. Roeder Oppose Action Now

The much discussed proposal of a five-day work week for city police and firemen resulted in quite a session during a special meeting of the Mayor and Council yesterday afternoon.

Mayor Roy W. Eves brought up the matter after the county delegation to the legislature asked him how he and members of the City Council felt about the proposal.

The order provided that the Mayor and Council would favor a 5-day week for police and firemen with the understanding that the budget for the fiscal year 1953-1954 would allow these working conditions, if put into effect.

In the 3-2 vote, Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long and Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder dissented although they do favor the five-day week.

Urges Waiting

Mrs. Roeder said she feels the city is capable of settling what she termed an "administrative" matter and was in favor of waiting until July to see if the budget would allow the move.

Long said he also is highly in favor of the betterment of working conditions for police and firemen but did not favor the raising of the tax rate thus putting an extra burden on the taxpayers.

Commissioner Long also added he did not think it was a matter for the Legislature to settle but one for Cumberland.

After some discussion the proposal was signed as an order by Mayor Eves, and voted upon. Mayor Eves pointed out that yesterday's action was to get a viewpoint from each commissioner for the benefit of the Legislature.

More Men Needed

Police are seeking a five-day 40-hour week and the firemen a five-day week. Heads of the two departments emphasize that 14 additional men are needed for the reduced work schedule.

The move is termed a financial problem because 14 men would represent $45,276 in salaries or a 6½-cent tax rate increase.

After voting against the 40-hour week for policemen, the two consecutive days off each week for firemen, and the industrial boulevard bond issue, Mrs. Roeder read into the record what she termed "my specific reasons for not supporting these two bills:

"Administrative Matters"

"(a) These matters, I believe, are administrative matters which need not be sent for action to the Legislature. They should be handled in Cumberland by the Mayor and Council.

"(b) I believe we should follow the recommendation our City Attorney, Mr. Finan, made last Tuesday. That is to hold our decision in the matter until our budget meeting in July when we can more clearly determine how we can secure the money needed and when we will know more about certain anticipated revenue.

"(c) According to the Municipal Year Book of 1952:

Also at last night's meeting, Thomas F. Conlon was appointed chairman of the Memorial Day parade and services.

Septic Tanks To Be Required

Sanitation plans must be approved by the Health Department before building permits will be issued by the county, the Health Department has announced.

J. B. Dowling, state sanitarian, said contractors must secure a septic tank permit for individual homes, or secure approval of larger septic tank installations for developments, before beginning construction.

All sewage plans must be approved by the Health Department, and inspected before they are covered. Dowling said failure to seek inspections sometimes makes it necessary to uncover parts of the system for final inspection.

Dowling said over 50 homes are to be built in the LaVale area this spring and summer and at least seven are planned on Braddock Road.

Eight Candidates From Fort Hill Seek City Posts

Youth Mayor Primary Vote Is Saturday

Although Fort Hill High School has more candidates in the Youth Mayor and City Council primary election than other local schools, LaSalle High School has more mayor-minded students.

George R. Hughes, Jr., chairman of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce committee which is sponsoring the project, said yesterday that Fort Hill has eight candidates, Allegany and LaSalle six each and Carver three.

LaSalle Candidates

However, among the nine candidates for mayor are four LaSalle boys. Fort Hill and Allegany each has two students who would like to be "mayor for a day" and Carver has one. In the councilmanic race there are 14 candidates for four jobs. Six are Fort Hill students, four are from Allegany and two each from LaSalle and Carver.

Hughes explained that some 1,970 students from the four schools registered so they can vote in the primary election, scheduled from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m. Saturday in the City Hall rotunda. The field then will be narrowed to two candidate for mayor and eight for council, subject to the general election on Saturday, April 25.

Will Meet Friday

The Jaycee chairman said that he will meet with election officials from the schools at 4 p. m. Friday in the City Hall rotunda to complete arrangements.

Candidates for mayor:

William Comer, LaSalle; Raymond M. Crowe, LaSalle; James Farris, Fort Hill; Roy W. Jones, Carver; Francis Mantheiy, LaSalle; Robert Martin, LaSalle; Kenneth W. McGraw, Allegany; James Squires, Fort Hill, and David Walton, Allegany.

Candidates for council:

Route 40 Group To Meet Tonight

Route 40 Association, a group interested in promoting tourist travel through Western Maryland will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Cumberland Brewing Company.

The Association is extending invitations to all persons interested in a program of advertising and publicity throughout this and neighboring states, as a means of promoting the scenic beauty and other attractions of Western Maryland.

Proponents of the plan point out that much tourist business is being lost each year to this area, because increased emphasis on advertising and publicity is being made in other areas.

The meeting should be of special interest to restaurant owners, service station operators, hotels, motels, and others interested in promoting tourist business.

Council Modifies Industrial Belt Bond Proposal

$150,000, No-Vote Issue To Be Sought

In a 3-2 vote yesterday afternoon during a special session at City Hall, the Mayor and Council made a modification to its plans for the proposed Industrial Boulevard in South Cumberland.

The modification which will be sought through the Allegany County delegation at Annapolis calls for a $150,000 bond issue without referendum instead of the original plan of $500,000 bond issue with referendum.

The money would be used for the purchase of rights-of-way in South Cumberland toward construction of the boulevard which would help alleviate the traffic problem in that section.

Dissenting votes were voiced by Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, and John J. Long, police and fire commissioner. During the meeting Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer, and Thomas B. Finan, city solicitor, went over some details of the proposed boulevard.

Suitable Industry Sites

It was pointed out that areas along the route would be suitable for the location of industries in Cumberland, with railroad sidings being available.

Mrs. Roeder said she believed the project should be started immediately and options for the property obtained by the city, but that she did not favor the bond issue without a referendum. She felt the voters should be given a chance to give their opinion in the matter. She also commented on the necessary rise in the tax rate should the meausre be passed.

Mayor Roy W. Eves, who broke a 2-2 deadlock and favored the proposal without referendum, noted that the proposed issue would not effect the city's credit until the bonds were sold.

He also pointed to the inclusion of Cumberland in the 12-year-program of the State Roads Commission although a decision has not been reached at Annapolis on the plan. He said he and Nuzum met Monday afternoon with the directors of the South Cumberland Business Men's Association who suggested the $150,000 plan, and are highly in favor of the proposed boulevard.

Commissioner Long went along with Mrs. Roeder as opposing the bond issue without a referendum vote of the residents of the city.

He also thinks the project should be started at once and options obtained by the city from the property owners in South End. Long said he felt the referendum is the only "democratic way" to settle the issue.

Keegan, Edwards Agree

Commissioner of Finance William V. Keegan fired back at the two dissenters by saying that past referendums have been voted down with the exception of the Recreation Program bond issue. Keegan went on to say that Cumberland should do all in its power to encourage industry to Cumberland and that the boulevard would be one of the answers to the present situation.

William J. Edwards, water commissioner, went along with the Mayor and Keegan as favoring the modification without referendum, and the encouragement of industry into the city.

Eves also said that since the people put the Mayor and Council into office they certainly know that the officials are capable of making decisions for the voters.

Youths Arrested While Siphoning Gas For Flivver

Three teen-age boys were arrested Tuesday night and early yesterday after police said they had siphoned gasoline from a parked car to keep their old Model "A" Ford running.

City Detective Roy C. Hawse said at least two state motor charges would be filed against the 18-year-old driver of the car. The West Side youth is scheduled to be tried this morning in Trial Magistrates Court on charges of driving without a license and of having no registration card for his jalopy.

His two 16-year-old companions will receive hearings in Juvenile Court Saturday morning.

Detective Hawse said Officer Gordon Hite caught one of the boys siphoning gasoline into a jug from a parked car on North George Street Tuesday night. The other two were picked up soon after.

All three, said Hawse, admitted having taken the gas to keep their car running. They also admitted siphoning gasoline from two other cars the same night.

Hawse said the 18-year-old boy told him he recently traded a motorcycle for the car, and that its plates had been stolen from a West Virginia automobile.

The older boy was lodged in City Jail, and his companions were released in custody of their parents.

House Approves Counties Share In Liquor Tax

50 Cents Per Gallon Would Be Returned

ANNAPOLIS, March 25 (AP)—The House of Delegates today rammed through a bill for all the counties to share in the taxes on liquor.

Only Baltimore City and County now collect any liquor taxes in addition to the state and federal governments. It was these special privileges which prompted 16 delegates to propose that all counties get a cut.

Endorsed By Tawes

The proposal was endorsed by Millard Tawes, comptroller, in a letter distributed to the legislators.

Tawes said "any apparent loss created through the adjustment" would be outweighed by greater losses if taxation on local levels were allowed to continue.

The bill sent to the Senate provides the state raise its liquor tax from $1.25 to $1.50 a gallon. The state then would return 50 cents for each gallon sold in a county and Baltimore. The city and Baltimore County now are taxing 50 cents a gallon so they would not lose any revenue.

The Senate already has enacted to continue Baltimore City's taxing privilege for another two years. The new uniform system would go into effect next July 1.

Garrett Excluded

Garrett and Caroline Counties would not receive any of the liquor tax returns because whisky is not sold there. However, Tawes said the bill provides for their participation "whenever legislation to authorize such sale is enacted."

On the basis of last year sales, returns to the counties will range from about $6,000 in Queen Anne's to $165,000 in Baltimore. The city collected $915,000 from the 50 cents a gallon tax in 1952.

Seven counties exempted themselves from a bill to permit half the property owners to block issuance of tavern licenses in their vicinity. Allegany, Garrett, Howard, Charles, Harford, St. Mary's and Prince George's were excluded when the bill advanced to final reading in the House.

Licenses could not be granted to new locations if 50 per cent of the real estate owners within 300 feet in metropolitan areas and within half a mile in rural areas protested.

The delegates also approved private construction of a bridge over Sinepuxent Bay from the Eastern Shore mainland to Assateague Island in Worcester County.

Parkway Bill Endorsed

The C&O Canal Parkway measure, Senate Bill 211, moved past another hurle yesterday afternoon when it recived a favorable report from the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Delegates. Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr. of Westernport, a committe member, said the vote was 28 for the bill and only two against it.

Barber Bill Passes

House Bill 360, introduced by Delegate Fred B. Driscoll of Cumberland and Delegate William C. O'Malley of Baltimore, was passed by the House yesterday. It would increase the daily pay of Board of Barber Examiners from $5 to $10 for attending meetings and would require 1,000 hours of instruction at an approved school before a man can be licensed as a barber.

Rent Control Bill

State Senator Robert B. Kimble said yesterday that he is going to amend a rent control bill which has passed the House of Delegates so that it will include Allegany County.

The House measure approved rent controls, if they want them, in Baltimore, Hagerstown and Baltimore County. It has been sent to the Senate. The County Delegation was widely split last week on whether to put Cumberland and Allegany County into the bill by amendment and as a result no action was taken.

However, Senator Kimble believes that local governments in Allegany County should be given the chance to decide whether or not they want rent controls.

BB Bill Amended

An amendment banning use of air guns in Allegany and Prince George's County by yougsters 16 years old and under was tacked on the anti-BB gun bill by Senator Kimble.

The original bill, introduced by Delegate Charles M. See of this county and Del. Hassal of Prince George's County, and passed by

Army Maneuvers In Elkins Area Cancelled Again

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP) — Sen. Neely (D-WVa) said today he had reliable information that plans for large scale army maneuvers in the Elkins, W. Va., area this summer have been cancelled.

Neely reported he understood troop units scheduled to participate had other training assignments.

More than 20,000 servicemen had been expected to take part in the West Virginia maneuvers.

An indication the exercises are to be held came during the recent session of the West Virginia Legislature, which was asked to exempt state taxes on cigarettes, beer and other items which would have been sold in Army post exchanges.

Local Company Is Low Bidder For Road Work

To Rebuild Section Of Swanton Highway

The Cumberland Construction Company was low bidder for work of resurfacing a section of the Bloomington-Swanton road, Route 135, it was reported yesterday.

The State Roads Commission opened bids Tuesday at the SRC offices in Baltimore. The local firm was low bidder with a figure of $429,581.45.

There were four other companies that bid on the work including T. Edgie Russell Company, Frederick, with a bid of $431,980; E. D. Plummer and Sons, Chambersburg, Pa., with a bid of $442,585.25; Richard F. Kline, Frederick, $465,657.35, and S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company, this city, with a figure of $472,622.20.

Work will include grading, drainage and resurfacing of about three and a half miles of the road between Bloomington and Swanton.

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the State Roads Commission, said the section of highway will be entirely rebuilt with some minor relocations. The Cumberland Construction Company will work on about one-third of the 10-mile road.

Chaires added the SRC plans to rebuild the whole road, and the remaining sections will be contracted for construction after this section has been resurfaced.

Farmers To Get Tile For Ditches

Some 52 Allegany County farmers who plan to install tile drainage ditches this year through the Agricultural Conservation Program were notified yesterday by Albert O'Neal, chairman of the County PMA Committee that clay tile may be obtained by purchase order.

In a form letter to the cooperating farmers, O'Neal reminded them that clay tile may be obtained on purchase orders just like they have been purchasing lime and fertilizer. The farmer will pay half of the cost of the clay tile and the Federal government, through the Agricultural Conservation Program, will pay the other half.

After a soil conservationist has visited a farm and with the farmer has determined the need and specifications for the ditch, the farmer may come to the County PMA office, 37 Washington Street, for a purchase order for the clay tile. A price list from local dealers will be available at the PMA office for the convenience of the farmers.

FOE, Exchange Club To Aid With Easter Seal Campaign

Members of Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and the Cumberland Exchange Club will conduct an Easter lily sale this Saturday in connection with the current county Easter Seal sale drive.

At the same time, the Lonaconing Lions Club and the Rotary Club will conduct a lily sale in the Lonaconing area. Proceeds from the sale will go to the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

In Frostburg, the Saturday Easter lily Sale will be conducted by members of the Loyal Order Of Moose.

William R. Carscaden, chairman of the Easter Seal drive, urged residents to cooperate with the drive which seeks to boost county Easter Seal sales. Thus far the Easter Seal Campaign has reached $2,481.45 with 2,068 letters being returned. Carscaden said this indicates that 10,000 letters sent out with Easter Seals in the county have not yet been answered.

Carscaden added he hopes to exceed last year's drive which collected $6,700 for the aid of underprivileged children of Allegany County.

He pointed out that the purchase of Easter Seals last year helped to provide 1,476 examinations by doctors who are specialists in their field, 1,303 visits in the field and 2,437 visits in the office, in addition to 3,134 treatments given by speech therapists and 1,586 treatments given by physical therapists. It May Be Spring But Garrett Has Snow Anyway

Baffled Garrett Countians, knowing spring is here, saw snow falling again last night.

State Police said the light, wet snow followed heavy rains in mountainous sections of Garrett and western Allegany counties, but was melting as fast as it fell.

Roads were wet, but no more slippery than in sections where only rain fell.

Regester Gives City Plans For Fixing Clearwell

Would Abandon Damaged Section

Plans for alterations to the damaged clearwell at the city filtration plant were presented to the city this week by Robert T. Regester, Baltimore.

Regester, who is consulting engineer for the city on water and sewage problems, prepared the plans for final alterations needed at the plant after part of the bottom of the clearwell dropped out early this month.

Emergency repairs were made to the area immediately to keep the $237,000 filter unit under construction nearby from slipping toward the clearwell area, which had been undermined by a long-standing leak from the reservoir, built some 40 years ago to store filtered water.

The plans submitted to Water Commissioner William J. Edwards include the installation of steel piling and a concrete wall to strengthen the existing clearwell structure which is to be retained.

The two 36-inch water lines leading to the city will be connected to a gate chamber at the clearwell so water can be supplied to one or both lines from that point, allowing more flexible operation of the water system.

The plan calls for the elimination of the damaged part of the clearwell, since repairs would be too expensive and it is not needed for the efficient operation of the plant.

Contractors are completing the final stages of the filter project, which will add 6,000,000 gallon a day to the filtering capacity.

Held up for lack of materials, workers are busy now installing pipe and fittings to the new filter units. When the pipe work is completed, only the installation of filter materials and painting will remain, officials said.

Council Splits, 3-2, Over 5-Day Week Proposal

Long, Mrs. Roeder Oppose Action Now

The much discussed proposal of a five-day work week for city police and firemen resulted in quite a session during a special meeting of the Mayor and Council yesterday afternoon.

Mayor Roy W. Eves brought up the matter after the county delegation to the legislature asked him how he and members of the City Council felt about the proposal.

The order provided that the Mayor and Council would favor a 5-day week for police and firemen with the understanding that the budget for the fiscal year 1953-1954 would allow these working conditions, if put into effect.

In the 3-2 vote, Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long and Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder dissented although they do favor the five-day week.

Urges Waiting

Mrs. Roeder said she feels the city is capable of settling what she termed an "administrative" matter and was in favor of waiting until July to see if the budget would allow the move.

Long said he also is highly in favor of the betterment of working conditions for police and firemen but did not favor the raising of the tax rate thus putting an extra burden on the taxpayers.

Commissioner Long also added he did not think it was a matter for the Legislature to settle but one for Cumberland.

After some discussion the proposal was signed as an order by Mayor Eves, and voted upon. Mayor Eves pointed out that yesterday's action was to get a viewpoint from each commissioner for the benefit of the Legislature.

More Men Needed

Police are seeking a five-day 40-hour week and the firemen a five-day week. Heads of the two departments emphasize that 14 additional men are needed for the reduced work schedule.

The move is termed a financial problem because 14 men would represent $45,276 in salaries or a 6½-cent tax rate increase.

After voting against the 40-hour week for policemen, the two consecutive days off each week for firemen, and the industrial boulevard bond issue, Mrs. Roeder read into the record what she termed "my specific reasons for not supporting these two bills:

"Administrative Matters"

"(a) These matters, I believe, are administrative matters which need not be sent for action to the Legislature. They should be handled in Cumberland by the Mayor and Council.

"(b) I believe we should follow the recommendation our City Attorney, Mr. Finan, made last Tuesday. That is to hold our decision in the matter until our budget meeting in July when we can more clearly determine how we can secure the money needed and when we will know more about certain anticipated revenue.

"(c) According to the Municipal Year Book of 1952:

Septic Tanks To Be Required

Sanitation plans must be approved by the Health Department before building permits will be issued by the county, the Health Department has announced.

J. B. Dowling, state sanitarian, said contractors must secure a septic tank permit for individual homes, or secure approval of larger septic tank installations for developments, before beginning construction.

All sewage plans must be approved by the Health Department, and inspected before they are covered. Dowling said failure to seek inspections sometimes makes it necessary to uncover parts of the system for final inspection.

Dowling said over 50 homes are to be built in the LaVale area this spring and summer and at least seven are planned on Braddock Road.

Eight Candidates From Fort Hill Seek City Posts

Youth Mayor Primary Vote Is Saturday

Although Fort Hill High School has more candidates in the Youth Mayor and City Council primary election than other local schools, LaSalle High School has more mayor-minded students.

George R. Hughes, Jr., chairman of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce committee which is sponsoring the project, said yesterday that Fort Hill has eight candidates, Allegany and LaSalle six each and Carver three.

LaSalle Candidates

However, among the nine candidates for mayor are four LaSalle boys. Fort Hill and Allegany each has two students who would like to be "mayor for a day" and Carver has one. In the councilmanic race there are 14 candidates for four jobs. Six are Fort Hill students, four are from Allegany and two each from LaSalle and Carver.

Hughes explained that some 1,970 students from the four schools registered so they can vote in the primary election, scheduled from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m. Saturday in the City Hall rotunda. The field then will be narrowed to two candidate for mayor and eight for council, subject to the general election on Saturday, April 25.

Route 40 Group To Meet Tonight

Route 40 Association, a group interested in promoting tourist travel through Western Maryland will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Cumberland Brewing Company.

The Association is extending invitations to all persons interested in a program of advertising and publicity throughout this and neighboring states, as a means of promoting the scenic beauty and other attractions of Western Maryland.

Proponents of the plan point out that much tourist business is being lost each year to this area, because increased emphasis on advertising and publicity is being made in other areas.

The meeting should be of special interest to restaurant owners, service station operators, hotels, motels, and others interested in promoting tourist business.

Council Modifies Industrial Belt Bond Proposal

$150,000, No-Vote Issue To Be Sought

In a 3-2 vote yesterday afternoon during a special session at City Hall, the Mayor and Council made a modification to its plans for the proposed Industrial Boulevard in South Cumberland.

The modification which will be sought through the Allegany County delegation at Annapolis calls for a $150,000 bond issue without referendum instead of the original plan of $500,000 bond issue with referendum.

The money would be used for the purchase of rights-of-way in South Cumberland toward construction of the boulevard which would help alleviate the traffic problem in that section.

Dissenting votes were voiced by Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, and John J. Long, police and fire commissioner. During the meeting Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer, and Thomas B. Finan, city solicitor, went over some details of the proposed boulevard.

Suitable Industry Sites

It was pointed out that areas along the route would be suitable for the location of industries in Cumberland, with railroad sidings being available.

Mrs. Roeder said she believed the project should be started immediately and options for the property obtained by the city, but that she did not favor the bond issue without a referendum. She felt the voters should be given a chance to give their opinion in the matter. She also commented on the necessary rise in the tax rate should the meausre be passed.

Mayor Roy W. Eves, who broke a 2-2 deadlock and favored the proposal without referendum, noted that the proposed issue would not effect the city's credit until the bonds were sold.

He also pointed to the inclusion of Cumberland in the 12-year-program of the State Roads Commission although a decision has not been reached at Annapolis on the plan. He said he and Nuzum met Monday afternoon with the directors of the South Cumberland Business Men's Association who suggested the $150,000 plan, and are highly in favor of the proposed boulevard.

Commissioner Long went along with Mrs. Roeder as opposing the bond issue without a referendum vote of the residents of the city.

He also thinks the project should be started at once and options obtained by the city from the property owners in South End. Long said he felt the referendum is the only "democratic way" to settle the issue.

Keegan, Edwards Agree

Commissioner of Finance William V. Keegan fired back at the two dissenters by saying that past referendums have been voted down with the exception of the Recreation Program bond issue. Keegan went on to say that Cumberland should do all in its power to encourage industry to Cumberland and that the boulevard would be one of the answers to the present situation.

William J. Edwards, water commissioner, went along with the Mayor and Keegan as favoring the modification without referendum, and the encouragement of industry into the city.

Eves also said that since the people put the Mayor and Council into office they certainly know that the officials are capable of making decisions for the voters.

Youths Arrested While Siphoning Gas For Flivver

Three teen-age boys were arrested Tuesday night and early yesterday after police said they had siphoned gasoline from a parked car to keep their old Model "A" Ford running.

City Detective Roy C. Hawse said at least two state motor charges would be filed against the 18-year-old driver of the car. The West Side youth is scheduled to be tried this morning in Trial Magistrates Court on charges of driving without a license and of having no registration card for his jalopy.

His two 16-year-old companions will receive hearings in Juvenile Court Saturday morning.

Detective Hawse said Officer Gordon Hite caught one of the boys siphoning gasoline into a jug from a parked car on North George Street Tuesday night. The other two were picked up soon after.

All three, said Hawse, admitted having taken the gas to keep their car running. They also admitted siphoning gasoline from two other cars the same night.

Hawse said the 18-year-old boy told him he recently traded a motorcycle for the car, and that its plates had been stolen from a West Virginia automobile.

The older boy was lodged in City Jail, and his companions were released in custody of their parents.
